The long coat of the season is a very definite place for them to be of fur or fabric speaking, the smart women assemble her wardrobe for a short, or three-quarter length, for shopping and town wear, for the lack of weight in the knees is less tiring. It is with a good substantially when frock such as Molyneux's of dark brown wool to go with his hip-length of brown seal.

The diagonal wool costume for the year, also designed by Capel, Molyneux is trimmed sparingly with fur. The suit is in black, with wool and fur, and it is with bright green felt hat. The small Buster Brown fur collar with black crepe mar- and the coat buttons down the front with four buttons. A neat belt with a buckle defines the waistline and all there is to it.

Mr. Sovine Makes Reply
Editor Daily Democrat

In the way of an introduction to my new friend N. B. I wish to state that I am an old fashioned hay seed with out an education, and the only essence that I can draw from is just a little plain common everyday horse-sense.

I will only be too glad to go fishing with you any time you suggest a date, but before we start you should understand that, the only time a farmer goes fishing in the winter is when he is figuring on landing a sucker, and I hope you will remain congenial even though I happen to snare you instead of a trout.

Now Mr. N. B. if you were catering to technicalities you should have said instead of questioning my sincerity, that I did not know my onions. This perhaps would have been more grammatical, you can see by this that I really pity you, that is why I make this correction and I hope you will appreciate the same. And I further wish to kindly thank you for confessing to an intelligent public that I made some good points for I had formed the idea that my contributions were nothing more than a big flop.

Now if you are a first rate citizen as I think you are, a man that believes in progress please explain to my readers, why you didn't elaborate, on the good points and by so doing help to accomplish what was set forth in them, instead of trying to throw a monkey wrench into the machine of progress, by your criticism of the mighty poor ones you thought I made.

Brother, a man at this time who tries to make people believe that our delinquent tax list doesn't approximate any more than usual is intellectually on the eve with the Coo Coo, Woodpecker, that tries to get his breakfast by drilling a hole into an iron post.

What I meant by knocking the city babies down to the country level is this. If the price of agricultural products can not be raised so that they will be equal with the wholesale price of all other commodities, then in the name of justice and reason it becomes necessary to lower the price of all other commodities so that they will be equal with the price of agricultural products. The following statistics may shed some light on this statement. The price index of farm products stood at 71 November 15, as compared with 100 as a five year pre-war average. The industrial wage level is twice pre-war and farm taxes are 2 1/2 times the pre-war level, the price index of the commodities bought by farmers is 125 by holding up the price of manufactured goods and maintaining a labor price level of 2 times pre-war while farm products prices were slouched to 29 points below the five year average of the pre-war level and farmers taxes were raised to 2 1/2 times pre-war level.

This imposition has destroyed the equilibrium of trade and business men are being crushed under the giant roller of monopolies, because farmers are unable to buy their products. Let me illustrate! I recently sold a nice young beef hide that weighed 42 lbs. and received a check for $1.26. The same day I bought a pair of oxfords and paid $6.00 for them. I sold 31 fleeces of wool and received a check for $27.75. I had to put $10.00 to this amount to buy a suit of clothes, now if you are willing to call this a customary profit, I am willing to let the public decide for themselves what you know about present conditions.

Now my friend you stated that the city has a different standard, now lets search this statement and see if we can not find within it a solution of how to knock the city babies down to the country level.

You further, stated that you believed in justice. Where could you find more justice than to make the same standard for the city and country? Just a leveling up process that is all. I hope this will be plain enough for you to understand.

Please explain how three big holding companies controls our electricity, one corporation owns over half of our iron ore, Eight concerns closely allied with rail roads own nearly 80 per cent of the nation's coal, two corporations control over half of the steel, two concerns own and control over half of meat packing and one percent of the banks control 99 per cent of the banking resources, and you will start to tell the public of graft somewhere in our nation.

No, I haven't lost faith in humanity but I have lost faith in our government.

When the President promises the poor and farmers relief and deceives them and when he threatens the rich and conjoles them it is time that this monopoly system is broken up before the best class of people on earth the good, honest, hard working, middle class is ruined financially. Abe Lincoln said "That God loved the common people because he made so many of them."

Last fall when the fight was on for tax relief I was working in order to pay my share of expenses, that was made by the commission that Leslie appointed to investigate the tax question and that was all the relief the farmers got.

Three of the greatest organizations of the world is the home, the school and the church. Therefore I haven't questioned the moral force of teacher, neither have I said they were paid too much. The impression I tried to leave was that teachers are being paid more than the taxpayer is able to pay. Isn't this true?

Township after township has been investigated and it was found that teachers were not paying a cent of taxes. Why shouldn't they help bare a part of the burden as well as any one else?

One place where we are not getting a dollars worth of value for every dollar spent is with our officers. They are receiving a war time salary in a delated peace time period and they are furnished a deputy besides. Their salaries should be lowered so that they will conform to the price level of the tax payers products, wouldn't this be the proper thing to do?

In my closing remark N. B. I wish to inform you that in one respect I am like the colored mother who
