Von Papen's Dictatorship Move Put Junkers in German Saddle

Ousting of Prussian Cabinet and Proclamation of Martial Law Seen as Death Blow to German Democracy—Hitler Influence Credited With Move.

PRES. VON HINDENBURG • FRANZ VON PAPPEN • ADOLF HITLER.

With the mighty State of Prussia under martial law, its Cabinet ousted, and Chancellor Franz von Papen serving as Reich Commissioner in the affected State, a hard blow has been struck at the roots of German democracy and the pre-war Kaiser junkers of the Fatherland are once more in the saddle. The swift move, authorized by President Paul von Hindenburg, gives von Papen virtual dictatorial powers and places the 90,000 men that comprise the Prussian police force, the chief armed body in Germany after the regular army, under his command. Von Papen will assume the duties of Otto Braun, Premier of Prussia, and to see that his dictates are obeyed, President von Hindenburg has appointed General von Rundstedt of the German Army as commander over the affected areas. The edict of martial law has brought on the gravest crisis in German history since the days of the Kaiser. It abrogates freedom of speech and other articles of the constitution and places power of life and death in the hands of a military tribunal. Behind the move, political observers see the hand of Adolf Hitler, who, it is known, had been insistent in his demands that the Reich take over the Prussian administration in order to quell political riots, during which his "Brown Shirt" followers came off the losers. However, it is recalled that von Papen made his eventual appointment as dictator of Prussia a condition to his acceptance of the Chancellorship last June, and it is thought that the riots were merely used as a heaven-sent opportunity as a stepping stone to the goal of his ambition.

BERLIN—In taking over, under virtual dictatorship, the vast State of Prussia and proclaiming a military state of emergency in Berlin and the nearby Province of Brandenburg, the Cabinet of Chancellor Franz von Papen has struck a hard blow at the roots of democratic government in Germany and once more put the junker party of pre-war Kaiser days in control of the country.

Von Papen's seizure of the government of Prussia is more significant than at first appears, for that mightiest state in Germany, comprising two-thirds of the entire country, had hitherto been under Socialist management and was regarded as a stronghold of German democracy.

The swift move, authorized by President Paul von Hindenburg, placed the Prussian police, numbering 90,000, the chief armed body in Germany after the regular army, directly under the control of von Papen and his ministers and automatically ousted Otto Braun, Premier of Prussia, and his entire cabinet.

One the refusal of Prussian officials to comply with orders from Berlin, von Papen appointed a Federal commissioner (himself) with supreme power and authority to use the troops of the regular army to enforce his orders if necessary. President von Hindenburg himself named General von Rundstedt of the German Army as military commander over the affected areas.

This martial law edict has brought on the gravest crisis which Germany has had to face since the World War. It abrogates the articles of the constitution which deal with freedom of speech, the rights of citizens to assemble, the rights of private property and the privacy of telegraph, telephone and postal communications. All these essentials of national liberty may be curtailed by appointed entered the room attracted by the sound of two sharp gasps.

At a glance she saw her patient was dead or dying. Ziegfeld's personal physician, Dr. E. C. Fishbaugh, was out. Miss Kennedy reached his associate, Dr. Maurice Radwin who was in the hospital, and he hurried to the bedside.

Ziegfeld had suffered a heart attack and, weakened by the long siege of pleurisy and pneumonia, his body had been too feeble to resist longer.

Miss Burke hurried from the film lot. She collapsed as she entered the room and found she had been too late to see her husband alive. Patricia arrived a few moments later and the mother and daughter wept unrestrainedly.

A moment later Will Rogers, whose cowboy act was one of the most sensational successes ever to come out of the Follies appeared with his wife. He had been told of the death of his old friend and patron.

Sadly he comforted the producer's beautiful wife and daughter. A few minutes later Miss Burke and her daughter left to spend the night with the Rogers'.

After the first outburst Miss Burke regained her outward composure and calmly comforted her weeping daughter.

The shock of the death was heightened by the apparent strides toward recovery Ziegfeld had made in the last few days. His wife and daughter dined with him in the flower banked hospital room with its view over the profuse flower gardens of the institution.

His fever had abated and his spirits were high. Soon he hoped to be leaving for his home and the life among his artistic possessions that he loved.

