"Fairy" Only in Name

Fairy rings are rings observed in pastures, distinguished from surrounding vegetation by being either bare or more luxuriant, and attributed by the peasants of western Europe to the dancing of the fairies. They are now known to be occasioned by the growth of certain kinds of fungi, which, proceeding outward from a center, render the soil for a time unfitted for the nourishment of grass, but later fertilize it by their decay.

Valuable Rock

Mount Kineo, 900 feet high and jutting into Moosehead lake in Maine, is said to be the biggest single mass of hornblende in the world. Hornblende is rock containing considerable iron and occurs in distinct crystals and in columnar, columnar and granular form. It once was used by Indians for arrowheads.

Sanskrit Long Used

Cuneiform inscriptions of western Asia indicate that Sanskrit has been the main language of Hindu literature, religion and culture for upwards of 3,500 years. It has been changed slightly in this time, but remains substantially the same now as in the first records we have of it. The language of the Vedic hymns differs from current Sanskrit about as Homeric Greek differs from Attic Greek.

Marked Fish

In studying the habits and movements of fish, specimens are caught and tagged, and after undergoing this operation they are placed in a tank in order to give them an opportunity to recover. Having rested they are released. The tags contain some directions to be followed by anyone catching or finding the fish, and it is rather remarkable that, as noted by the English authorities, 25 per cent of these tagged wanderers are afterwards found from.

Civil War Bounty Jumpers

A bounty jumper in the Civil war was one who upon payment of bounty enlisted for the army and afterward deserted from the service. Usually a man who did this successfully once repeated the performance until he had accumulated quite a sum of money or was caught at the game.

Unearned Money

Unearned increment is the term applied to the extent to which the value of real property increases independent of any expenditure of labor or capital upon it by its possessor.

TOTAL ECLIPSE ATTRACTS MANY

Scientists, Laymen Gather In New England To See Phenomena

Conway, N. H., Aug. 29.—(U.P.)
Telescopes and long range cameras already trained aloft, New England awaits the awe-inspiring eclipse of Wednesday.

This is the area of complete totality. Elsewhere the eclipse will be but partial.

Here, however, the shadow of the moon blots out the glaring sun. Hundreds of scientists are gathered here. Although astronomers predominate, there are also chemists, meteorologists, physicists, zoologists and alienists, all prepared to study the phenomena in the light of their own problems.

All of the more than 25 major expeditions encamped in the Conway-Fryeburg area, center of the eclipse studies, were well established today. The astronomers, some from as far away as Japan, marked time awaiting 4:30 p. m. E.D.T., Wednesday, when for about 90 seconds they expect to be able to study the sun in eclipse.

For the favored area the phenomenon will have an immediate practical value surpassing, at least in the minds of native merchants, anything the scientists are likely to glean. Attracting thousands of excursionists, the eclipse is regarded locally as a potential "depression-buster."

While laymen peer at the spectacle through smoked glasses, the scientists will study it through telescopes and telescopic cameras, with a wide variety of goals.

Take one typical expedition as an example—the Georgetown University expedition occupying the henhouse behind Mrs. Merryfield's barn at Fryeburg.

Father Volkmeier, S. J., using an elaborate array of photo-electric cells and timing devices, will try to measure to one-one thousandth of a second, light variations during totality.

Father Swift, S. J., using a movie camera and white screen, will attempt to photograph for the first time in history the mysterious shadow bands that flicker in the rushing wake of the eclipse darkness.

And Dr. Paul A. McNally, S. J., head of the expedition, will endeavor to photograph the sun's corona in colors and to make a new analysis of the solar spectrum.

Meantime, chemists, using the spectroscopic, hope to discover in the sun some new substance which, matched later on earth, may be of some practical benefit to mankind. Discovery of helium, providing safe buoyancy to dirigibles, may be traced directly back to the eclipse of 1868.

Nor will studies of Wednesday's eclipse be confined to the ground. Airplanes, balloons and autogiros will carry cameras aloft, and one aerial expedition plans to ascend beyond the five-mile mark.

He banged the cabin door shut, hemmed in among the gasoline tanks. His only baggage was a photograph of himself and Mayor James J. Walker. In his pockets were the same 10 shillings he had when he landed.

He pulled down the throttle, the motor roared, and the tiny monoplane lifted into the brisk southwest wind. "The Heart's Content" was homeward-bound.

INCUMBENT HAS NEW LEAD OVER "MA" FERGUSON

victor. It also was understood Sterling would start a contest if he lost.

The campaign was fought on the basis of records. The Fergusons charged that the financial affairs of the state were in a snarl because of alleged inefficiency of Sterling's administration. The Sterling campaign, on the other hand, pointed to "Fergusonism" as practiced in "Ma's" previous administration and during the term of "Pa," who was impeached and ousted when he was governor.

The race between Joseph Weldon Bailey, Jr., and J. H. (Cyclone) Davis for the Democratic nomination for congressman-at-large held almost as much interest as the gubernatorial fight.

Bailey won the nomination—considered tantamount to election—and thereby settled a feud which began before he was born. Bailey's father, the late United States senator, and Davis were bitter political enemies for years. The fight never was carried directly to the voters, however, as the two men never ran for the same office.

Davis and the younger Bailey never have spoken to each other.

necessary for road purposes, be transferred to the special school fund, thus reducing your special school fund levy. Such transfer will have to be made on your records on September 6th, if the advisory board so orders, else the surplus will be turned over to the county after that date.

The December distribution of township road fund tax shall be held by the county auditor and credited to funds for each township on the highway of the township in which such funds were raised.

Senate Bill 338 eliminates county levies for road repairs, counties receiving road funds from the distribution of state gasoline and auto tag license receipts.

Ogden Gives Ruling On Crossing Lights

Indianapolis, Aug. 29.—(U.P.)—An opinion holding that the public service commission has no authority over erection of street lights on railroad crossings was given John McCardie, commission chairman, today by Attorney General James M. Ogden.

Ogden ruled that the commission's jurisdiction applied only to crossing signal lights and warnings.

The town of Ambia, Ind., had questioned the commission regarding crossing lights.

Perhaps she was a better teacher than I was."

Moore recounted authorities said, how he and his wife were married after their graduation from Butler college, how he pleaded with her to give up her teacher career and become a housewife, of her refusal and of how she seemed so much more popular than he was that he became jealous of her success.

"So we drifted apart," Moore was quoted as saying. "For a while I planned to kill myself. But then she would have married again and I couldn't stand the thought of that. And every night I would come home to find the house dirty and the sink full of dirty dishes.
