OLD HOME WEEK

September 10th to 15th - Six Big Days and Nights

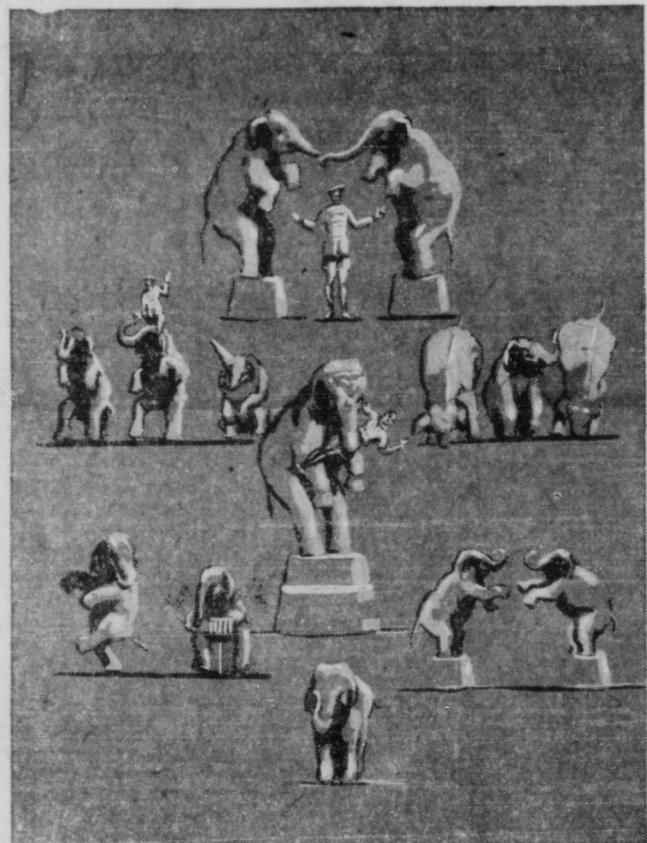

THE ETZ DUO

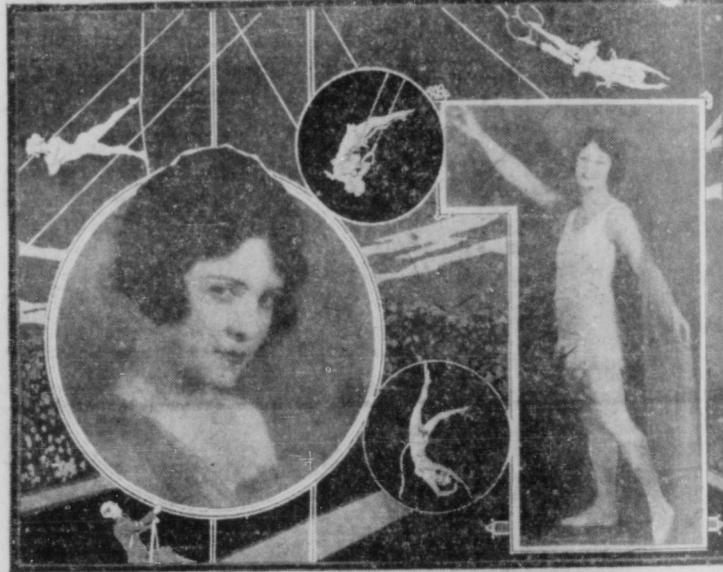

The man and woman in the act, do a very clever double trapeze act. The work is very fast and snappy, and presented in finished style. Their breakaway finish trick is absolutely sensational, showing the woman being caught by her ankle instead of by her hands. This is a wonderful feat, and is bound to excite the audience to admiration and excitement. They also do a very thrilling combination of aerial cradle and "Roman Rings," in which is featured a cloud swing that is a sheer headlong plunge of fifty feet.

O. E. Ruth, Balloon Ascension with Lady Parachute jumper and double parachute drops. Ascensions every day.

Stockert and Barnette with "Ship Travel Air" will give two exhibition flights over the city each day and carry patrons around or over the city, ten minute trips, at a charge of $3.00 a person.

If you want to give the children a treat (the sort of a treat that you yourself would enjoy) don't let them miss this Elephant act. The elephant may be a little deliberate in its movements, but the elephants which appear as a headliner in the bill of free attractions during Old Home Week, will prove that the animal is not clumsy, and that it is capable of being trained to perform in a manner even beyond the expectations of the audience. There are three in this group, which is billed as Walsh's Junior Elephants, and the feats they exhibit, are truly wonderful. Going through their repertoire with but little prompting.

A BIG FAVORITE everywhere in past seasons and duplicating those honors again at fairs this fall, is Miss Hetty Cole, who will be seen at the Old Home Week here. Miss Cole is an aerialist of great renown. All her life she has devoted her talents to entertaining large audiences and has her act so perfected that it is only one of its kind presented anywhere this year. For Miss Cole is not only an accomplished aerial artist but works on the rings high in the air as well, and presents what is known as an iron jaw act, wherein she does a number of thrilling tricks while hanging by her teeth in mid air.
