Immortal Work of Art
"The Death of Socrates" painted in 1785 and exhibited in the Paris salon in 1787, is the work of Jacques Louis David. It is one of the four paintings classed as the artist's masterpieces and shows the Greek philosopher about to drink poison in a well surrounded by his disciples. Sir Joshua Reynolds, who saw the painting at Paris, described it as the greatest effort of art since the Sistine chapel and the Stanzas of Raphael. In 1812 Napoleon tried to purchase it, but was not successful.

Condensed Population
The smallest of the Central American republics, Salvador, is the most thickly populated nation in the western hemisphere. Although only about as large as the state of Maryland, it has a population of more than one and one-half millions, mostly Mexican or Spanish Indians.

Pussy Cat Back
A cat belonging to L. Quick, of Saint Ste. Marie, Ontario, was believed to have broken a leg, so it was decided to dispatch it. The cat was placed in a bag with a large stone, and the tied bag was dropped over the brink of a 125 foot waterfall. When the executioners returned to Mr. Quick's house there was the cat, seated on the porch, broken leg and all. No one knows what happened to the bag and the stone.

Peculiar Poison
The insect poison rotenone, which is harmless to human beings, was discovered when scientists heard that natives of the tropics used plants containing poison to help them to catching fish.

See Old Family Album

It is estimated that men on this continent annually pay $750,000,000 to barbers. And if you don't believe the result is worth every penny of it, just rattle through the pages of the old family album.—Hamilton (Ontario) Spectator.

Point of Etiquette

Discussion has been carried on, in many quarters, as to whether it is permissible, in polite or miscellaneous company, to scoop blackberry juice from the deplie plate with a spoon; or whether one may even, as the company becomes more intimate, tap the last puddle with the tip of the tongue, as an appreciative car might do. There has been much discussion of this, but no standardized method has resulted.—Boston Herald.

Englishman's Idea

The streamline projectile was developed and perfected by an Englishman, Sir Joseph Whitworth, in 1800. The French have used the streamline projectile since 1803. It was used by this country during the World war.

Paris Styles

By MARY KNIGHT,
UP Staff Correspondent

Paris, Feb. 26.—(UP)—Contouriers here have been drawing straws—very colorful ones, and weaving them together into novelty collar and cuff sets, and be it here set down, these are unattached to any garment.

The newest low-necked frocks, not decollete, but sufficiently low to keep cool in, boast youthful little throat-tight collars that either buckle on or tie, zip or snap, and the cuffs do likewise.

Many of the newest printed silk and chiffon patterns have mastered the reverse gear-shift for the one which they use for the blouse of their novelty spring frock they immediately throw into reverse upon meeting the belt and turning skirtward. Both pattern and background switch colors without interrupting anything but the attention of the interested spectator. Such a transformation done before one's very eyes has the skillful touch of "black magic" about it.

REV. C. R. LANMAN

SURPRISED ON BIRTHDAY

Rev. C. R. Lanman was pleasantly surprised Friday evening with a party at his home given by the C. M. B. and Corinthian classes of the First Christian Sunday School in honor of his twenty-sixth birthday anniversary.

Members of the Sunday School orchestra had arrived at the Lanman home and the weekly rehearsal was in progress when the guests arrived.

Several musical numbers were rendered by the orchestra and many delightful games were played, after which the room was darkened and Rev. Lanman was requested to light the candles on the birthday cake and sing the song which he had recently composed, "Keeping the Love Light Aglow," accompanied by the piano by Mrs. Lanman.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Carl Luse and Mrs. C. L. August. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Harmon Kraft, Mr. and Mrs. Mankey Foreman, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Class, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. August, Mr. and Mrs. Sol Lord, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Luse, Lavere Engle, Miss Iva Heller, Roselyn Foreman, Vera Porter, Eula Myers, Mrs. George Myers, Florence Lichtensteiner, A. N. Hilton, Floyd Enos, Colleen Miller, Kathleen Foreman, Bobby Foreman, Bobby August, Eudella Luse and Rev. and Mrs. C. R. Lanman.

