The Latest Bow of Fashion Is a Social Success

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—(U.P.)—Bows, bows, bows, fashion seems never to weary of them. Still they come, and are made to play many parts useful as well as ornamental. There are for instances the fur bows, appearing unexpectedly at the back of some of the smartest coats, and fur bows or velvet ones have returned to perch on what is left of a hat brim, or when there is no brim at all, on the crown. Of course there are bows on evening gowns, and bowknot motifs, chez Lanvin, while not strictly speaking new remain to decorate and delight.

Now reports come from Paris that a smart little vogue has started there, the source not exactly known unless it is that Louiseboulanger launched it in her frock with bow scarf neckline. At any rate, many smart women in Paris have adopted the satin scarf which ties in a bow at the front. It is sometimes worn as a stock, wrapped first about the throat and then tied in a bow at the front; more often it is simply tied in a simple bow at the front, or it may be worn with long streamers.

This accessory is especially popular with the tailored suit or with a simple woolen dress, worn, perhaps, with a fur jacket. These scarfs are made of the softest satin and vary in width from six to ten inches.

Here is an item which is distinctly worthwhile as a Christmas suggestion, coming as it does stamped with the approval of Paris, and a style which has a more or less general appeal.

The scarf, since its return to popular acclaim several years ago renews itself each season and manages by lure of color and cleverness of design to hold attention. There are varied types including Chanels tricots and some light weight tweeds, all of which effectively complete the modern costume.

SHAKESPEARE CLUB STUDIES "ARGENTINA"

"Argentina" was the subject which Mrs. D. Heller discussed at the meeting of the Shakespeare Club held at the home of Mrs. A. D. Suttles, Wednesday afternoon. The very interesting subject was divided in two parts the "Process of Settlement—Labor", and "Argentina, the Most Modern of South American Countries". Before the lesson discussion, a very interesting map talk was given by Mrs. John Tyndall, who pointed out the most important places of South America, and gave a good background for the study of the afternoon. Mrs. Heller mentioned three great heroes of the land, and the lives of each were read in detail as follows: Sam Martin, the George Washington of South America, by Mrs. C. D. Teeple a short sketch of the life of William Wheelwright, by Mrs. S. D. Beavers; and Sar-Mento, by Mrs. Cathrina, was reported by Mrs. E. B. Adams, and Mrs. A. D. Suttles read a paper on the National Sugar Bowl, Wheat Lands of the Parana, by Mrs. C. Peterson, and Pests and Locusts by Mrs. J. L. Kocher, furnished a very interesting agricultural and biological study of the country. "The United States Airplane on a Good Will Tour" was read by Mrs. John Niblick and pointed out the feeling of the two nations, so close together. There will be no meeting of the Club until after the Thanksgiving season.

An interested and attentive crowd gathered at the Methodist church auditorium last evening where they listened to a fine message from the speaker of the second of the series of Win My Chum Week exercises. Louie Billing of Fort Wayne was the speaker of the evening. The services begin at seven o'clock and close promptly at eight o'clock each evening. A record
