Hear Mr. Woollen at the court house Saturday evening, the first political meeting of the year.

Tomorrow is Gene Stratton-Porter day at Geneva. You are invited to hear Governor Jackson, Attorney General Gilliom and others.

Tuesday, October 19th—Dairy Day—big barbecue, fine entertainment, band concerts, free gifts, a good time. Get ready.

Democrats, remember that if the voters are registered, the chances for victory are bright. And registration must be this week.

If they don't get the sky leaks stopped soon, the crops this year will not only be ruined but the wheat crop for next year in this section will be hopeless.

The first political rally for the year will occur in this city next Saturday evening when the Hon. Evans Woollen, a real man for the United States senate, will speak at the court house. Be sure to hear him.

There has been a shrinkage of a billion dollars on the value of farm lands in Indiana. Did you one ask, "Why change?" The answer is easy. If we don't change soon there won't be any farmers.

If you like your community and believe in it, if you wish to show the farmers that you are for them and willing to give a day out of the year to prove it, you will join in the plans and assist in the finances for Dairy Day.

The teachers of Indiana are up in arms, because while they have religiously paid into the state, their retirement fund, the other four-sevenths have not been forthcoming and there is now a deficit of $1,130,608.39 in that fund. No wonder they are mad about it. Perhaps they can answer the slogan "Why change?"

Perhaps no man in the state can give a better personal reason for wanting a change in Indiana than Hon. Arthur Hamrick, democratic candidate for secretary of state, who will accompany Hon. Evans Woollen to this city next Saturday evening. Mr. Hamrick has all his money invested in farm lands and the battle he has put up to save himself from financial destruction is well known to his friends.

Don't wait for some one to come and register you. Go to the auditors office this week and take care of this important duty yourself. If you can't get there, call democratic headquarters or Dick Heller, county chairman and he will see that some one calls to register you. If you have moved during the past two years, if you have changed your name by marriage or divorce or otherwise, if you are a first voter or if you did not register and vote two years ago, you must register this year to qualify.

The Decatur schools will send delegations to Geneva tomorrow for the Gene Stratton-Porter memorial, a splendid cooperation and a deserving one. Many others will attend from this city and vicinity and if the weather is fit, the event will be one of the most successful ever held in the county. The speakers will include Governor Jackson and Attorney General Gilliom and the public is cordially invited to attend the services observing National Porter week. The program will begin promptly at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

We met a fourteen-year-old boy on the street this morning. Though we know his parents are poor and that he has a hard way getting along, we noticed that his trousers were pressed, that his tie was on straight and his shoes were polished. We asked him about it and he proudly replied that he did it all himself. Right then and there we made up our mind that the boy will make good and we will bet on it. And it's a good lesson for men and boys. Keep a cheerful front and the world will join hands to help you and it doesn't require much effort or expense. People have no use for the fellow with a hanging head and bagging trousers.

More Land Is Added To State Forest Reserve

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 28.—Special to Daily Democrat.—Addition of 376 acres of land to the State Forest Reserve in Clarke County was announced today by Richard Lieber, director of the state conservation department.

This land was purchased in three tracts and adjoins the reserve on the south, north and west. It was sold to the conservation commission for a total of $4,720 or slightly over $12 per acre by John Metz, F. C. Statton and A. L. Peemster.

"Purchase of forestry land is possible," Mr. Lieber said, "under the LaFuze forestry law that provides a one-half mill levy that raises approximately $25,000 a year. The department has other tracts under consideration and soon expects to add 11 acres in order to extend the state nursery where annually many thousands of seedlings are raised and sold at cost to persons desiring to engage in private forestry."

SIMPLE THINGS

I like to fling the doorway wide and bid a friend come in. I like to have a blazing fire in which I dream to spin. I like an easy chair at times and books to read at night. A little garden space outside with blossoms red and white. A bowl of soup and home-made bread, a yellow bird that sings. For happiness, it seems to me, is born of simple things.

Oh, I could write a thousand charms I've seen along the way. A red geranium in a pot, a little child at play. A maple tree in scarlet dressed, a patch of summer sky. The blush upon a maiden's cheek, the twinkle in her eye. All these have set my blood aglow and never lost their fire. For life is filled with countless joys of which we never tire.

Audit Of Books Of Late
King Of Siam Discloses
Existence Of Large Deficit

(By R. Adey Moore, United Press Staff Correspondent)
Bangkok, Siam, (United Press.)—

King Rama of Siam ran up a deficit of $3,750,000, and spent money at the rate of $4,500,000 a year, an audit of the royal books disclosed after his death. The Siamese Government has taken over his liabilities.

The Siamese electric companies collected $500 each day from the palace meters, though the sum does daily duty in Siam and fogs are rare.

His successor, King Prachitok, has worked out some economies and thinks he can maintain himself on slightly more than $2,500,000 each year.

"There will be a considerable saving in the electric light bills, I expect," declared Sir Edward Cook, financial advisor to the Siamese government.

More than half of the late King Rama's liabilities were due to advances from the national treasury made to himself at his own authorization. About three-fourths of the royal expenditure of $4,500,000 was due to payments on the King's civil list.

