Files Cross Complaint

In the case of Paul Schulte et al vs. R. W. Craig, the defendant filed an answer in general denial and a cross-complaint, demanding judgment for $9,000 damages. Mr. Craig alleges that on April 20, 1927, he entered into a written contract with Mr. Schulte to superintend and manage the Decatur Country Club, to collect the dues of the members, for a period of two years, etc., and that he had carried out his part of that contract. He alleges further that Mr. Schulte violated the contract on December 24, 1927, when he ordered Craig to vacate the premises. Craig states that he would have received $4,500 per year for his services according to the terms of the contract. Attorney H. M. DeVoss is counsel for the plaintiff.
