The bees of Adams county have been inspected and we are now all ready for winter.

The popular indoor sport this week is fishing for your favorite radio station and making up a new log. Many of them have been switched to such an extent that its almost like starting in new to locate them.

While they are checking up on the accuracy of the straw votes they might explain why every one taken in Indiana showed the election of Dailey for governor, yet he was beaten by nearly 50,000 votes.

Secretary Wilbur of the navy department is out now for a larger navy, following the president and so we will probably have a number of new ships, thus keeping the yards where such craft is built going along at a profit.

The new emperor of Japan got his job much easier than did Mr. Hoover, but he missed all the fun of a real campaign. He would give half his kingdom for a reception such as Al Smith had on a good many occasions during the recent campaign.

More than seven hundred thousand homes, destroyed during the World War have been rebuilt, it is announced. That is wonderful, but it again reminds us of the horrors and needless losses. If we hadn't had the war, it would not have been necessary to rebuild the homes.

The opener of the festival week was a happy one and each program for the week is a good one that you will enjoy. Be sure to attend and get a smile on your face again. Quit looking so serious, everything is alright and the old world is wagging right along.

County officers over at Danville, Indiana, seem to have decided to get theirs and get out. A month ago the county clerk was found short and sent to prison. Now the auditor is gone and a check of his books reveals the fact that he has been helping himself to the school funds.

If you can imagine any worse experience than rolling around on the Atlantic ocean in a life boat or on a raft, we would like to know what it would be. If those who had the recent experience when the liner Vestris sank have not got grey hair it's not likely they ever will have.

Miss Lillian Ramsey, 18, a student at Oberlin, Ohio, bet her friend, Will Robinson, that she could sit on a railroad track, ahead of approaching train, longer than he. She won the bet but is in the hospital. The engine side-swiped her as she leaped. Education does not all come from books.

Already they are mentioning candidates for governor and president and other officers. Its a little early. Better wait and see what develops. In this country things often occur which change politics over night and four years is too far away to even guess against.

TODAY'S CHUCKLE

Ulster, Ireland Nov. 14—(U.P.)—Hens given only water laid 27 eggs but hens given diluted wine laid 173 eggs in the same time. This disclosure was made by Colonel Wood, a prominent member of the Ulster "wet" party.

with such a joke? If this man was guilty of assault he should certainly have been more severely punished and if he was not, he certainly should not have been dragged to court.

Ralph Uptike, defeated candidate for congress, is demanding a recount of the vote at Indianapolis, though Louis Ladiow took him by about six thousand votes. Seems as though a fellow who got trimmed that badly when his party carried the county by thirty-four thousand, would just sneak off some where and hide, but not Uptike.

Bank bandits will probably not fool around the Farmers Bank at Ohio City very much after the word is passed along, that B. F. Hoffman, the cashier, has nerve and a trusty shot gun. He got hold of it yesterday and he sure did make a couple of hold-up guys break all records getting out of his way. Usually the bandits are cowards except when they have the drop on you.

We are suspicious of those fellows like Brisbane and Rogers who are already declaring that there is no need of an election in 1932. Looks to us like its propaganda and not the smartest kind. Even men as wise as they admit themselves cannot foresee what will happen or what conditions will be in four years. One thing is sure, times must improve or there will be a red hot election.

President Coolidge has been invited to speak at the sesquicentennial celebration to be held at Vincennes, Indiana, next year, for which event elaborate preparations are being made with the cash being furnished by Knox county, the state of Indiana and a million from the federal treasury. It promises to be one of the greatest affairs ever held in the middle west, marking the 150th anniversary of the capture of Fort Sackville by George Rogers Clark.

While all those aboard the Vestris which sunk at sea the other day, had all the thrill they cared for, the one who no doubt got a thousand-fold does of it was Mike O'Loughlin, the chief radio operator. He stuck to his transmitter until the ship had turned over on its side and even then was sending the S. O. S. call through the air in efforts to secure help that would save the other 338 persons aboard. His was as brave an act as was ever recorded and he deserves due credit and a medal of honor.

Governor Al Smith again proved last evening that he was as advertised, "honest, able and courageous," when he addressed millions over the radio, urged a continuance of the democratic party fight and constructive support of the Hoover administration. He admitted his disappointment but nevertheless spoke cheerfully and hopefully of the future both for his party and his state. "There stands a man," one able to take the hard licks of fate along with the good strokes and take them with his head up and his mind clear. He analyzed the recent election and showed that a change of ten per cent of the vote would have likewise have changed the results, called attention to the fact that nearly fifteen million voters favored the democratic platform and urged a continuance of effort, pointing out the need for an active and effective minority party. He also reminded the people of America that Mr. Hoover is not the president of the republican party, but of these United States and as such is entitled to a fair chance and to the honest cooperation of all the people. His address was sound and as always when he speaks filled with good common sense.

E. H. Sothorn At Shrine

E. H. Sothorn, one of the leading actors of this generation, will give a recital of scenes from three of his leading successes, in the Shrine Auditorium Fort Wayne, Tuesday night Nov. 20.

Sothorn's recital will offer a brief survey of conditions governing the writing of the plays he presents, of anecdotes in connection with the presentation of these dramas in the theatre, and a summary to the plots. From "Macbeth" he will recite the scene wherein King Duncan is murdered. He will give a passage from "The Merchant of Venice" and some remarks on the romantic drama, with special reference to Justin McCarthy's "If I Were King", including the recital of several poems of Villon and Rudyard Kipling's ballad "To The True Romance."

No other actor of the present day stage has by experience and study the equipment to present such a program as Sothorn has. For forty years Sothorn has appeared before the public. His career began with the decline of the so-called "Palmy days" of the theatre; it covers the romantic era of playwriting, and it extends into the present age when the stage seems at the parting of the ways.

With Julia Marlow, Sothorn acted in ten Shakespearean dramas. "Macbeth" was one of the most striking productions Sothorn and Marlowe made. They shed new light on this tragedy by their manner of stressing the great love story which brought about the destruction of the chief protagonists of the drama.

"The Merchant of Venice" has been objected to by certain sections of the Jewish race and has been banned from study in some states. Sothorn has chosen this comedy as a part of his program because he feels this agitation is entirely misdirected and unfair. That Shakespeare intended Shylock as a symbol of the Jewish race has no foundation in the text. He is a Jew, not the Jew.

"If I Were King" has been acted hundreds of times by Sothorn. It has come to be a semi-classic of the theatre and is one of the best examples of romantic drama as opposed to the classic and modern schools.

Peace Will Be Made With Senator Norris

Washington Nov. 13—(U.P.)—Returning republican leaders indicated today no punitive action would be taken in the senate to discipline Senators Norris of Nebraska and Blaine of Wisconsin who bolted the Hoover-Curtis presidential ticket.

while few desired to go on public record regarding their sentiments, they privately expressed the opinion that there would be no resurrection of the movement which ostracized Senators Ladd, LaFollette, Brookhart and Frazier for their bolts in the 1924 election.

"They have been punished enough already," one of the leaders said. Norris said he did not care particularly what was done to him. He championed the cause of the ousted ones in 1924. "Let them go ahead and do anything they want to," he told the United Press today.

If Norris should be stripped of his party garb, he would lose the chair-
