An appeal is made to every parent in every township to cooperate as much as possible with the township chairman. But Ford does not think Automobile production has reached the saturation point and there were indications today that he was almost ready for the fight to begin. There were, also, unconfirmed reports that General Motors will counter with a lighter car than any it now produces as soon as Ford announces his plans.

WIFE ACCUSED OF POISONING MATE

Mrs. Margaret Smith, Of Liberty Indicted For Murder Of Her Husband

Liberty, Ind., July 30.—(United Press)—The death of George Smith, 54, well to do farmer, under circumstances that appeared strange to authorities today had brought about arrest and indictment of his widow, Mrs. Margaret Smith, 52, on a charge of first degree murder.

The indictment alleges Smith died of arsenic administered to him by his wife. The death occurred at their home near here June 9, 1926.

Traces of arsenic were found in the stomach, physicians who examined the internal organs reported.

Dr. W. H. McCreary, of Liberty, who attended Smith, received anonymous letters regarding Smith after the latter's death. They referred, the physician said, to a young woman with whom Smith was said to have been friendly. Mrs. Smith also received letters in the same handwriting.

County authorities charged that Mrs. Smith was the author of the "poison pen" letters, but she denies it.

Six months before his death, Smith took out a life insurance policy for $7,500, giving a note in payment. An aunt of Mrs. Smith whose name was not given, was said to have taken up the note.

After Smith died, his farm in Harrison township was sold by the widow for $17,160. She has been living in Liberty since then.

It is the desire of those interested to make each affair so delightful that similar programs can be carried forward next year with afternoon parties at least twice a month. Several other affairs have been announced for the club, which is now a very busy and popular place.

THE PLOW AID

The new attachment that conditions the furrow slice as the plowing is being done. It is three blades at the end of the mold board that cut, turn and otherwise conditions the soil so it holds moisture, releases plant food early, eliminates airpockets, in fact its work more than equals a double discing which is the verdict of thousands of users and it does it the right way, at the right time and with out extra attention or draft. I have the distribution of the Plow Aid in Adams Co., and want a few local agents, come in and see them, thousands to sell. Farmers don't miss using them in your next plowing, you will be glad. Get a circular explaining all.

AUTO HITS BOY RIDING BICYCLE

Fort Wayne Boy Is Injured When Hit By Car Driven By M. Scheumann

Louis Sorg, 10, of Fort Wayne, was struck, but not seriously injured by an automobile driven by Marlin Scheumann of north of this city. The accident occurred yesterday afternoon on Lafayette street, Fort Wayne. The lad was riding a bicycle and he darted out from behind a load of hay, and Mr. Scheumann was unable to stop his car.

Mr. Scheumann was exonerated of all blame for the accident. Clark Ciever, of south of this city, was in the car directly behind Mr. Scheumann, and he picked the boy up and carried him to a nearby house. The boy was later removed to the Methodist hospital where it was learned he was not seriously injured. He received a bad cut on the face and several minor bruises.

The boy was later removed to his home on Southerland street in Fort Wayne. Mr. Scheumann was not driving his car fast, and was able to stop immediately after striking the boy. He was not held by police, when he reported the accident.

Ohio Man Acquitted On Larceny Charge At Berne

Berne, July 30.—George Becher, of Chattanooga, Ohio, was found not guilty of petit larceny when tried in the court of Chris Stengel, justice of the peace here Friday afternoon. Homer Debolt, of Jefferson township, the prosecuting witness, alleged that Becher took a half ton of hay from a plot of ground belonging to Debolt.

It developed at the trial that Debolt had purchased his land at commissioner's sale. John Heller owned a strip of land adjoining it and had staked off the boundary line between the two tracts as near as he could estimate. Debolt cut his hay up to the line staked off by Heller, it was shown. In the meantime, the surveyor had established the exact line between the two tracts and Heller's tract did not extend over as far as Mr. Heller had thought. Mr. Heller told Mr. Becher to cut the hay on his tract and the latter did so, cutting the hay over to where Mr. Debolt had cut. Mr. Becher claimed that he did not know that the land had been surveyed and that Mr. Heller's tract did not extend that far.

Extra

You have, perhaps, applied these savings to your own farming problem as we went along ... and can see how your Fordson would pay its way ... and a profit besides.

Power farming represents the only solution to the low market price ... to raise your grain at enough under the market to force a profit. In California, American farmers, with the highest-paid farm labor in the world, are raising rice and selling it in China and Japan ... at a profit.

They're Doing It With Tractors

The average farm in America that is still using animal power is paying for a Fordson every year ... and still not getting it.

There's the whole story ... there are more than half a million Fordsons at work ... replacing at least two or more draft animals each!

Your place deserves a Fordson ... and to make the profit to which you are entitled, your place demands one.

We'll gladly come out and show you on your own farm some of the things of which you have read here. We'd like to have you try the Fordson yourself.
