VIOLINIST TELLS OF VISIT WITH QUEEN MARIE

Michael Glad of Being Relieved of Kingship,
Chicagoan Says

Chicago, Sept. 30.—(UP)—The things Queen Marie of Rumania remembers best about America are its vastness, its railway stations built like temples, the lavish and apparently extravagant system of lighting of the streets of the great cities and the remarkable speed with which Americans pull down buildings and erect gigantic new ones in their places.

Milan Lusk, Chicago concert violinist, recently returned from an European tour, tells of an evening in Castle Pellois at Sinaia where he entertained the royal family of Rumania last summer.
"With Ex-King Mike already in bed, because it was after 9 o'clock, Heena turned the pages of music, and Queen Marie sat in the shadow and requested 'Ave Maria,' 'Wings of Song' and other tunes I had played for her when King Ferdinand was still living," Lusk said.
"The young ex-king Michael was weary of the affairs of state at the time his father, King Carol II executed his coup d'etat. Michael said he was glad he did not have ## to be a king any longer.

"The Great Vejovala, as Michael is called in Rumania, is growing up. Although he does on occasion play blind man's buff, he speaks fine French, English and Rumanian, possesses great natural dignity, and seems almost too old for his age."

Lusk, who was knighted in 1927 by King Ferdinand, has played for Mussolini and most of the crowned heads of Europe. Rumania and its court, however, interest him most.

"Coins and stamps bearing face of King Michael are being recalled rapidly," said Lusk, "and there are many in Rumania who regret the return of Carol to the throne."
"After her return from America, Queen Marie found Europe old fashioned, cramped and on a tiny scale. The lights of Broadway appeared to the Queen as most extravagant. In Rumania cities are gaily lighted perhaps on the king's birthday or coronation but for the most part they are quite dark."

"American speed in tearing down and erecting new skyscrapers is unheard of in Rumania where buildings stands for centuries. The great hall of Castle Pellois dates back hundreds of years," according to Lusk.
"Queen Marie admires the practical nature of the American school system and the co-educational plan.
She wishes her grandson Michael might enjoy its advantages."
