Household Hint

When the wood on the back of a picture frame becomes worn so that it will not hold the screws, fill in around the screws with sand, mixed with glue. When hardened, it will hold the screws firmly in place.

Diamond Grounds

Most of the diamonds found in South Africa are found far below the surface in what is called "blue ground," some of the main shafts being 2,000 feet or more in depth. The Alaskan mines are of two general kinds, placer mines and lode mines. The placer mines are near the surface, while many of the lode mines are deep mines.

Supporting Power of Ice

Ice of 1 1/2 inches in thickness is generally strong enough to support a man. Four inches of ice is necessary to support cavalry and light guns. 5 inches to support an 84-pound cannon, 10 inches of ice will support a crowd, 15 inches a railroad train.

Muncie Ex-Policeman Ends His Own Life

Muncie, Ind., May 22.—(UP)—Melancholia was believed responsible for the suicide of Albert R. Martin, 28, former sergeant of Muncie police.

In a note addressed to his mother, the suicide said he was unhappy but assigned no reason for his mental state.

According to an older brother, William, who was asleep in another room of the living quarters when Martin fired a bullet into his head, the former policeman had returned from an engagement with a woman. The brother was awakened by the shot and rushed to the wounded man as he fell to the floor.

Earliest Friction Match
The first true friction match was not invented until 1827 by a man named John Walker of Stockton-on-Tees, Durham, England. Ignition of sulphur and phosphorus by friction was discovered by Godfrey Hawkswitz in 1780, and it was 150 years before this discovery was applied to matches.

BELIEVE GANGS

BURN VICTIMS

Report Reaches Officials

That Bodies Are Destroyed Now

Chicago, May 22.—(UP)—Reports that gangland has been driven to burning the bodies of its "ride" victims to defeat the new scientific methods of crime detection reached Deputy Commissioner John Stege today. Stege assigned a squad of detectives to investigate this startling development in Chicago's gang wars.

At least two of "Scarface" Al Capone's gangsters have suddenly dropped out of the Chicago crime picture, a bang of human bones has been found in the forest preserve and information has been unearthed that the gangland "creamery" is in a basement furnace on the near northwest side.

The two hoodlums who Stege believes met a fiery fate at the hands of their enemies are Benny Bennett, former New York gambler and protégé of Capone, and George Higgins, who turned traitor to his north side allies and went over to take his place with "Scarface's" south side gangsters. The investigation today was enlivened by reports that twelve other gangsters may have met the same fate.

Information reaching detectives indicates that the new gang death procedure is as follows:

The gangster marked for death and cremation is forced into the Orthodox curtained limousine and goes for the "ride" from which there is no return. Somewhere on a lonely road he is shot to death, his body wrapped in a robe and then taken to the makeshift "crematorium."

There the body is burned and the bones sacked in burlap.

The one sack found so far turned up in a northwest side forest preserve, an easy drive from the location of the death furnace. The sack was found in April but little attention was paid to it until reports filtered in about the new methods of covering up gang murders.

The detectives assigned to the case believe the bones in this burlap sack are those of Bennett.

The impromptu cremations, the detectives deduced, were decided on when ballistics experts began to dig bullets from "ride" victims' bodies and weave a tell-tale chain of evidence against certain gangsters.

Satisfied that one gang was responsible, police began to apply pressure which resulted in slackened profits and considerable harassment from raids.

"No body, no murder," the gangsters found out by experience and "no murder, no pressure." So came into being the gangland crematory.

Bennett, the gambler, was an especial friend of Capone and became rich through his favors. He disappeared Feb. 14, the first anniversary of the St. Valentine day massacre, after receiving a telephone call from George "Bugs" Moran, north side gang leader. He hasn't been seen since.

Higgins, union racketeer and beer runner, disappeared two months ago soon after he deserted Moran and went over to the Capone interests. His turning traitor

Ill Ten Years; But New Konjola Brought Relief

Had Many Stubborn Ailments But Modern Medicine Banished All Of Them

MR. ROBERT ECCLES

MR. ROBERT ECCLES

"Konjola proved its merits to me," said Mr. Robert Eccles, 2815 South Hackley street, Muncie. "I had been ailing for about ten years with a weak stomach and a sluggish liver and kidneys. Gas forming after meals caused dizzy spells, heart palpitations and shortness of breath. Back pains were almost constant and often severe. Frequent night risings disturbed my sleep and to make matters worse, I was attacked by rheumatism. My ankles swelled and my joints were stiff and sore."

"A few bottles of Konjola eased the pain of rheumatism and reduced the swelling in my joints and ankles. My stomach is in excellent shape and gas no longer forms after meals. My appetite has improved and I feel stronger and better in every way. I no longer rise during the night, I sleep well, and feel better and stronger in every way. I shall continue to take Konjola until all my troubles have been relieved and I shall always recommend the medicine that brought me back to health."

Konjola is a new and different medicine containing the juices of 22 natural plants combined with other valuable medicinal ingredients. This medicine works with the sufferer's food, eliminating poisons and restoring the ailing organs to natural activity."

Konjola is sold in Decatur at the B. J. Smith drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.
