Stars Who Play Greatest Role
In Marriage and Motherhood

Record of Film Queens Who Are Happy Wives and Devoted Mothers Discounts Charges of Marital Instability and Butterfly Frivolity.

MARY ASTOR and BABY
GLORIA SWANSON
DOLORES COSTELLO
GLORIA SWANSON

Although they are regarded as the least domesticated creatures in the world, the glamorous film queens of Hollywood are among the world's most devoted mothers. All too often the facetious-minded remark that the marriage vows ought to be amended to read: "till death, or until I get bored with you, do us part," but rarely is the other side of the picture presented. It is a matter of record that the percentage of happy marriages in Hollywood is just as high as it is in any other part of the country and examples by the score can be quoted to prove it. For instance, take the Barrymores, John and the former Dolores Costello. Dolores gave up a brilliant screen career to wed the great movie lover, and she is quick to admit that she has never regretted it. She says she found the greatest role of her life in motherhood. The Barrymores have two children, a daughter and a son, of whom both father and mother are as proud as well, a father and mother. Then there is Gloria Swanson, now married to her fourth husband, Michael Farmer. Gloria is passionately fond of children. Besides two of her own, she has an adopted son. She once confessed that her greatest ambition is to have eight children call her mother. Another lovely lady of the screen is Mary Astor, wife of Dr. Franklin Thorne, of Los Angeles, who recently cruised around the Pacific while awaiting the coming of the stork. Since the arrival of her baby daughter at Honolulu, Mary declares she is the happiest woman in the world, asserting that no amount of adulation she received as an actress can compare with the thrill of holding her own baby in her arms.

HOLLYWOOD—A lot has been written and said about the frivolous manner in which this city of stars regards the marital bond. It has been suggested on more than one occasion by the facetious-minded that the marriage vows should be amended to read "till death, or until I get bored with you, do us part."

But in all fairness to the kings and queens of the screen who comprise the major population of Hollywood, it ought to be pointed out that the percentage of happy marriages in the film capital is just as high as it is in any other part of the country. It is merely the prominence of the parties concerned that results in a marital rift becoming front page news.

What is more, film stars are amongst the most devoted mothers in the world, despite the charges of frivolity that are all too often leveled against them.

For example, take the Barrymores, John and the former Dolores Costello. Dolores gave up a brilliant screen career to marry the great movie lover. Heads wagged lugubriously in the movie lots when she took up housekeeping as Mrs. Barrymore and predictions were freely made that it wouldn't last.

But the Barrymore marital barque sailed along quite smoothly, much to the surprise of the head wagers. Again, when a baby daughter was born to the couple, whispered predictions of a split were made, as it was well known that John wanted a boy on whose shoulders would fall the purple mantle of the thespian royal family. But again the predictions failed to materialize.

Today, the Barrymores are the happiest couple in Hollywood. For John has his heir and is content so that even the most pessimistic of the rumor-mongers are silenced. Dolores is the proudest mother in the United States and frankly ad-

Scene of Project to Bring Ocean to Middle West

United States-Canadian Treaty Provides for 1,677-Mile Waterway from Montreal to Duluth. Two Million Horsepower Hydro-electric Plant a Feature of International Plan.

Washington.—With the conclusion of a treaty between the United States and Canada for the navigation development of the River St. Lawrence, tentative plans are already being prepared for the great project pending ratification by congress.

The plan provides for the construction of a canal, linking the Great Lakes from Duluth, Minn., to Montreal, Canada, giving ocean ships access to lake cities—in fact, bringing the sea to the middle west.

The proposed canal will have two dams, developing 2,000,000 horsepower, one in Ontario, Canada, the other in the State of New York, and it is in the matter of these power houses that there promises to be rift in the otherwise harmonious proceedings.

It will be recalled that a short time ago Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York offered to confer with President Hoover in order that his state's position in the matter be made clear before any treaty with Canada was finally agreed upon. But the President took the stand that the project was solely a matter for the federal government to decide and the agreement was arrived at without any consultation between State and Federal governments. Consequently, New York state authorities are incensed at what they believe to be the usurpation of the state's jurisdiction over power projects within its territory and a Federal-State legal battle before the U. S. Supreme court is highly probable.

The navigation projects, which undoubtedly will be a fine thing for the middle west, will take about seven years to complete and, not including the hydro-electric feature of the development, will cost approximately $800,000,000 and give employment to 20,000 men.

The total length of the waterway system from Duluth to Montreal will be 1,677 miles. Though the New York power area runs for a distance of only 48 miles in this navigational improvement section, the state's share of the cost has been computed by the state department at $150,000,000, which the

New York authorities assert is double the amount the state can pay if distribution of power is to be within the cost of public production. Canada's share of the expense has not yet been made public, but our northern neighbor will receive credit for construction work already completed on the St. Lawrence Ship Canal, the Welland Canal and other projects connected with and an integral part of the proposed system.

The United States will be credited with expenditures already made in deepening the St. Clair and Detroit rivers to 27 feet and the upper lake channel to like depth. Also to the United States will fall the task of creating a 27-foot channel through the 48 miles of International Rapids section, between Ogdenburg, N. Y., and Cornwall, Canada.

The hydro-electric features of the project will be carried out, one at Chrysler Island, of 597,600 horsepower, and the other at Barnhart Island, of 1,602,000 horsepower. Apart from this, Canada plans a
