Heavy Loss in Wheat and Oats Predicted Unless Rainy Spell Halts

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 18—(United Press)—Loss of thousands of dollars in wheat and oats was predicted today by William H. Settle, Indiana farm bureau federation president, unless there is a lull in the present rainy spell within the next few days.

Heavy rainfall throughout the state during the past six days has been reported by J. H. Armstrong, United States weather bureau meteorologist and Settle believes only a quick respite can save the crops.

Wheat and oats in the shock have begun to sprout where additional rains have prevented the grain from drying. Settle said, stating that considerable damage already had been done.

About one-fourth of the oats crop in Northern Indiana, which is practically all in the shock has been damaged, Settle estimated. The oats crop has suffered the heaviest loss thus far, he said, but three-fourths of the wheat having been harvested.
