ISLAND TO GROW
AID TO LEPERS

Washington, Dec. 5.—(UP)—The discovery that chaulmoogra, the Asian tree from which the most effective remedy for leprosy yet found is derived, grows well in Porto Rico, has resulted in bringing seedlings half way around the world in an effort to stamp out the dread scourge of mankind in the Western Hemisphere.

Brought from Siam and the East Indian Islands several years ago, the first chaulmoogra trees in the New World were planted in one corner of the small leper colony at Trujillo Alto, Porto Rico. They have thrived remarkably. William P. Kramer, head of the Porto Rico forestry system, revealed when he visited National headquarters of the forest service here. Porto Rico was envisaged not only as an important nursery center but as a future source of chaulmoogra oil, the specific product which has helped many leprosy sufferers.

As much as $10 each has been paid for the seedlings, some of which have been flown to inland Porto Rico by airplane after being transported by steamer across the Pacific and through the Panama Canal to Caribbean ports.

FRANCE THRIVES
ON EXPORT OF NAUGHTY BOOKS

U. S. Shown as Heaviest Smuggler of Banned Literature

By Stewart Brown
United Press Staff Correspondent
Paris, Dec. 5.—(UP)—All that is bootlegged into the United States from abroad is not rum, dresses and perfume. Books, dirty books, the "American censors" call them, are a heavy item among illegal entries into the United States, hints the bulletin of Maison du Livre.

Since the war French book exports have increased phenomenally especially to the United States. While giving the United States credit for improved taste in reading it is hinted here a large share of the imports, mostly illegal comprise books banned in America.

Unexpurgated editions of James Joyce's "Ulysses" and D. H. Lawrence's "Lady Chatterley's Lover" are among the best sellers. Every book store in Paris craves window exhibits of prominent "banned" books.

Figured in pounds, French book exports have increased an average of about 300,000 pounds yearly since the war. The estimated exportation for 1929 is around 16 million volumes. United States, Great Britain, Belgium, Switzerland, Germany and Latin America are the greatest purchasers of French books.

Strangely enough the League of Nations has served to increase the popularity of the French tongue and to increase the number of books which are bought and read in French. French is still considered the diplomatic language and with varying accents is spoken in nearly nine out of ten speeches made before the assembly and the council of the League.

The majority of allegedly "indecent" books smuggled into the United States are taken through the customs under the decent cover of some author to whom the American censors do not object.

MEMBERS SAYS
PRICE DECLINE
WILL CONTINUE

a result of its experiences with stabilization in the past year, the board said it was apparent in the case of wheat or any similar commodity that:

1. To be successful a large quantity of the commodity must be bought by the government. The accumulation of such a vast amount of the crop has a somewhat lowering effect on prices.

2. Purchases in the cash market alone are inadequate to sustain prices and do great injury to legitimate operations in the option market by throwing cash prices out of line with futures. This means that large purchases for future delivery must be made.

3. Transactions in the future market having been entered on, there is no good place to stop. Option prices are published for six to eight months in advance, and as soon as buying of any option is stopped it gets out of line. This imposes a hardship on those used to hedging in the futures market.

4. The storage problem is serious in any stabilization activity. When a large quantity of wheat is purchased and held in terminals or warehouses, it interferes with handling of the crop. Some of the wheat must inevitably be held at such distance that it is not available for most economical use or sale.

5. When the government has bought wheat or another crop in this way it is difficult to dispose of it. Sales by a stabilization corporation tend promptly to turn the market downward and abundant complaint is received from growers who are still holding their crop.

"Failure of cotton producers to bring about substantial curtailment in the cotton production of 1930 has contributed heavily to defeat the purpose of the stabilization measures that were undertaken in cotton," it declared. "Much more extended and intensive efforts to secure readjustments in cotton production, in the face of carefully considered world outlook, are planned for the planting season of 1931."

Loan commitments to the two major stabilization corporations aggregated $90,000,000 to the grain buying organization, and $15,000,000 to the cotton stabilization corporation. Cooperative associations received a total of $165,146,555 in loan commitments in addition to these amounts for stabilizations purposes. This gave a total of $270,000,000 in loan commitments approved by the board.

Progress in organizing producers into national cooperative marketing organizations was reviewed at length by the board which said the first year of its operation has shown clearly that farmer organization offers the surest hope of permanent financial betterment of those engaged in agriculture.

SILK HAT RAID IS CONDUCTED

Dry Agents, Dressed Formally Raid Rich New York Saloon

New York, Dec. 5.—(UP)—Another genteel social affair reserved for the ultra-select took place unheralded early today when the "salon" of Belle Livingstone, toast of two continents in the '90's, was visited by nine dry agents in silk hats and tail coats.

Something of the sort had been expected ever since the celebrated "Belle of Bohemia" reopened after a similar raid last April on her luxurious Park avenue establishment. On the latter occasion she described the manners of her unexpected guests as "truly Chester-Fieldian."

It was shortly after midnight that Deputy Administrator Martin M. Smith and seven aides alighted from taxicabs and sauntered into the modernistic red and black receiving room on one of four richly-gowned women, theatre and society celebrities and Broadway bon vivants. In the main room there was dancing, in another was a complete stage auditorium with impromptu entertainment, and the upper floors were devoted, one apiece, to quiet contests of ping-pong and miniature golf.

Smith and his agents left their top hats, overcoats and canes with the checkroom girl and mixed with the crowd around the dance floors.

Then one of the visitors suddenly wrenched a megaphone from the orchestra crooner. The guests of the salon, the holder of the megaphone announced, would be allowed to leave unhindered.

Belle and eight bartenders, waiters and other personnel were escorted to a police district station for the remainder of the morning, while the dry cleanup squad seized $12,000 worth of bottled goods.

Miss Livingstone, who once was hailed as "the girl with poetic legs" and who subsequently styled herself "the most dangerous woman in the world," gave her age as 36 and her occupation as an author.

REPTILE EXPERT
HUNTING SERUM
FOR DEADLY BITE

Boat In Boston Harbor Laboratory For Experiments

Boston, Dec. 5.—(UP)—William Clapp, authority on marine and reptile life who traced the San Francisco dock collapses of about a decade ago to a wood-boring known as the teredo, has a small home and laboratory aboard the Scooner Hamilton in Boston harbor.

The admonition "Poisonous snakes—Keep off," painted prominently on the craft's cabin, issues Clapp privacy.

Rattlesnakes, gila monsters, iguanas, and coahuilinas are among the reptiles.

"Clapp is trying to develop a serum to counteract the gila monster bite. He also is seeking the secret of how the indigo can distinguish between a harmless and deadly snake."

When a non-poisonous coahuilina is thrown into the voracious gila's cage, the latter catches it, the air and devours it. But with a rattler of identical color is dropped in the indigo remains motionless until the newcomer has settled down. Then, with meticulous cunning, the indigo approaches the rattler, killing it with a lightning snap.

How to make synthetic sea water having all the properties of natural salt water is another object of Clapp's studies.

All the chemical ingredients known to exist in sea water have been put together, but sea fish have not lived in the synthetic product.
