exhibitors will arrange their exhibits to show a few of the many things that go to make a home more worth while. The home has intangible values that the brick layer and carpenter do not put into it. It has permanence. It is something to find satisfaction in, something to be proud of, something to put yourself into a larger sense than going through the door.

Styles change and new ideas are presented. You will see types of the new ideas and styles. Heating plants, that add warmth and comfort to the better home, will be shown, as well as the latest type of refrigeration, essential in summer time to the preservation of food stuffs. The Better Homes Exposition is being promoted by the Industrial Association of this city and is being extensively advertised.

OBITUARY

Betty Marie Carver came into the home of Lawrence and Agnes Carver, March 31, -925. She was a bundle of sunshine in the home and filled her place well. After a short illness she flew back to her Heavenly home to be with her Father, thus escaping the many heartaches and hardships this life has to offer. Her gain, however, is our loss.

She leaves to mourn their loss, a broken hearted father, mother, two sisters, Marcella and Pauline; one brother, Clair; two grandfathers, two grandmothers; one great-grandfather; seven uncles and four aunts.

She only stayed with us one year and 29 days, but how precious those days will be in memory. They need not cease, for she still lives and awaits our coming to a far better land.

"There is no death! The stars go down To rise upon some fairer shore, And bright in Heaven's jeweled crown They shine forever more."

The funeral was held in the Salem M. E. church, May 2, 1926. Rev. F. A. Shipley, the pastor, officiated.

STATE ROAD AT GENEVA CLOSED

three days work before reaching the bridge on the state highway, but it is understood work on removing the bridge will be begun at once, so as not to delay the boat. This is the lower end of the Williams or Lob ditch where the boat is now operating, the boat now being right at Limberlost creek.

It will also be necessary to remove the railroad bridge on the Pennsylvania road, a short distance east of the bridge over the state highway. This will be done by the railroad company. The old bridge over the highway, a short distance further east of the railroad bridge, will, it is understood, be torn entirely down when it is removed to let the dredge boat through. This bridge has been condemned, and a new bridge will be erected there.

So far five bridges have been removed to allow the passage of the dredge boat. There are eight bridges altogether on this drain. The bridge at state highway No. 21, is 110 feet long and the railroad bridge is about the same length. Fred Shoemaker of this city, has had the contract for moving and replacing all of the five bridges up to the state highway.

The dredging or re-cleaning of the Williams, or "Lob" ditch, was started in the fall of 1925, and unless something unforeseen occurs, the dredging will be completed in three weeks or less. The ditch empties into the Wabash river just east of Geneva. The dredging started north of Polingtown.

Thanks To Farmers

Mrs. Susie Bowen and her son, Kermit, wish to thank the farmers of St. Marys township for the assistance given them in planting the oats on their farm, following the serious accident which Kermit Bowen suffered when the tractor he was driving turned over.

Kermit Bowen is able to be up again, but is still unable to use his right arm because of the painful and serious burns.

MR. AND MRS. SELLE- MEYER CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING

seventy years ago. Their childhood was spent less than three miles apart, and they attended the same public school. In their infancy, each was baptized into the Reformed church by the Rev. Peter Vitz, father of Henry Vitz, who later served as pastor of the Reformed church in Decatur. They were received into the church at confirmation age by Rev. Spels, who also united them in marriage fifty years ago.

Time has introduced many innovations during the last fifty years. At the time Mr. and Mrs. Sellemeyer were married, the usual mode of travel was in a big wagon drawn by two horses, and when the mud was unusually deep, only the rear wheels of the wagon were used. But the Sellemeyers, even in that early day, employed no such antiquated method of travel on their journey to and from the Magley Reformed church on the day of their wedding.

William Sellemeyer, a brother of the groom, then a prosperous young farmer had just purchased one of those rare and ancient palaces of locomotion called a buggy, and he gladly loaned it to his brother to haul his bride. The thrill of riding in this new, elegantly painted and splendidly upholstered, vehicle, even if the mud was hub-deep at the time and the horses had to be allowed to rest at intervals, was equal to the most startling sensations experienced by those who in these days take their first ride in an air-ship.

Mr. Sellemeyer, who is seventy-three years of age, is the fourth child of a family of six children, four sons and two daughters, all of whom are still living except one daughter who died in infancy. His mother, by reason of her rugged vitality, reached the unusual age of ninety-two years. Already a sister, Mrs. Louise Reppert and a brother, William Sellemeyer, have celebrated their golden weddings.

Mrs. Sellemeyer, whose maiden name was Elizabeth Miller is the third child of a family of thirteen children, nine boys and four girls, three brothers and one sister of whom are still living.

Mr. and Mrs. Sellemeyer are the parents of five children, all of whom are living except one daughter, Emma Mary, who died in infancy. Those living are, Mrs. Bertha Heuer, Mrs. Anna Vance, Miss Della Sellemeyer, all of this city, and Mr. Albert Sellemeyer of Fort Wayne. They have also been blessed with three grand-children, Geraldine Vance, Lee Anna Vance, and Catherine Sellemeyer, but of these only one, Lee Anna Vance, is still living.

Thirty-six years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Sellemeyer left their Preble township farm and came to Decatur, where they have resided ever since, and where Mr. Sellemeyer has been in the constant employment of the Kirsch and Sellemeyer Lumber and Coal interests, and their successors.

The guests assembled at the Sellemeyer home at the noon hour, and showed their felicitations and good wishes upon the honored couple. After an hour of delightful reminiscences, the entire party was conducted by automobile to the O. L. Vance residence on North Second street, where on two long tables, a three-course dinner was served.

The principal table decorations consisted of centerpieces of jonquils, narcissus, and snapdragons, the beauty of which was greatly enhanced by the mellow glow of golden tapers, near which stood miniature brides and grooms. The color scheme of gold was fittingly observed in the delicacies that were served, as well as in the table decorations. Further decorations consisted of golden-colored nut-baskets which served the additional service of receptacles for placecards, and over which hung dainty golden wedding-bells. Wedding bells were also given as favors.

During the afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Sellemeyer were showered with letters and telegrams of congratulations from many near, as well as distant friends. The happy event was prolonged until late in the evening before the guests departed, and when they did so, it was with a sense that the occasion had not been in vain, and with a parting sincere wish that the future still held in store for Mr. and Mrs. Sellemeyer, many more joyful anniversaries.

The invited guests were: Mr. and Mrs. William Sellemeyer, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Reppert, Mr. Harmon Selmeyer, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Sellemeyer, Mr. and Mrs. Jess Sellemeyer, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Miller, Mr. and Mrs. John Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Miller, Mr. and Mrs. William Beineke, Mr. and Mrs. Mattias Kirsch, Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Lewis, Rev. A. R. Fledderjohann and wife, Rev. L. C. Hossert and wife, Rev. George Grether and wife, Rev. L. W. Stolte and wife, Rev. R. R. Elliker, the Misses Lena and Emma Guth, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Heuer, Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Vance, Miss Della Sellemeyer, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sellemeyer, and Miss Lee Anna Vance.
