WALTERS TELLS ABOUT ATTACK BY HIGHWAYMEN

finger, went through his brief case, took his coat, hat and revolver, and then made the remark that "dead men tell no tales." With that, one of the bandits hit him on the forehead and on the back of the head with the butt end of the big revolver, while the other man struck him in the stomach, knocking him unconscious. Mr. Walters does not remember whether he rolled down the incline into the ditch or if the men threw him into the ditch.

About 10:30 o'clock p. m., Decatur time, Mr. Walters regained conscious-ness and was able to climb out of the ditch. He was covered with mud and water, his head being the only part of his body not submerged. He was able to drive back to Paulding and, when he reached the hotel, fainted. The police and sheriff of Paulding county were notified and the search for the bandits started.

The officers found Mr. Walters's coat and revolver down the road, but did not pick up his hat. They were unable to apprehend the highway band-its. It is believed that the men drove into Fort Wayne.

Mr. Walters stated that he could easily identify the men. He said that he had noticed them in Antwerp, O., a few days before, attending a street carnival. A warrant is out for their arrest.

Mr. Walters said they robbed him of $83 in cash that he knew he car-ried and possibly $77 more, which he collected from a customer. He is not sure if he collected the amount, but thinks that he did and says he will not know for sure until the company gets in touch with the customer and finds out if the man has a receipt for the amount.

Physicians have not found any in-ternal injuries and believe that Mr. Walters will get along nicely. He does not suffer from a headache, the only complaint about his condition be-ing from a sick stomach and a pain in the back. He will be confined to his bed for a few days.

Omer C. Deselms, 60, an optomet-rist, ended his life by taking poison in his office at Logansport. Failing business, which caused despondency, was given as the cause for the sui-cide.

Howard Taylor, 37, who worked near Fort Wayne for a power com-pany, was killed when he came in contact with an electrically charged wire.

Wesley Spencer, 52, Boone county farmer, shot himself to death, police say.

Italy To Hold Investigation

Rome, July 23.—(U.P.)—Stung by world wide criticisms of the flight of the Polar dirigible Italia, Premier Benito Mussolini today replied to critics and incidentally revealed his intention to hold a complete investi-gation of the disaster.

The inquiry will be held in Italy by Italians, Mussolini said after all hu-manly possible search is made for further survivors of the wrecked ship.

FIVE DROWN AT ST. MARYS, OHIO

St. Marys, Ohio, July 23—Five per-sons three women and two men, were drowned in Lake St. Marys, near Ide-wild park, seven miles west of here Saturday afternoon, when the boat in which they were riding capsized in a-bout 20 feet of water, nearly a mile from shore.

The dead are Celesta Klein; Fawn Marie Klein, 27; Mrs. Henry Homen; Willie Corl, 30, and Henry Homan, All resided at Middletown, Ohio.

The five persons, together with another man, were riding in a motor boat when a rain storm came up. The wiring on the motor became wet and the motor refused to run. An attempt was made to row the boat to shore, but the cars were broken. The storm grew worse and in the confusion the boat capsized. One man swam to shore, af-ter a futile attempt to rescue other members of the party.

PROPOSED ROUND TRIP FLIGHT TO U. S. UNDER WAY

Fregate as it descended. They had been awaiting the plane all night. With them were Capt. Frank T. Court-nov and E. W. Hosmer, wealthy Cana-dians, who are awaiting here to re-sume their seaplane flight to New York.

It was rumored that La Fregate ar-rived with but one of its two motors functioning. This could not be con-firmed, as Paris and his companions went at once aboard the Ville D'ys to rest.

Two hours after their arrival, me-chanics were refuelling the plane. It was believed that the biplane will re-sume its flight as soon as weather conditions are good, and will go as had been planned by way of Bermuda, where another French gunboat is waiting as a base ship.

Lieutenant Paris is one of the youngest of the French air heroes. He won fame and citations when he was sent to the French war in Mor-occo against the Riffs as a leader of the Goliath bombardment squadron.

The French ministry of Marine is backing the present flight. Original-ly it had been planned to send two seaplanes, the second to be command-ed by Commandant Rene Guilbaud. The latter, however, was sent to the relief of the Noble expedition and is lost with the Roald Amundsen expedi-tion.

Paris had made careful prepar-ations. He took his machine on sev-eral test flights over France. Last week he was ordered to make the trip and flew to Brest.

When he received favorable weath-er reports yesterday afternoon he im-mediately ordered his plane fueled, received an official farewell from Vice Admiral Vavasseur and then with his two companions set forth.

He flew steadily and regularly, made reports of the success of the flight. The messages were laconic—merely stating all was well and that good speed forward was being made.

Lieutenant Paris does not intend to waste much time in Horta. He will re-tuel from a French navy tanker here and then as soon as he receives favorable reports will leave again.

The entire flight from Brest to the United States will be about 4,450 miles. A non-stop return trip has been sanctioned, but the final decision

Paris' plane—a seaplane of the bi-plane model—has eight gasoline tanks in which can be carried 5,308 litres of petrol. The tanks are placed under the wings. It has two radios, using the call letters FMCP, which in the air have a radius of 800 kilometers, and stationary, 400 kilometers.
