Bill Rogers things John D. Rockefeller, Jr., would make a fine president of the United States if we could persuade him to "take over a little, small, rundown outfit like ours."

One thing that will make the new tax law unpopular as long as it lasts is that of having to place a two-cent stamp on every check we write. When a fellow has a check and money to back it, he will be sure not to have a stamp.

The Garner bill for a couple of billion dollars for relief of the unemployed, passed congress by a comfortable majority, but don't get excited. It will have a tough time in the senate and then if it should pass there, be vetoed by the President who has already stated his position.

Mayor Cermak of Chicago is angry because some one has intimated that liquor is easily secured in that city. "Why everybody knows," says the mayor, "there's no liquor to be found in Chicago and I guarantee the police won't find any here during the conventions." You may take that as a joke or one the level, but we have our own opinions.

The Cloverleaf Creameries of this city and Huntington are planning further expansion, which is good news for this is one of the soundest and best organizations in the middle west. They have paid out many hundreds of thousands of dollars to their customers here and will continue to pay top market prices for their products. It's a great concern, deserving of your support in every way.

The state bank department is insisting on receiverships for closed banks, as evidenced again in the matter regarding the Citizens Trust Company of Fort Wayne where they show about a half million dollars more assets than liabilities. Commissioner Symons evidently feels that such matters can be better adjusted with the arm of the court about the officer whose duty it becomes to collect and distribute the funds of a financial institution.

One of the first concerns to announce full time employment under the proposed plan to start the wheels of industry on a year's program, is the Auburn Automobile Company. E. L. Cord, president, has published a statement which should cheer every one. Watch for many more similar ones in the next few weeks. America will come through and its time to start the offensive.

Senator Hastings, speaking before the Republican convention delegates at Indianapolis said, "There is great distress in the land." Yep, but that's not news. He is afraid the people have lost confidence in congress. We are expecting to hear a lot of bunk in the coming campaign and the senators talk hasn't made us change our mind. Of course he probably doesn't care whether we do or not but he will find millions of people throughout the country feel about the same way. What we need now is action.

If there are to be changes in the laws which control the liquor traffic, those alterations should be made by those who believe in the best government for the people, who favor temperance. There seems to be an increasing tendency towards such a movement as is signified by the recent statement by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., for many years an outstanding layman in church and Sunday school work. The Cincinnati Times-Star, referring to his action, says:

"Because of his position in American life—his sincerity, his clear-sightedness, his intelligent generosity in support of what seemed to him good causes—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was the outstanding layman in the movement for national prohibition. His retirement from it, and his statement to Nicholas Murray Butler that he will support the proposal to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment and remand the treatment of the liquor question to the States, is an event the importance of which the prohibition leaders do not minimize. Equally significant is his declaration that the opponents of national prohibition should not—as the dregs demand that they do—commit themselves to an alternative proposition. Time and liberty of action should be given the States to work out the solutions that fit their own needs, as they see them."

McADOO FOR REFERENDUM

prominence again as the leading supporter of Speaker John N. Garner of the Democratic presidential nomination. His declaration was considered a bid for the Democratic senatorial nomination in California.

The grape growers of California, after years of support of prohibition have swung against it. Senator Samuel M. Shortridge (R., Cal.) recently changed from a dry stand to support beer proposals and re-submission.

After quoting President Wilson's views, McAdoo said: "On January 16, 1920, the 18th amendment into effect. In the succeeding 12 years the federal government has exhibited amazing feebleness in dealing with the problem. It has failed even to secure essential cooperation from some of the most important states. During this period organized crime has grown to such proportions that it is a serious menace to society."

"Constant agitation about prohibition has subordinated economic and social problems of first importance and has distracted the minds of the people."

"Each of the major political parties is hopelessly divided on this question. It is not, and should not be a partisan issue. A direct vote of the people can be had upon the question by national referendum of an advisory character. The congress has, in my opinion, the power to order such a referendum.

"Since the adoption of the 18th amendment I have consistently supported it and all laws enacted for its enforcement, because no government can survive unless there is obedience to the constitution and to the laws. At the same time, I have conceded that every citizen is within his right in attempting, by lawful means, to secure repeal of the 18th amendment.

"As a strong supporter of every rational effort to promote temperance, I would accept a challenge for a referendum on this subject, with supreme confidence that the American people would, with intelligence and wisdom, render a sound judgment."
