COUSIN OF WAR HERO TO RETIRE FROM U. S. ARMY

Master Sgt. Fank York Is Expert at Training Prize Winning Cavalry Horses

Washington, Aug. 2 — (UP) — After 39 continuous years of service in the army, during which time he was given but 10 days furlough, Master Sergeant Fank York, cousin of the famous Sergeant Alvin York, is to be retired. York, who is one of the greatest horse trainers in the army, is now stationed at Fort Myer, Virginia. Enlisting in the army in September, 1902 York was assigned to the cavalry division and remained in this branch of the service with the exception of one year on the infantry in the Philippines. This time in the infantry counted double toward his retirement and he will have completed 30 year's service this year.

While with the cavalry in the World War, York was transferred to mounted messenger work and in this division he gained most of his experience with horses. Upon the signing of the Armistice, Sergeant York was transferred to the Army of Occupation in Germany, and was then transferred to Cologne to assist in training the American horses for the Allied meet held in Paris in 1919. As a reward for his work, he was allowed to return to the United States and was assigned to Fort Myer.

During his service at the Virginia post, York has trained many army horses for exhibitions and has won more than one hundred blue ribbons in competition. Among the champions developed by Sergeant York are: "Levi," known as the "equine airplane" because he could easily jump a six foot barrier; "Applejack," with whom York has won as many as four blue ribbons, in one day, and "Flash," another prize jumper. These horses are still on duty at Fort Myer.

Upon retirement, York will be given a position as head trainer in a large Pennsylvania stable.

Overcrowded Cycle

Fishkill, N. Y. — (UP) — That line about three being a crowd has received judicial recognition. Judge Warren of this place fined a young man, whose name was withheld, $10 for carrying three girls on his motorcycle. The charge was "overcrowding." Just how the load was distributed wasn't made clear.

175th Anniversary of Dis- persal will be Observed at Grand Pre Aug. 20th

Grand Pre, Nova Scotia Aug. 2 — (UP) — Acadians from all parts of North America will gather here on August 20 to celebrate the 175th anniversary of the Dispersal of the Acadians and to inaugurate the Acadian Historic museum in Grand Pre Park where the statue of Evangeline, the old willows, the well and the memorial church attract annually thousands of lovers of Longfellow's striking character. Dudley LeBlanc of Lafayette La., will lead the delegation from that state. It is expected that the governors of Louisiana and Massachusetts will attend, invitations having also been extended to the governments of the United States, Great Britain, France and Canada as well as to important ecclesiastical dignitaries and a large number of public men.

We continue with scripture which speaks of the power and influence of the Word of God. Heb. 4:12. For the word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart.
All but a few believe in God, in a higher and supreme power, governing all of life. Why not let Him have His way with you, and forsake not the assembling of yourselves to the Sunday School tomorrow at 9:15 and the Worship and communion service following. where no rain has fallen since July 3. Sioux City, Ia., Urbana, Ill., and Terre Haute, Ind., have had no rain for three weeks.
"Unusual locations of low and high pressure areas are responsible for the drought in this section," Donnel said. Millions of tons of water have been evaporated from the upper Great Lakes this summer, but the resultant rain has fallen in other sections.
"A constant high pressure area in the southwest, which defies explanation, is on erosion for the continued drought."
The rain fall records, in inches, were:

MEMPHIS MAN HAS BIBLE 315 YEARS OF AGE

Pastor's Heirloom Re- turned to Him on Death- bed of Ohio Woman

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 2 — (UP) — A Scottish printer in 1615 produced a Bible which the Rev. C. W. McCann, Memphis pastor, now owns. The Bible, 315 years old, came into the possession of the minister's ancestors shortly after its publication by Robert Barker, Scottish printer and subject to His Majesty, King James IV. It is the St. James version, printed in bold-faced type, believed by the Rev. McCann to be the only one of its kind in existence.
The McCann family "lost track" of the Bible for 79 years, until the present owner discovered it in the possession of an Ohio woman 14 years ago. Establishing his right to the sacred book, the minister requested the privilege of reclaiming it. It was willed to him by the woman on her deathbed.
In what may be its final public exhibition, the Bible was used by the Rev. McCann in scripture readings at the home-coming services at the Gospel Tabernacle church here recently.

MANY PAPERS FORM MERGERS

Indianapolis, August 2 — (UP) — Mergers among Indiana daily newspapers have been numerous during the last five and one-half years. In some 25 deals during those years, competing newspapers have been reduced to a single publication or two papers continued under single ownership.

Even during the seven months of 1930, three Hoosier cities have seen their newspapers consolidate. The latest was at Newcastle where the Courier and the Times joined to issue the single Courier-Times.

Sometime before, the Marion Chronicle and the Leader-Tribune pooled resources. The two papers are being continued under single ownership.

During 1929 the Kokomo Dispatch was sold to the Tribune; the Bluffton News and the Banner became the News-Banner, and the Crawfordsville Journal joined the Review to make the Journal and Review.

The Huntington Herald Press was the outgrowth of a merger between the Herald and the Press the same year. At Portland, the Commercial Review and the Sun combined. The Richmond Palladium bought the Item and the two publications were continued under one ownership.

Scripps-Howard sold its Terre Haute Post to the Star. There again, both papers were continued. At Columbia City the two dailies, the Post and the Commercial-Mail were merged under single management. Publication of both was continued.

Four changes were made in 1928

Greensburg had two papers at the beginning of the year, the Times and the News, but only the News remained a few months later. The Tribune survived at Peru, where before it competed with the Journal-Chronicle.

At Portland, one newspaper dropped out of the three paper field, leaving the Commercial-Review and the Sun. The Republican disappeared. The Plain Dealer continued at Wabash where before were the Citizen and the Plain Dealer.

The Journal and the Chronicle merged at Peru in 1927, but the new paper's name disappeared from the directories a year later, leaving the Tribune without opposition.

The Valparaiso Vidette and the Messenger became the Vidette Messenger in 1927. The Free Press dropped out at Connersville, leaving the News Examiner alone in the territory.

At Frankfort in 1926 the News gave way to the Times; the LaPorte Times to the Herald Argus, and the Wabash Times-Star to the Plain Dealer.

The Rochester News and the Sentinel consolidated in 1925 and became the News-Sentinel. The Martinsville Tribune disappeared, with the Reporter remaining, and the News survived the Bulletin at Jeffersonville.