The honored guest was the recipient of useful birthday gifts presented to him by the classes.

MEETING OF

V. I. S. CLASS

The members of the V. I. S. Class of the United Brethren Sunday School met at the home of Miss Alice Vance, Friday night, for the regular business meeting.

The Scripture was read by Miss Rosamond Hoagland, followed with prayer by Rev. R. E. Vance. The new president elected was Mary Spokman. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved, and it was voted to charter the class.

The remainder of the meeting was spent in a social manner of games and contests. Prizes were awarded to Alton Andrews and Otis Rejer. Later refreshments were served by the committee, Rosamond Hoagland, Alice Vance, and Curtis Hill.

The Phoebe Bible class of the Zion Reformed Sunday School will meet Wednesday evening at seven-thirty o'clock at the home of Mrs. Cal Yost. The assisting hostesses will be the Mesdames Charles Brodbeck, John Beineke, and Gottlieb Stauffer.

Canada Protects Walrus

The walrus in Canadian waters is protected. No one is allowed to kill them except for food, and the number in any one year is limited to seven for Eskimos and four for whites. The walrus is an important food for the Eskimo and his dogs. All kills have to be reported to the mounted police.

Mirage and Reality

There are three differences by which desert travelers can tell whether they see a mirage or a lake of real water. A mirage usually quivers and changes in shape; a real lake does not have this appearance at a distance. A real lake usually has a dark band of vegetation around it and birds fly near it and above it.

Horrible Thought

A letter delivered in London arrived two days before the date as shown on the postmark. It is terrifying to think that bills may arrive before they are sent.

FORD BELIEVES NEW CAR WILL START BUYING

wheeling. The ignition key has been switched to the steering post, and the gasoline tank to the rear. Wheels are larger with heavier tires and bigger hub caps.

These cars are so different in appearance that Ford has been driving them over country roads undetected by disguising them slightly with old truck radiators and concealing the trade-marks.

"They will get up to 80 miles and are built to run at 65 and 70 miles which is fast enough for any car," Ford said. "The gas consumption of the eight is approximately the same as that for the four. We get this economy of operation in the eight by reducing all forms of friction to a minimum."

Ford was asked whether because of the depression he would devise some new method of longer time payments.

"We plan no new method of financing," he replied. "I don't see

For Meritorious Work

Josephine Schain (left), national director of Girl Scouts, informs the eight American delegates to the international encampment in Dublin, Ireland, this year, as a reward for her meritorious work in the organization. Following that she will attend camp near London, England, for a week and, for another week, in Paris.

that the standard installment plan which we use needs to be modified because of the business situation. If you produce a real value people will buy. That's what they are waiting for.

"We expect to start shipping final parts in four or five days. The new models should be available for display very soon after that. We have already 50,000 bodies made up. Our immediate objective will be, 6,000 cars a day."

Ford intends to stay on the five-day week.

"Our car would have been out six weeks ago if it had not been for Sunday work," he said. "Some of our men became over-zealous and worked on Sunday. The result was that we spent most of the following week correcting their mistakes. Sunday work never pays. Finally we stopped it. I never believed in it. Well, since then we have been coming along fine, and we're practically ready to start."

"Nothing will bring money out of hiding more quickly than the opportunity to spend it on good values," he continued. "The country was flooded with false values and a state of mind was created in the people which only the return of extra good values can change."

All the while Ford was fondly poking around these new cars, like a father over a new baby. He attempted to explain some of the new devices but he had a listener who hardly knew what it was all about. Each mechanic put some parts together to demonstrate one new trick on the inside of his engine.

Ford kept up a rattling fire on talk. He had on an old baggy gray suit to which he was entirely in different as he stuck his hands in about the greasy machinery.

Production of the old model stopped just before the first of the year. Thousands of dollars worth of new tools have to be made and shipped to dealers so they can service the new models.

Ford may have to help finance some weaker dealers. He has always insisted on cash on delivery and in the main will continue to do so on the theory that if he has a good value that will sell, dealers can get financing to swing the business.

Thus with his feet firmly on these business principles, this
