Phonogram-Gramophone
The word "Gramophone" is an invented one. When the new machine for recording and reproducing sound was invented, it was called a "phonogram," and later a "phonograph." The machine had a round cylinder instead of the flat disc, and of course the inventor wanted to distinguish it from the phonogram or phonograph. "Hum!" he mused. "Now what can I call it?" Then he had a bright idea; he remembered the barkings he had used when a boy, and twisted the word "phonogram" around until it was "gramophone."

Rodin's Mass. Piece
"The Joor of Hell," or, as it is more usually called, "The Gates of Hell," is a work by the eminent French sculptor Rodin on which he originally intended to place his famous statue. The Thinker we understand that this monument has now been set up in Paris, contrary to the sculptor's original idea. Washington Star

These words came in a hoarse whisper from the lips of the murderer: "It's a lie."

"No, it isn't. That instant we took a photograph of you and the girl. Here it is. Do you want to see it?"

The query was scarcely spoken when Doolittle pitched forward out of his chair. He lay sprawled, face downward on the floor, a limp, quivering, helpless, shrunken mass of ruined manhood.

CHAPTER XIV

Shad's Appeal to a Higher Court.

Doolittle recovered from his fainting fit. He did not confess, as the colonel hoped he would do. The sheriff took him to the county jail that day. Colonel Blake and Shad went to the hotel for dinner and waited for the evening train. As they were sitting together in their room the colonel said:

"Tomorrow is Christmas. Bumpy Brown and your friend Bony are coming down to spend the day with us. Do you realize how old Bumpy has been growing? He's a whale of a man."

The colonel lighted his cigar and smoked a moment. In the silence Shad wondered what was behind the words of his chief.

"These are the facts," Blake began. "Bumpy had learned that Doolittle—a married man—was making love to his daughter. He warned her against him. Then he warned his daughter's seducer and probably in rather hot language. Doolittle pushed him off his place. Bumpy was in his anger have sworn to get even. After that whenever he was in his cups he d-d Cy Doolittle. When he was indicted for murder and his life in peril he must have suspected the truth that Doolittle had tried to get rid of his wife so that he could have Carrie. But old Bumpy held his peace. Why? Not even to save his life would he bring discredit on his daughter. To him death was better than shame. I doubt if in all the records of human action we may find a nobler sense of chivalry. It is curious that this shabby old thinker, often tipsy, now have all this sitting humbly at his feet. Of course he wanted the girl to marry Royce. Now, Royce is an honest but rather stupid fellow—a good deal of a dunce. I would say, I don't wonder that the girl wouldn't have him. Doolittle and Algere made a fool of him in one way and another—notably in buying the rubbers, in building up the alibi of the guilty man and in misleading the detectives. I have never thought that his brain could create the mystery we have had to solve."

"That Christmas day at Colonel Blake's house was never forgotten by those who had a part in it. The reward of five thousand dollars was distributed according to the plan of Shad and his chief.

To Bumpy Brown the income on two thousand five hundred dollars for life.

To Bony a sum sufficient for one year's board and schooling.

To Shad a certificate of deposit for the balance.

Bumpy cooked the oysters and the turkey and by request prepared the mashed potatoes with unlimited allowances of cream and butter. Then the cook was called to the table. He said:

"No, sir, by Jeez, I'm too scared na' nervous to take a place in the front ranks. Besides I'm liable to bust out a-cryin' any minute—you've been so good to me."

Bumpy was finally induced to come and drink his coffee with them. Colonel Blake arose and with characteristic humor reviewed the career of Shad Morrison.

It was then that Sheridan Morrison made the little speech now quoted from his memoirs:

"By the time you are old enough," said Uncle Eben, "to tell the difference between a broken heart and a disappointed vanity you're old enough to realize that it doesn't make much difference no-how."—Washington Star.

CHURCH REVIVALS

Church of God Revival

Reported by Nellie Hawkins

Rev. Bennett gave another inspiring message last evening using 1 Cor. 13 chapter, as a basis for his discourse on "The Greatest Thing in the World." He declared love to be the greatest of all graces and spoke of the world as being hungry for more true love.

The following are a few of his statements on the subject:

"Love will do for us what nothing else in life can do."

"Other things are often mistaken for love."

"Paul came forth in boldness with the statement 'I know I have passed from death unto life because I love the brethren.'"

"A religion that will cause us to love folks is the only kind of religion that will make people believe."

"It is a tragedy to find so many church people who don't know where they are religiously speaking. There is something about the Bible religion that makes us to know."

"America needs to get back to God and get filled with the love of God."

"If ever the church needs to pray it is now that this country may return to God."

"Love will solve all problems and will help us to get along together in the proper way."

"The world and the church need a baptism of Divine love to the extent that we know we have passed from death unto life."

"Nothing in the world will bring sinners to Christ as the love of God within the hearts of men and women."

"It is tragical to think of so many souls dying every minute without God."

"We are the only instruments that God has to work through and if we fail God's whole program fails."

"Many professed Christians are wearing the cloak of religion but are not working at the job."

In closing Rev. Bennett urged all Christians to be filled with divine love that sinners might see and believe.

Evangelist Bennett preaches the old-time gospel in a forcible manner. He also renders a solo each evening preceding the sermon and accompanies himself with his guitar. The subject for this evening as announced is "The Power of Pentecost." The public is invited to hear Rev. Bennett each evening at 7:30.

Point of Etiquette

Discussion has been carried on, in many quarters, as to whether it is permissible in polite or miscellaneous company, to scoop blackberry juice from the delectable plate with a spoon; or whether one may even, as the company becomes more intimate, tap the last puddle with the tip of the tongue, as an appreciative exclamation. There has been much discussion of this, but no standardizing method has resulted.

Amethyst Once Believed Charm

Woven as an amulet or charm, an amethyst for centuries was held to ward off the evil of witchcraft. "If the name of the sun or moon were engraved on it," says a recent writer, "and the stone hung about the neck from the hair of a baboon or the fanther of a swallow, it's wearer would be safe from hail-storms as well as intemperance."
