were possible to heal all manner of diseases in the way in which Jesus did, if it were not necessary for any man to carry a weakness in the flesh, would that be as great a blessing for the world as we might first suppose? "Lord, that I might receive my sight," has been the cry of all ages, and Jesus Christ is the only One that can answer such a cry. Vision is the supreme need of life. The lack of vision is always the primal cause of men's mistakes, and a growing vision has always resulted in a growing life. Every man whose physical sight is normal, who is brought into a lucid contact with the world round about him by the proper functioning of the optic nerves should be thankful to God for one of life's greatest blessings. But each one has a capacity to see with a further sweeping and a more comprehensive vision than is possible for the physical eyes; the perceptive ability of our spiritual nature. There are men and women today whose physical eye is perfect, but who because of a lack of an inner vision of life are plunging headlong into moral bankruptcy. On the other hand we had a Fanny Crosby who had no physical eyesight at all, but who had such a glorious vision of truth in her inner life that she was able to leave to posterity hundreds of the most beautiful gospel hymns. Jesus' mission upon this world was to help men to see with spiritual power the glory of the Father in Heaven and the heart-nature of their fellowmen. "Man has had difficulty in his relationship with his fellow beings. Sin brought envy, strife and even murder into the human heart. Therefore Jesus spoke at length and in detail about the social relationships of life. Among all the sages of old and the religious leaders of all times, Jesus has offered to the world the only practical solution of all the problems of society. This solution is found deeper than in the exercise of tolerance and fair play. The solution is found in the recognition of a universal equality of the origin, purpose and destiny of all men. God is the Father of all men. In Him is my origin, but also the origin of my bitterest enemy. To glorify Him must be my life's supreme purpose. To go again to Him is life's most blissful goal. The eyes of the blind man saw for the first time the great social world of his fellow beings. What did he do? He went among them and glorified God. As we look upon this great world with its complex and problematic society, our prayer should be, 'Lord that I may receive my sight.' The whole world was lost in the darkness of sin. The light of the world is Jesus. Like sunshine at noonday His glory shone in. The light of the world is Jesus. Come to the light, 'tis shining for thee; Sweetly the light has dawned upon me. Once I was blind, but now I can see; 'The light of the world is Jesus.' There will be no service tonight, but on Tuesday night there will be services at 7:30 o'clock with the Rev. Mr. Ruppnow preaching.

FORMER WREN GIRL IN AFRICA

Miss Mabel C. Snyder Is Serving As Missionary Among Natives

L. E. Snyder, of near When, Ohio, called Saturday evening to renew his subscription to the Daily Democrat and when given a needle case, said he was glad to get it as the one given him several years ago is now doing duty in the interior of Africa, where his daughter, Miss Mabel C. Snyder, is a missionary among one of the wildest tribes.

Miss Snyder, who was county nurse in Van Wert county, Ohio, went to Africa a year ago last October, where she was assigned to Taminahun, Sierra Leone, several hundred miles in the interior. She is getting along famously and likes her work. The tribe is especially loyal to her because of her knowledge of medicine and her ability as a nurse and they have built her a frame house, a sod medicine room and a church. She is preacher, teacher and doctor and is kept busy. The country is wild and it is not uncommon to see tigers, leopards and other animals of the jungles. Four boys have been assigned as her assistants and are being trained to carry on the work. It is thirty miles from her hut to any white persons and twelve miles to the postoffice and, since there is no means of transportation, she must make the trips on foot. She walks thirty-five miles in one day, while the trip to the postoffice is just a jaunt for them.

Miss Snyder is planning to start a growing experiment station soon and is securing seeds from this country and from England to try out for garden truck and flowers. The weather is extremely warm at certain seasons and, during the heat of the day, they must stay in their mud houses, but during the rainy season it gets quite cool and covers are necessary at night. Her parents hear from her each two weeks and anxiously await each letter, filled with new and interesting experiences.

and an automatic alarm starts sounding in order that help can be called in case of a robbery.

There are many features on the cash drawer, one of the chief ones being that in case the cashier had his hand in the drawer at the time of the release of the signal the drawer would close only to his hand, until it was removed and then quickly close the rest of the way.

After the burglar release has once been used on the drawer, it is necessary to unlock the top of the drawer and release another lever before the drawer can again be opened. Another feature of the cash drawer is that a series of drawers can be operated simultaneously. If a robber enters a bank anyone can press the alarm and all the cash drawers close at once.

Mr. Howell already has received considerable correspondence from several cash register companies in regards to his patent and one concern has urged him to name his price on the invention.

Many local people regard the patent as the beginning of a new era in protecting large sums of money. The patent was secured through the local law firm of Lenhart, Heller and Schurgen and that concern's Washington attorney, Clarence O'Neal.
