One Bluffton Bank Is Expected To Open Soon

Bluffton, Ind., Feb. 16.—(U.P.)—Wells county's banking crisis may be eased early next week when the Union Savings and trust company is expected to open its doors. Five financial institutions in the county closed during the past week.

A mass meeting at which all parts of the county were represented, was held here last night, several speakers expressing confidence in the banks. The Union Trust and Savings closed as a precautionary measure, after a run had started. The three others were at Liberty Center, Petroleum and Uniondale.

At the meeting there were indications that the Liberty Center and Uniondale banks also would re-open next week. Liquidation was reported in progress at Petroleum. The audit of the Wells county state bank has not been completed.

Girls from the third and fourth grade did the serving. Miss Eva Acker, assisted by the teachers at the South Ward, Mrs. H. L. Curtis, Miss Florence Magley and Miss Effie Patton, had charge of the arrangements for yesterday's successful gathering.
