Coughed Up Bullet

Altoona, Pa., (U.P.)—Several months ago a stray bullet hit Earl Kensinger in the shoulder. The bullet lodged in his chest. Surgeons, finding that it had not struck any vital organs, decided not to remove it. Recently Kensinger was seized with a violent coughing spell, which dislodged the bullet and ejected it through his mouth.

Owner Deserted Elephant

Chehalis, Wash., (U.P.)—It seems there is always something new in the life of Tusko, huge elephant of varied fame. The beast was left here as a guest of the city by Ben Meyers, who brought the pachyderm from Portland, Ore. Business was poor at a dime a look and Meyers pulled freight and left Tusko to munch on city hay.

MINER'S TALLY SHEETS STOLEN

Tellers Report "Ballot Bandits" Stole Sheets Following Election

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 10.—(U.P.)—Two Illinois district mine union tellers reported to headquarters today that "ballot bandits" had held them up and robbed them of tally sheets recording votes of local unions on the $5 a day basic wage scale proposal.

The tellers, Orlie Blackman, Carrier Mills, and George E. Gee, Streator, said they got the returns from a bank vault and started for headquarters. As they reached an alley, they said a group of men leaped on them and seized the tally sheets.

Union officials said the holdup would have no effect on outcome of the referendum, other than to delay announcement of the totals. The referendum will determine whether Illinois' 42,000 coal miners go back to work or remain idle, as they have been since the previous contract expired last March 31.

County Feeds Pupils
Chippewa Falls, Wis., (U.P.)—Children selected from both public and parochial schools here are fed a warm meal at noon and are urged to eat heartily. Many are from homes where parents are unemployed, or have part time work. The county furnishes the food and a private charity founded by a lumber magnate provides the place, dishes, and labor.

Suckers Feed Hundreds
Fond du Lac, Wis., (U.P.)—Hundreds of families used shovels, rakes pitchforks, spears and dipnets to fill their launders during the sucker "run" in deNeve creek recently. One fisherman reported he took 16 suckers in one haul with a dipnet. Many carried their fish from creek to house in bushel baskets.

Albie Booth's Secret Bride Does Not Fear Film Vamps

The Romantic Details of Just Why the "Only Girl" of Yale's Great Halfback Stayed Home in New Haven While the "Mighty Atom" Went to the Coast to Make a Football Talkie.

New Haven, Conn.,—Mrs. Albie Booth—the childhood sweetheart who secretly married the "mighty atom" of the Yale gridiron a month ago—did what a lot of more jealous wives would never do. She allowed the great Eli back to go to 'Hollywood'—alone!

"Am I afraid that Albie will fall in love with one of those beautiful movie stars?" she repeated when interviewed at the offices of the Southern New England Telephone company where she was employed as a stenographer. "No, I am not at all afraid of that. We have been sweethearts since our kindergarten days and we always will be in love with each other."

Mrs. Booth the former Marion Noble, and the mighty atom were wed secretly at Branford, a little community about ten miles from New Haven, on July 4. Less than two weeks later the groom left the arms of his pretty, round faced bride as a star of the Eastern football team that was slated to meet a hand-picked eleven composed of Western college players in connection with the Olympic Games.

She returned to her job with the telephone company and Albie resigned from the team to make a football talkie called "All American" in Hollywood. Not even the parents of the couple knew of the nuptials until a few days ago when Marion "told a friend who told a friend who told—"

The idol of Yale and his wife wrote each other each day but there is none of that transcendental telephoning one is always reading about in stories of film luminaries. "Why that would be an awful waste of money," exclaimed Marion. "I isn't at all necessary."

About a week ago she quit her job to shop for furniture. Albie will be back in a few weeks from his labors in the Hollywood gettine mills. Illness last year caused him to lose out in June on that oh so precious sheepskin and he will resume his studies at the big school for which he so valiantly carried the pigskin, played baseball and basketball for three seasons.

There is a rule at Yale against married students but it is believed the authorities will overlook this statute in the one and only Booth's case. If they don't it will seem rank ingratitude to thousands of sport fans who thrilled for three falls to the 150-pound star's amazing broken field running and forward-passing par excellence.

Albie has always been a one-girl boy. Young Mr. Booth is not one of your gilded college youths. There was no golden spoon in his mouth when he first saw the light of day. He worked his way through high school by operating a milk route from 3 A. M. to 6 A. M.

During the day he went to classes and in the late afternoon he starred in scholastic sports all year around. In the winter he was shooting baskets, in the spring he batted out homers and fielded like old Hans Wagner and in the fall he triumphed with touchdowns and end runs.

At Yale he was a freshman wonder and for the three years after that he made athletic history for old Eli. And at all the proms, class dances and other events Albie always was with a girl—the same girl—the one who is now Mrs. Booth.

