TEXAS PRIMARY

RUN-CFF HELD

primary several weeks ago when Moody led his four opponents, including Governor Ferguson, by a wide margin. A run-off primary between Moody and the woman executive, runner-up in the contest, was necessary as the attorney general lacked a majority over his opponent.

Governor Ferguson, and her husband, "Jim" Ferguson, have charged the Ku Klux Klan with backing Moody. The latter has had as his campaign slogan "rid the state of Fergusonism."
The attorney general and the woman executive have been bitter political enemies and the campaign has been one of the most heated Texas has ever seen.
Moody supporters charge the woman governor with "Welching" because of her refusal to withdraw from the race after she had stated she would, if Moody led her by one vote in the first primary.

E. J. Fogarty New Warden Of Cook County Jail

Chicago, Aug. 28.—(United Press.)—Edward J. Fogarty, for 14 years Warden of the Indiana penitentiary at Michigan City, Ind., has been chosen warden of Cook county jail, it became known here today.

Fogarty was picked for the job by a citizens advising committee, because of scandals involving two previous wardens.

Appointment of Fogarty will be held up however, until a legal option has been obtained as to whether a warden may be chosen from outside Cook county. The position pays $5,000 a year.

Fogarty told the committee there would be no drinking by prisoners in his regime, such as caused the recent upheavals in the jail.

Mrs. Gler Neptune will arrive tomorrow from Minneapolis, Minn., to join her husband who has been here

Women Will Enjoy "Stella Dallas" At Court

Every woman should see "Stella Dallas"—the great American romantic epic which comes to the Court Theater Sunday and Monday, August 29 and 30.

"Stella Dallas" is a realistic revelation of a girl's love-life. It is a dramatic X-ray of her emotions from the kindling of her first love, her marriage, her flirtations, her devotion to her child, up to the great climax in her life which pounds the pulse beats with pathos and glows with happiness.

"Stella Dallas" was written by a woman. Olive Higgins Prouty's famous novel has been read by more millions than any other piece of fiction ever published. It has been a play and has been broadcast over the radio.

Francis Marion, the greatest woman scenario writer, devoted four months to the preparation of the script. Her insight, her grasp of life, gives added color to Stella as a figure that will linger long in your memory. "Stella Dallas" is sponsored by Samuel Goldwyn, pioneer producer, as the great achievement of his career.

Henry King, director of "The White Sister," "23 1/2 Hours Leave" and "Tolable David" has endowed the picture with all his rare genius, and created his life's masterpiece. Never before has such a remarkable cast been assembled in one picture.

Ronald Colman, magnetic lover and dramatic artist, plays Stephen Dallas. Belle Bennett, the choice over seven-ty-two other candidates, plays Stella Dallas. Alice Joyce plays Mrs. Morrison. Jean Hersholt, the great character actor, plays Ed Munn, the show-off riding master. Lois Moran, the unsophisticated and unmoderated child wonder, plays Laurel. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., plays the care free collegian, Richard Grosvenor.

"Stella Dallas" is an inspired film accomplishment, bubbling with youth, blamming with laughter, quivering with a vibrant heart appeal.

We unhesitatingly recommend this mighty photodrama, a distinctive and out-of-the-ordinary entertainment, decidedly worth-while. You'll thank us after you've seen and been thrilled—adv.

MRS. C. CORSON CROSSES SPAN

A big crowd on the beach cheered enthusiastically as Mrs. Corson completed the swim.

"I was determined to make it or go down," she said. "I've got to make some money for my kids."

Fair Weather Is Aid
It was officially announced that Mrs. Corson made the swim in 15 hours and 38 minutes.

Her official starting time was given as 11:32 p.m., yesterday and her official finishing time as 3:10 p. m., today.

Fair weather aided the crossing. The sea was calm and a moon lit the waters as the swim started.

Mrs. Corson virtually collapsed after landing. She was taken to a hot bath, and the grease scraped off her body.

By four p.m., she was asleep.

Mrs. Corson is the wife of Pilot Captain Clemington Corson of New York. She is known professionally by her maiden name of Mille (Amelia) Gade, and is called the Danish woman swimming champion.

She has been decorated three times by King Christian of Denmark for her swimming activities.

She holds the Around-Manhattan record, having swam around Manhattan Island in 15 hours and 57 seconds in 1921. That same year she swam the Hudson from Albany to New York, in stages, completing the swim in 66 swimming hours.

She also swam from Sandy Hook, N. J., to the battery in New York, averaging the distance in 20 minutes to one mile. Four years ago she swam from Dover to within two miles of the French coast.

On Oct. 27, 1925 she rose from a sick bed in New York to break the record for the Hudson river swim from Fort Washington Point to West 96th street, New York.

Twenty-seven years old, described as an attractive blond, she came to the United States in 1919 from Denmark. She has been employed as a swimming instructor by the naval militia in New York. She has received medals for life saving.

and Marjorie, a daughter of two and a half, are Mrs. Corson's inspiration. Her four-year-old boy, "Sonny", in swimming, she says.

"I think no woman is at her best, physically or otherwise, until she is a mother," she has declared.

Frank Perks, the British swimmer, has been one of the most conscientious in his training among the channel group. Last winter he spent much time in swimming practice in the reservoir in his home town of Birmingham, England, remaining in the water six or seven hours at a temperature of not more than 47 degrees. His trainer reported him "hard as nails" when he went to Gris Nez, confident that he would succeed in the swim.

Her husband, rowed a boat beside his wife the whole way and there was no tug although a motor boat accompanied the swimmer.

Louis Timson of Boston, was in the party which accompanied Mrs. Corson and he helped keep her spirits up during the night by singing American jazz songs. Every two hours the swimmer was fed lumps of sugar, cocoa and biscuits.

"The last two hours," said Timson, "were a hard fight. Her strength was being exhausted. She used the American crawl stroke throughout, and up to a few hours off the English coast it looked like she would beat Gertrude Ederle's record. She would have done so but for an unusually strong ebb tide which carried her westward and away from a chance at the record."

Mrs. Mae Robinson will spend Sunday in Upper Sandusky, Ohio, with friends and relatives.
