Says Bank Committed Financial Suicide By Erecting Costly Home

Noblesville, Ind., Sept. 27.—(U.P.)—“Financial suicide” of the former National City bank of Indianapolis was committed when its officers erected a sixteen-story building costing nearly $2,000,000. Attorney Ralph Kane declared in circuit court here in the opening of a $1,000,000 suit by stockholders against officers.

Charging mismanagement of the bank, Attorney Kane charged directors made loans of its funds, knowing that its cash was below reserve bank requirements.

Love the Basis

Love is at the basis of all fine work. Love is the one inspiration of genius. Indeed, it is love that causes genius, and not, as the untrue saying is, “an infinite capacity for taking pains.” There must be the painstaking, of course, but love lies back of it. If one has the power of loving greatly, one has the power of doing great work, and not otherwise.—Amos R. Wells.

Deadly Plant

The coyotillo plant is found in our Southwest and in Mexico. Animals eating it show no effect for days, or sometimes weeks. A paralysis of the limbs then develops and a lingering death follows.

KNITTING MILL WORKER

Kidnapped In Wisconsin

Kenosha, Wis., Sept. 27.—(U.P.)—Harold Henderson, Allen “A” Knitting company worker, was carried away in an automobile last night by four masked men while his two sisters stood by, unable to interfere.

The Allen “A” company’s labor troubles have been marked by 18 bombings in six months and slippings and gun fights almost daily, but the abduction of Henderson was the first kidnapping.

Marie and Olga Henderson, sisters of the victim, said their automobile was forced into a ditch on a country road by four men, wearing handkerchiefs over their faces and carrying sawed off shotguns. In the scuffle that followed Marie was struck over the head with the butt of a revolver and Olga was bruised and scratched.

Deputies, greatly augmented since the start of the trouble here, were searching all parts of Kenosha county today for Henderson and the kidnappers.

Prize Hunting Story Offered for Record

The world’s record for tail stories is held by the rangers of our national parks, according to the authors of the book about the parks, “Oh, Ranger!” Their prize creation as quoted in “Oh, Ranger!” is as follows:

“A ranger doing patrol duty on the boundary line, having run out of supplies and being in immediate danger of starving, grabbed his trusty old gun for which only one shell remained, and, going beyond the park line, maneuvered around carefully, hunting diligently so as to be sure to get the best results with the one shot. Finally he came upon a brace of quail perched in a cluster of brush close enough together for both to be bagged at one shot. Carefully raising the gun, he fired. Imagine his great joy when on running to the spot to pick up his quail he found that he had killed six more, which were on the other side of the bush and which he had not seen. Hearing a great commotion out in a small lake near by, he saw a big buck deer that had become frightened at the sound of his shot and had run into the lake and bogged down in the mud. Dropping the quail, he hurried out into the lake and cut the buck’s throat. Carrying the deer out, he sank down into the mud himself up over his boot tops. Upon reaching the shore, he sat down and pulled the boots off to pour out the water and found in them a dozen nice fish. Placing the quail, fish and deer together so that they could be more easily carried, he was struggling to get the load on his shoulders. This put a great strain on his suspender buttons, and one of these flew off with such force that it killed a rabbit a hundred yards in the rear.”

Worker Meant Well, but He Spoiled Show

When the women of a Glendale church prepared for their annual dramatics a miniature log cabin was one of the stage properties necessary, says the Los Angeles Times. An influential member obtained the loan of a load of rough slabs with which to build the cabin, and they were delivered and placed in a neat pile just outside the church.

Husbands and men friends had agreed to gather prior to the presentation to construct the scenery. When the first of the group arrived he was astonished to hear a power saw in action, and after greetings were exchanged, the volunteer worker explained:

“I was passing and saw this pile of wood, and, being a church man myself, I thought it would help the church out if I sawed it up with my power outfit.”

Not Quite Plain Enough

A fellow-scribbler tells us that one recent evening, while waiting for a car somewhere in the wilds of Beachview, a mammy who looked as though she had just stepped off the side of a buckwheat flour box came up to him and inquired:

“Why, yes,” he replied, and extracting his gold ticker from his hip—that is, his vest pocket—he held up the face of the watch, which indicated that it was a quarter of nine.

“Mistah, would you mind speakin’ a lit’l louder. I’s somewhat hard o’hearin’”—Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.

Famous Early Mansion

Marshall hall was the colonial seat of the Marshalls. It was originally a tract of 200 acres purchased direct from the Piscataway Indians by William Marshall I. The old mansion was built by William Marshall II a half century before Mount Vernon. The property remained in the Marshall family for six generations and extended its boundaries to include 1,000 acres. In 1866, through Civil war misfortune, the family lost it. Thomas Hanson Marshall lived there in General Washington’s time and served under Washington in the Revolutionary war. He married Rebecca Dent. Four of his six children were living during the Revolutionary war.

Varying Size of Bergs

The size of icebergs varies. They may be 100 or more feet high with crests or minarets from 200 to 300 feet above the base, which may be hundreds of yards in length. In the Kennedy channel, Greely followed an iceberg which was estimated to be 15 miles long, over 100 feet thick and of unknown breadth. A huge iceberg sighted by the bark Emil Julius in 1884 towered about 1,700 feet above the sea. Only about one-eighth or one-ninth of the mass lies above the water.

Her Days of Rest

A suburban woman has a colored day worker whose accomplishment of washing and ironing all in one day is a constant cause of boasting to the envious neighbors. One day she comiserated her marvel on the exigencies of fortune that drove her, the mother of 12 children, out to work by the day. To her surprise, the piteous one repudiated the day.

“Hard on me, ma’am? Not a bit of it. Why, the days I go out are the only chances at all that I gets to rest myself.”—New York Sun.

Since Earliest Times Gamblers Have Diced

Dicing is not unknown in Bangkok, and it is interesting to reflect it goes as far back as do records of history. Since the dawn of human life, dice have accompanied mankind in its upward march; from the knucklebones he tossed at the entrance to his cave, giving different values to the four easily recognizable sides; through the dotted variety whose opposite sides must always total seven, to the poker dice whose quintet of aces, so seldom appearing, haunts the dreams of the modern gambler. By their aid Greeks whiled away the more “cushy” spells during the siege of Troy. Casting their dice from conceal breakers they poetically called the lucky throw of three “6s” “aphrodite” and the less weeme three “1s” they named “the dog.” But, needless to say, the fertile brain of Asia had devised these playthings centuries before their rattle was ever heard in Europe. Sad to think of the immemorial turpitude of man! Loaded dice date back as far as history; and specimens with which wicked legionaries of ancient Rome cheated their simpler comrades in arms are on view in many museums.
