"OLD IRONSIDES" TO MAKE FILM DEBUT IN FORT WAYNE SUNDAY

Sunday night, September 4, that grand old frigate, "Old Ironsides," will sail in the Shrine Auditorium, Fort Wayne, and bring with her a wealth of eye-filling sea-scapes and a tremendously thrilling sea battle harking back to the first glorious days of the American navy. Taking its beginning in the stirring scenes at the Philadelphia capital, when our patriots assembled to put an end to the outrages of the pirates of Tripoli, when the young nation, still bearing the scars of the Revolution, was roused by the cry, "Millions for defense but not one cent for tribute," the story sweeps on to the launching of the Constitution and the successful campaign which wiped the pirates from the harbor of Tripoli and made the seas safe for our merchantmen.

In the story, which takes a young sailor through the most thrilling part of the action, Wallace Beery, grimy and uncouth but altogether human, is the bos'n of the good ship Esther, and George Bancroft, almost as dirty and absolutely in character, is the master gunner of the Constitution. The two become cronies, and a more admirable, perfectly finished pair would be hard to find. The boy is played by Charles Farrell, a new face on the screen, and Esther Ralston is the girl for whom the sailor laid fights. For the battle scenes, James Cruze must be given ample credit for his masterful direction.

It is absolutely a stirring spectacle, as, in the magic of cinema night, "Old Ironsides" again plows the deep, again sails the sea to glorious victory.

The Fort Wayne engagement is for one week with daily matinees after Sunday. 1tx

Cost of Illness

Only an estimate as to how much is spent for doctors and drugs each year, is possible. Doctors' services, estimated on average income per doctor per year of $1,500, would total $220,000,000. Drugs, including patent medicines, amount to $500,000,000. Hospital maintenance and interest on hospital investment total $205,000,000.

WOMEN WORKERS ARE SEEKING NEW JOBS

Survey Shows They Are Looking for Variety.

Washington.—A growing tendency for women in industry to drift from job to job is found by ninety-seven economics students at Bryn Mawr, who reported on their own working experiences. The students who gave their own working histories were members of the Bryn Mawr summer school for women workers in industry. The results of the investigation have just been published in a report of the United States women's bureau.

Half of the students were less than twenty-six years old and over half of them had gone to work before they were sixteen years old. Over half had stuck to a job less than two years on an average. Dissatisfaction and the chance of better pay and better hours were the chief reasons cited for changing jobs voluntarily.

Many Changed Jobs.
"For example," says Prof. Amy Hewes, who directed the investigation, "one worker, who started in domestic service, changed to a job in a lamp factory. Leaving that, she worked successively in a noodle factory, a glass manufacturing concern, the lamp factory again and a battery factory. Next she tried domestic service with two different employers, returned to the lamp factory, and left it a third time to make linings in a casket factory."

The attempt to get away from the nerve-racking routine of one specialized, standardized task is a big factor back of such a working history, Professor Hewes shows.

Work Learned More Quickly.
The workers' relation to his job has been profoundly changed with the new organization of industry, Professor Hewes explains. In the old days of long apprenticeship and craftsmanship, a worker looked forward to a lifetime at a single trade. Now, however, a large number of workers fail to identify themselves with one trade. Change from job to job, and even from industry to industry is easy, for the work is specialized and in general can be learned quickly.

"A better understanding of the whole social and economic effect of the new rate of change and the shorter average employment is needed at the present time," she concludes. "Women, together with men, change jobs for reasons which have not been measured and with results which are not known. If it is found that frequent changes of employment are inevitable under modern industrial organization, then different methods of employment, management and different industrial relations and tactics from those now in vogue in many places will have to be worked out."

Finds Way to Utilize Neglected Cornstalk
New York.—Cornstalks, the largest single item of waste of America's largest industry, farming, have had their challenge answered not by a Hungarian, Dr. Bela Dornier, head of the laboratories of the Royal Hungarian railways, has recently come to this country with a process which he states is commercially practicable for the utilization of the stalks in the manufacture of paper, rayon, auto finishes and many other products for which wood pulp at present is the only satisfactory basis.

A number of New York capitalists have become interested in the possibilities of Doctor Dornier's method, and a prominent consulting chemist retained by them has reported favorably on it, after a series of large-scale tests.

It has long been known that cornstalk substance is chemically and physically suited for the needs now met only by wood pulp, but certain practical difficulties prevented the development of a stalk-pulp industry. One of the chief obstacles in processes hitherto tried has been the necessity for cutting out the hard cross-plates at the joints, which made too great an expense for commercial development.

In the Dornier process, however, the whole stalk is ground up, and it is claimed that the hard parts make no trouble in the later manufacturing stages.

New Anesthetic Used in Tests in Germany

Berlin.—The German medical world is watching experiments with a new anesthetic evolved in the laboratories of the German Dyestuffs federation, for which advantages over ether or chloroform are claimed.

The chemical composition of the preparation, known as E 107, is withheld for the time being. But its manner of working and effects upon the patient, both during the period of its potency and afterward, have been described by Prof. Ernst Unger, who with other prominent German physicians and surgeons has used it in numerous clinics after a series of experiments upon animals.

The anesthetic, introduced into the intestine, causes the patient to lose consciousness within five minutes and come fully under the influence after seven or eight minutes have elapsed. Professor Unger asserted in a lecture that the after-effects, in a majority of cases, are declared to be nil, there being no stomach sickness, while the system absorbs the anesthetic so quickly that within an hour no traces are left.
