NEWCOMERS IN TOURNAMENT FINALS

By Frank Getty,
UP Sports Editor.

Pebble Beach, Del Monte, Cal., Sept. 7.—(UP)—The amateur golf championship of the United States rests today upon the outcome of a 36-hole final match between Harrison R. Johnston, match between Harrison R. Johnston, Delwood, Minn., and Dr. O. F. Williams, Portland, Ore.

Neither has reached the final round of the annual tournament before, although each has made his mark in the annals of the rose and ancient pastime.

Fighting through a field rendered generally hopeful by the disappearance of Bobby Jones before the championship fairly was under way, Johnston and Williams overcame all opposition. Each, in his way, is a first class golfer, due for a title.

The final match of the championship, like all the other matches since the first round when Bobby was put out, was bound to be anti-climactic. Golf enthusiasts of this part of the world sensed the fact, and attendance was perhaps one-tenth what it would have been if the dethroned champion had been on hand.

Nevertheless there was a certain clamor to today's engagement due to the extreme popularity of one of the contestants. "Jimmie" Johnston had the gallery with him from the first drive to the last putt.

Johnston won through to the final round by defeating Francis Ouimet, open champion in 1913 and amateur titlist the following year, 6 up and 5 to play. "Doc" Williams gained his place in the final brackets by putting out Chandler Egan, who was national champion as long ago as 1904 and 1905.

The betting odds slightly favored the Oregonian. There was a feeling that "Doc" was too tough a golfer to match play for an opponent of Johnston's diffident disposition. Dr. Williams takes pride in coming from the great northwest, where men are men and 18-inch putts are not conceded.

During the past 20 years the pass has lived on football and introduced more open field work. It opened up the old, dangerous close play. Now it has become a reliable weapon of attack. With it a light-weight team can compete on even terms with a heavier eleven. It requires no little amount of training and is spectacular to see.

There are three kinds of passes used in the modern game of football. They are: the forward, the backward center and the lateral pass. The latter pass has become quite popular within the last few years although it is a comparatively old idea.

Our latest rule changes have complicated the work of the officials in the game, but have made things safe for the coach. Fumbling in passing is now protected. Complicated plays involving one of the three types of passes are now protected in case they fall in execution.

It takes a great deal of skill to be able to shoot the pigskin high, out of reach, and to the right player. The passer must work fast, pick out his man and throw the ball. A pass must be timed. If the catcher is running, the ball must be aimed a little ahead of him. Wind direction and velocity play an important part in the passing game.

A forward pass was once completed for a 70-yard gain, but this only happened once. Many passers, however, are able to throw the ball accurately 40 to 45 yards. Passing calls for cleverness on the part of the catcher as well as the thrower. Receiving the ball and tucking it away under the arm without a fumble is worth 50 per cent of a forward passing play.

The lateral pass is used mostly on end run plays. The ball is not passed more than two to ten yards, and is thrown underhanded in a low plane. The lateral passes usually are thrown backward to the runner.

The backward passing of the center has become an art. The pass must be highly timed and developed. The ball is thrown in much the same manner as it is in other passes.

Editor's note: Monday Page will discuss the run.)

SAMMY MANDELL IS EASY WINNER

Chicago, Sept. 7.—(UP)—Light-weight Champion Sammy Mandell has not "gone back" and he proved last night that he was right in his contention that his recent bad showing against Tony Canzoneri here merely was the result of an "off night."

Going into the ring against Luis Vicentini, a mere 7 to 5 favorite—something new in Sammy's career for ever since he won the title from Rocky Kansas he has been at least a 2 to 1 bet in all fights—Mandell showed the greatest left hand and the greatest all-around boxing ability any man has shown in a Chicago ring in a long time, if ever.

He literally was a machine, slugging if the other fellow wanted to slug and boxing if his opponent wanted to box. His left hand danced all over Vicentini's face and he was able to land his right almost at will. Chicago never has seen a left which could land as accurately and as fast as the one Mandell showed last night.

Sammy won all 10 rounds and won them easily. It is true that the Chilean was dangerous because a man who can punch as hard as Vicentini always is dangerous.

Watching The Scoreboard

By United Press
Yesterday's hero—Jess Petty, gray-thatched Pirate pitcher who held the Brooklyn Dodgers to eight scattered hits while Pittsburgh earned an even break in the doubleheader. Babe Herman's blunder that hopped over Lloyd Waner's head for a home run helped the Dodgers take the first game, 6 to 5. It was Burleigh Grimes' fourth defeat of the season. Petty held the Dodgers helpless in the second game while his mates pounded Ray Moss to win, 8 to 1.
There were no other major league games scheduled.

GERMANY ASKED TO AID RUSSIA

Want Consulates To Ask For Cessation Of The "Reign of Terror"

Moscow, Sept. 7.—(UP)—The Soviet foreign office today verbally requested the German embassy here to urge its government to take steps through the German consulates in China in ending the Chinese "reign of terror" against Soviet citizens in Manchuria.

