Paris Styles

By Mary Knight
Press Staff Correspondent
(UP)—Lady Louis Mountbatten, who does most of her shopping in Paris, has chosen a few white frocks to wear in the South of France. White is the solemn color of the fashion creators here, and the particular type of costume, Mountbatten prefers dark, usually, for her accessories, navy and white combinations, always smart looking and attractive. For evening she has chosen among other things, a gown of "Rise Legere"—"Light" it is of red and white, worn over a foundation of red, which has a pointed collar in front with a soft bow. In the back it is very low—a favorite method of Mountbatten with the Worth brothers. The dress is very full, though it fits snugly. Among smart Parisians who have also selected some version of this dress are Rene Fenwick and the Misses Elie de Ganay.

New German Chancellor Liable to Arrest Here

Sixteen-Year-Old Federal Grand Jury Indictment Outstanding Against Colonel von Papen for Pre-War Activities in U.S.

The appointment of Colonel Franz von Papen, by President Paul von Hindenburg, to form a new cabinet to take the place of that of ex-Chancellor Bruening, brings back to the spotlight a man who occupied it under different circumstances in the hectic days preceding America's entry into the World War. Von Papen, then a military attaché of the German Embassy at Washington, earned a questionable reputation for himself by his activities in company with the notorious Captain Boy-Ed. With Boy-Ed, von Papen came under suspicion of being implicated in many plots to hinder the allies in their prosecution of the war, but his real connection with the German espionage system in America was disclosed with the arrest of an American newspaper correspondent in Falmouth, England, in 1915. Documents, bearing von Papen's signature, were found upon this man which linked the military attaché to pro-German activities in the United States. One document, a letter from von Papen to his wife, alluded to "these idiotic Yankees." Shortly after Washington demanded his recall and in December, 1915, he was deported with Captain Boy-Ed. Later it was revealed that von Papen had been implicated in a plot to dynamite the locks of the Welland Canal, Canada. This was considered a direct violation of American neutrality and a Federal grand jury indicted von Papen. This indictment is still outstanding and the new German Chancellor can not visit the United States without running the risk of arrest and trial.

Washington, D. C.—The designation by President Paul von Hindenburg of Colonel Franz von Papen as Chancellor of Germany brings a personality, of no little interest to the United States, back to the spotlight.
The successor to Chancellor Bruening is well remembered in Washington from the hectic days that preceded America's entry into the World War. In fact, so well remembered is von Papen that there is a sixteen-year-old Federal Grand Jury indictment outstanding against him in the United States which forever forbids his entrance to this country without running the risk of arrest and trial.

The indictment, brought in April, 1916, charges von Papen, who had been recalled to Germany the preceding December by request from Washington, with being implicated in the plot to dynamite the locks of the Welland Canal, in Canada, which act was considered as setting on foot a military expedition against a friendly power—a direct violation of American neutrality.
Before his recall, von Papen had long been under suspicion of being connected with activities in this country designed to hinder the allies in their prosecution of the war. These activities were shared by the notorious Captain Boy-Ed, who died in Hamburg in 1930. Boy-Ed had been accused of directing sabotage here and in Canada while serving as naval attaché at the Washington Embassy. He was reputed to be the head of an espionage organization the chief function of which was getting spies into England.

Captain von Papen did not come into prominence until the disclosures following the arrest of an American newspaper correspondent in Falmouth, England. In this man's possession were found papers implicating von Papen in activities that constituted a violation of the United States neutrality laws. One of the ten documents seized was a letter from the German attaché to his wife in which he referred to "these idiotic Yankees." This epistle created something of a sensation when read in the British House of Parliament.

Soon after this disclosure the State Department at Washington took steps for the removal of von Papen and Boy-Ed, which culminated in their deportation in December 1915. Had the extent of their machinations been known at that time it is doubtful if they would have been permitted to leave the country so easily.
After his recall to the Fatherland, Captain von Papen served in the imperial army on the Western front as a general staff officer and won promotion to the field. He entered politics after the armistice and abdication of the Kaiser, but did not make any notable progress in that sphere until 1921, when he was elected to the Prussian Diet, where he served until 1928.

Von Papen was returned to the Diet in January, 1931, and since then has steadily been climbing to prominence. A year ago it was reported that he was a close friend of Dr. Bruening, the man whom he has succeeded as German Chancellor. But recently he showed marked hostility to Bruening in a public speech demanding that the "Nazis" (Hitler's Party) should be brought into the government.

The news of von Papen's appointment was received in London with amazement, which rapidly gave way to a realization that he cannot hold power for any length of time. One British newspaper, which is violently anti-Hitler contends that even a Hitler government would be preferable on the even of the Lausanne conference to an "embarrassed phantom" who may negotiate an agreement, but will have no real authority to enforce it.

Frivility Club will meet with Mrs. Adrian Baker, Wednesday evening at seven-thirty o'clock.

The D. Y. B. Class of the United Brethren Sunday School will meet with Miss Lizzie Crist, 2520 Johns street, Fort Wayne, Thursday night. The members are asked to meet at the U. B. Church at 6:15 o'clock and cars will be provided to take them to Fort Wayne.

Cosmetics Long in Use
The knowledge of cosmetics dates back to remote antiquity and their annals comprise the history of the folly, luxury and extravagance of past ages. The number of simple and compound substances employed as perfumes is incalculable and almost fabulous and the books written by Egyptians, Greeks and Romans on the subject almost constitute a library in themselves.

Salvage From Films
At the end of the normal life of a motion picture, three years, the film is burned and the raw silver extracted from the ash. This is quite considerable, 200,000 pounds of film yielding about 250 pounds of the metal.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL
And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine. For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul. Skin often breaks out in blotches. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely. But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Rosent & Wulfsberg, 25c at all stores. © 1931 G. M. Co.

There are a number of candidates for the various judgeships and for lieutenant-governor, reporter of the supreme court and attorney-general.

Local delegates will leave Sunday and Monday for Indianapolis.

G. O. P. Is Quiet
Since the Republican state convention, Adams county gossip has been quiet. The six Adams county delegates to the G. O. P. meeting voted against the repeal plank in the state platform and split three and three on the last ballot for governor, giving Edgar D. Bush three votes and Raymond Springer three votes.

There has been no change in the county plans to fill the vacancies on the ticket, according to Republican leaders, but it is believed this will not be done until later in the summer.

At present there are only three G. O. P. candidates for county offices but in accordance with the law the vacancies can be filled by petition any time before within 60 days prior to the general election.

Ralph Yager, newly elected county chairman, attended his first state convention last week and since that time he has been busy building an organization for next fall, it was learned.