On Scene of Fatal Labor Riot

Following a labor riot in which one man was killed and over a score injured, these heavily armed guards and State Police are protecting the workers on the cofferdam being constructed on the Illinois River, near the Marcellus, Ill. The labor union claims that the companies doing the work are paying far below union wages and that they are also importing cheap labor from other States, keeping union men out of work.

The latter has represented his country in Washington for more than seven years.

Record-Breaking Vote In Texas Primary Today

Austin, Tex., July 23—(UP)—Lured by a referendum on re-submission, Texas Democrats voted at their primary today in record breaking numbers. Party officials expected a total vote of nearly a million. Though county party officials in Dallas, Cryston and several other counties agreed to permit negroes to vote on the basis of a recent U. S. Supreme Court decision, few if any were expected to cast ballots. Gov. Ross Sterling, Mrs. Miriam Ferguson and Tom Hunter led the eight candidates for Governor.

Statement Shows Big Shrinkage In Assets

Angola, Ind., July 23—(UP)—A statement signed by Milton K. Jacobs showing a shrinkage of more than $500,000 in assets of the defunct Noble County bank and Trust Company of Kendallville was introduced by the state in Jacobs' trial. Jacobs is charged with embezzlement in connection with closing of the institution.

According to the statement much of the shrinkage was due to loans made to relatives of bank officers.

Miss Esther Beery and Perry Huffman visited in Fort Wayne Friday night and attended the circus.

HOME OWNERS TO OBTAIN RELIEF THROUGH LOANS

may say it would like to oblige him but it is hard pressed too. It threatens to foreclose.

Now under the new Home Discount Bank system, the building and loan association will be able to take that mortgage to the Home Loan Bank. It will advance up to 60 per cent of the amount of the mortgage. And the building and loan company thus will be able to extend the mortgage instead of foreclosing.

The new system similarly will make funds more easily available for construction of new homes.

President Hoover in signing the measure made clear that the government itself is not going into business. The Reconstruction Corporation will advance initial capital of $125,000,000 to the Home Loan banks. But all the members of the banks will be required to subscribe stock and will gradually repay this amount.

Funds to be loaned will be raised by the Home Loan Banks as needed by sale of notes and debentures. It is officially estimated the banks will be able to advance $2,000,000,000 (B) within two or three years.

The Home Loan measure carried a rider authorizing a $995,000,000 expansion in national bank currency. Mr. Hoover opposed this, but was advised by the treasury "that in the practical working of this provision it will not result in inflation."

"I do not therefore," Mr. Hoover announced, "feel that the amendment is such as would warrant refusal to approve the measure which means so much to hundreds of thousands of home owners, is such a contribution to their relief, such a contribution to establishment of home ownership, and such an aid to immediate increase of employment."

to their radio urging Ann to come back to Hollywood and fill her two picture engagements. Equally surprised by Ann's voyage, her mother also has been asking her to leave the Balboa and fly back to Hollywood. No one was greatly surprised yesterday when Harry Hill resigned as director of the picture "Tess of the Storm Country". The remake of the early Mary Pickford success will go into production about August 10, with Al Santell directing. It will be the first picture under his new contract and the second Pickford story he has brought to the talks.

"Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," which is now being generally released, was the first.

Back in the silent days, "Tess" was played by Mary, Lloyd Hughes, Gloria Hope and David Torrence. It was one of the films that helped to win its star the title of "America's Sweetheart."

While the new script is being prepared, both Janet Gaynor and Charlie Farrell are enjoying a vacation, an ardent yachtsman. Charlie is having his boat put in shape for a cruise on Mexican waters. Companions on the trip will be Johnny Mack Brown and Hardie Albright.

The wife of a well-known vaudeville star (he specializes as master-of-ceremony) came home from a party the other evening and complained of being annoyed by one of the male guests.

Her husband went into a terrible rage. Nothing would satisfy him but to tear the insulter limb from limb.

"Well, if you mean that," said a family friend who had brought the wife home, "I can tell you where to find him."

Disinayed but unable to wiggle off the spot, the M. C. got into his car and roared down the street.

In fifteen minutes he was back. "Did you thrash him, dear?" his wife asked solicitously.

"No," snapped the M. C., "but I was very cold to him."