Just 30,000 Years—Or So
Madison, Wis., (U.P.)—Time elapsed since the last great glacier covered this part of the earth must have been at least 30,000 years, according to studies made recently by R. L. Ingersoll, University of Wisconsin physics professor. This was longer than previous experiments indicated, said Ingersoll, who is studying temperatures in deep copper mines of northern Michigan to compile data for use in estimating the age of the earth.

Sees Promising Signs
Madison, Wis., (U.P.)—In the opinion of Dr. W. H. Kieckhefer, University of Wisconsin economist, four prominent signs of recovery from the depression are: the fundamental economic situation is stronger than in 1922; deflation of wholesale commodity prices is slower; the banking situation in lost in defunct banks.

Take Up Wright Law
Indianapolis, Aug. 10.—(U.P.)—Prohibition, still the nemesis of legislators, again eclipsed all tax economy proposals in the Indiana legislature today.

The senate had before it as a special order of business the house bill for repeal of the Wright "bone dry" law. It was on second reading, subject to amendments. Senator James Nejd, Rep., Whit- ing, presented the motion that again brought the repealer before the legislature.

It was learned that one of the first amendments proposed would be offered by three senators seeking to revise the entire repeal measure and substitute for it a referendum measure. Supporting the amendment were Frank Southworth, Rep., Plymouth; Ralph Adams, Rep., Shelbyville, and Glenn Slenker, Rep., Monticello.

The amendment would provide that at the next general election voters would express their opinion squarely on prohibition. They would vote on whether they favor "repeal of the Indiana prohibition enforcement act" or "modification of the Indiana prohibition enforcement act."

Southworth said he believed the referendum proposal would meet with more general approval than legislative action to repeal the Wright law.

Two important relief measures were scheduled for consideration today. One was the potent truck measure, which would place a tax of 5 mills a ton-mile on licenses for busses and trucks operating in Indiana, payable to the public service commission. The other was the Ryan measure designed to inject "teeth" into the gasoline tax law and curb gasoline bootlegging.

Meanwhile legislators groped for new revenue sources to replace funds certain to be removed by the new $1.50 tax limitation law. Although the house pushed through an amendment to the Chambers budget restriction measure which would remove the stringent features of the limitation bill, a special senate committee prepared a report on a method of balancing the budget.

The house amendment was sponsored by Delph McKesson, Plymouth, Democratic floor leader. Whereas the law now provides that the state levy may not exceed 15 cents, the amendment would provide that it could be increased by the state tax board, with the approval of the governor and the state auditor.

With a provision included in the law itself for breaking over the $1.50 rate by appealing to the special tax adjustment board set up by the law, it appeared that the sharp edges of the measure might be smoothed to permit local units to set their levies at whatever figure necessary for operation.

The special senate committee was to meet with representatives today. In a meeting last night, the committee inclined toward a sales tax as the solution of the deficit.

A gross income tax, however, was proposed by Lonzo Lindley, Rep., Kingman. His plan was to levy a 3 cent tax on all incomes. He estimated that a 1 cent tax would yield $20,000,000, and that the 3 cent tax would make the $5,000,000 removed from tax duplicates by the $1.50 tax limitation measure.

The senate went forward with its plan for the income tax despite Governor Harry G. Leslie's unveiled promise to veto any such measure.

Before the special committee met to consider the new income plan, the senate passed to third reading the house proposal for a tax on 25 per cent of all intangibles. Although amended previously in the senate, Earl Rowley, Rep., Laporte, offered and succeeded in passing another amendment which reverted the bill to its original status. As it now stands, it provides that intangibles be taxed at their face value, with the exception of real estate, and notes secured by mortgages. The amendment brought back into the group of intangibles to be taxed the interest on tax-exempt bonds and money on deposit in defunct banks.

Bills sponsored by the municipal rights league of Indiana were favored by both houses. The house, under suspension of rules, sent to engrossment the senate bill that would place all municipally owned public utility plants under control of local councils instead of the public service commission. The senate passed to final reading the house bill that would give municipal corporations the right to issue bonds to purchase or erect utilities. The bill was amended to provide that cities may condemn present utilities to acquire control of them, but that the rates of municipally owned utilities will remain under jurisdiction of the public service commission.

The house chain store tax bill which originally had a maximum tax of $150 for each store in a chain of 20 or more was amended on second reading by Representative Fred S. Galloway, Dem., Indianapolis. The bill as amended taxes stores from $10 each for one to five stores to $75 for each store in a chain of 20 or more.

The companion senate bills repealing the acts authorizing the formation of holding companies in township schools and school cities were passed by the house in dissenting votes.