The foreign office drew a blood-curdling picture of conditions in China, a picture of torture, murder and wholesale persecution against Russian Nationals. It declared at the same time that the Soviet government has been forced to resort to retaliatory representative measures, but only against definite categories of Chinese residents in the Soviet union.

The German embassy has been informed that the Soviet government had exact knowledge of the dozens of Russian citizens who had been "barbarously executed in Manchuria" without a hearing or trial. A large number of Russians have disappeared in Manchuria and other parts of the Chinese republic without a trace, the Soviet government informed the Reich embassy. Others have been found beheaded and their corpses left where they were executed or thrown into rivers.

The note described conditions in camps where Soviet prisoners are interned. Two thousand are concentrated in one of the camps and the sanitary conditions are so terrible, the Soviet foreign office said, that epidemics have begun to spread, causing many deaths.

The prisoners at these camps allegedly are kept in chains and are not permitted to communicate with their families, who, in most cases have been expelled from their homes and deprived of pensions or wages. The foreign office demanded that the German government, which is representing both China and Russia during the current dispute, make vigorous demands upon Nanking to cease the alleged persecutions.

NOTRE DAME IN HARD SCHEDULE; NO HOME GAMES

Rockne Has Wealth Of Material For Peripatetic Eleven

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 7.—(UP)—A wealth of material, including 16 letter winners, will greet Coach Knute Rockne at Notre Dame when he calls his horde of football candidates together for their initial practice.

Although Rockne has maintained his usual pre-season silence, it generally is believed that he is well pleased with this season's outlook.

Rumors that the Irish will present a different style of attack on the gridiron this year appear well founded inasmuch as Rockne while speaking before various organizations intimated that "maybe the Notre Dame form is wearing out."

However, the rambling Irish, as in the past, are expected to be principally a light fast team, banking their offense on passing attacks.

Rockne will be well fortified at the ends with O'Brien, Vezie, Murphy and Conley expected to return. O'Brien, a native of California, and admittedly one of the best pass receivers in the game, snared the pass that enabled Notre Dame to defeat Army last season.

Veterans at Tackle Posts
Twomey and Donoghue, veterans, will be the bulwarks of the line at tackles. Both are heavy and fast with plenty of experience. However, there are several candidates who are expected to make the veterans hustle. For the guards, Rockne probably will choose Cannon and Law, both able performers for two years.

At center "Big Tim" Moynihan, Chicago, who was a constant worry to rival centers last season again will be in harness. The huge center who was forced from the Southern California game with a fractured wrist, is expected to be understudied by Nash, able youngster.

In the backfield the Irish are expected to have its usual array of well balanced talent.

Carriedo and Gebert, quarterbacks, are expected to rate with the best in the country. Especially is this true of Notre Dame field generals since the days of Stuhldreher. Both are able passers.

Difficult Schedule
The remainder of the ground gaining corps will be taken care of by Mullins, Savoldi, Kaplan, Schwartz, Koken, Cronin, O'Connor, Shay and Elder, the star trackman.

Elder, especially is being looked upon this year as a star for the Rookne aggregation.

Without a home playing field, the Irish will play all their games on foreign soil, starting with Indiana university at Bloomington, Oct. 5.
Work already has been started on a playing field for the ramblers which is to cost $800,000 and seat 60,000 persons.

The schedule:
Oct. 5—Indiana at Bloomington.
Oct. 12—Navy at Baltimore.
Oct. 19—Wisconsin at Soldier Field, Chicago.

Oct. 26—Carnegie Tech at Pittsburgh.

Nov. 2—Georgia Tech at Atlanta.

Nov. 9—Drake at Soldiers Field, Chicago.

Nov. 16—Southern California at Soldiers Field, Chicago.

Nov. 23—Northwestern at Evanston, Illinois.

Nov. 30—Army at New York.

NOTICE
Rev. Jacob Wendel of Fort Wayne will have charge of the Sunday morning services of the Church of God at 10:30 o'clock (Central Standard Time) All members of the local church are requested to note this special opportunity and be present at the morning service.

MAN, TRAPPED IN SAND, SAVED

Rescuers Reach Wilkins Priest And Bring Him Safely To Surface

Ottumwa, Ia., Sept. 7.—(UP)—Fighting for his breath against the crushing suction of quicksand which had enveloped him up to his chin, Wilkins priest, 57, was rescued alive today from the bottom of a 45-foot well in which he was trapped by a cave-in Tuesday morning. Priest was barely conscious as "Red" Emery, whom only a few weeks ago he had rescued from a similar fate, carried his limp body up through a tunnel which had been sunk beside the well shaft. The man's first request was for a drink of water. He had no food or water for 48 hours.

Dr. L. Rater gave Priest a drink of water and promptly administered an opiate, ordering him taken to St. Joseph's hospital. The physician postponed examination of the injured man until they reached the hospital. He said, however, he feared that Priest had suffered serious internal injuries during his 40-hour imprisonment.

ment. Several times during the night Priest had lapsed into semi-consciousness after crying out that he was "going." After effects from the exposure and the fall of rocks in a second cave-in, which delayed rescue yesterday, also was expected, Dr. Rater said.