Educational Movies To Be Furnished By I. U.

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 28.—Special to the Decatur Democrat.—Announcements of new educational movies for state distribution at cost are being sent this week to Adams county community organization heads. The services outlined include motion pictures and lantern slides for school and community purposes, health charts and posters, and information on visual education problems, state poster contest, correspondence and residence courses in visual education, bulletin services, and illustrated lectures.

and the thousands of slides in the I. U. film library include: agriculture and country life, biography, civics, English literature, geography and travel, health, history, home economics, industrial geography, Latin, nature study and botany, Physiography, play and recreation, sculpture and art, Comedy and juvenile, news reels, official government war films, and many miscellaneous subjects.

Last year I. U. films were shown before audiences of school and community groups aggregating 700,000. Thirty-six Indiana county agents were enrolled for I. U. educational films and slides.

Norway Speculating On Marriage Of Prince Olav

By Olav Myre
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

Oslo (United Press)—Norway's royalty and smart social set is much interested this fall in the matrimonial intentions of Crown Prince Olav who is one of the most dashing and handsome of Europe's eligible princes.

Prince Olav was 24 last July. Every one hopes that before long he will choose a bride but just whom he will choose is a matter that is subject for much speculation in Norway.

When the Swedish Prince Carl, a son of the late King Oscar II of Sweden, came to Norway last autumn with his two daughters, it was believed that one of these princesses would be chosen. This speculation was given added impetus when the Crown Prince had himself photographed in full uniform with all his orders on his breast. Photographing of members of the Royal family is very uncommon in Norway.

Hopes were wrecked when Prince Carl and Princess Ingeborg, King Hakan's sister, returned home with their daughters unbetrothed.

More recently came the announcement that Prince Carl with his consort and daughters was again to visit with the Norwegian court. Many were again certain that the engagement would be announced, but there was another disappointment. After 8 days stay, Carl, Ingeborg and all three daughters left for home, without anything happening.

Rumour now asserts that these visits were merely intended to conceal a not confirmed plan, which is said to be an alliance between the Norwegian Crown Prince and the Swedish Crown Prince's daughter Ingrid, a young and beautiful princess.

Crown Prince Olav is very popular in Norway. He is expert in skiing, rowing and sailing. He will be the first Norwegian King after the lapse of 500 years, who will speak the unadulterated Norwegian language.

In Norway it would be hailed with unmitigated satisfaction if he should choose a Swedish princess as his consort. It would further strengthen the good relations existing between Norway, Sweden and Denmark.

His father, King Haakon VII, who in 1905, was elected king of Norway by plebiscite of the Norwegian people, is son of the late King of Denmark Frederik VIII. The Prince's mother, Queen Maud, is a daughter of the British King, Edward VII.

Peasant, 121 Years Old,
Is Professional Beggar

Chernovitz, Rumania (United Press).—Early to bed and early to rise makes a man healthy but not necessarily wealthy or wise, according to the experience of Charles Petz who lives in the Bukovian village of Ruszinszko. Petz born in 1805, is 121 years old. He is believed locally to be the oldest man in Europe. Although married three times, he has survived both his wives and children.

This super-centenarian attributes his longevity to the fact that he never drank alcohol that he smokes very little and that he retires each night at eight o'clock and rises at five. By profession he is a beggar.

Small Villages And Schools Set Many Fads
And Styles For Women

By Hedda Hoyt
(Written for the United Press)
New York (United Press)—New

York can not be blamed, or praised, for setting startling styles and fads for American youths and flappers. It's the small villages and schools far away from this style center that instigate unusual styles which flourish for a time and are then replaced by other novelties without ever reaching New York.

A girl's school in the South introduced the flapper vogue for puppy warmers, the little woolen half-socks which were worn over nude stockings last Winter. This vogue never reached the east. Galoshes were worn in Detroit two years before they found their way to New York. Yellow oiled slickers began as a fad with Eastern college girls.

A little village in Vermont is now sponsoring golf shorts or running pants for women golfers. Golf knickers are regarded as old-fashioned in this village. The shorts are very short, according to reports, the leg being bare, except for socks, which extend but a few inches above the ankle. West Coast college towns and resorts are also favoring the golf short. It is said.

Half-cuts of individual type are also confined to certain localities. Women of Western and Southern states wear, as a rule, longer bobs than do Easterners. In some districts long hair is quite as popular as bobbed hair.

The young lady from Tulsa, Oklahoma, who was voted the prettiest girl in America at Atlantic City last week wore straight long hair parted in the middle and rolled in braided buns over her ears. This style was novel to the judges to sleek boyish or fully corled bobs. Doubtless before long we shall find this mode of dressing the hair reflected in some of the girl's colleges outside of New York.

Many a mode starts and ends in New York. Out-of-town buyers concentrate their buying activities upon the types of women in their various localities.

When they are afraid of a New York style, they will not accept it and New Yorkers are just as panicky about accepting a style that has its beginning out on the Pacific Coast or in the South. Fads are merely the self-expression of a locality.
