MOLLISON AT HARBOR GRACE

Before retiring at the home of Dr. Freeman O'Neill, Captain Mollison told the United Press:

"I left St. John with fog lying on the coast, but it was comparatively clear inland. I was about 45 miles inland from the coast, but when I was about 20 miles south of Moncton, the fog started to drift inland.

"I was forced to climb above the clouds and when I came out again, I was near Picton, Nova Scotia. I flew over Pictou, then headed south for the lakes of Cape Breton. When I reached Sydney the fog was so thick that it took me some little time to get down."

Mollison telephoned his wife, Amy Johnson, from Sydney, advising her of his progress, and said he would talk to her again today from Harbor Grace.

Sanskrit Long Used

Cuneiform inscriptions of western Asia indicate that Sanskrit has been the main language of Hindu literature, religion and culture for upwards of 3,500 years. It has been changed slightly in this time, but remains substantially the same now as in the first records we have of it. The language of the Vedas differs from current Sanskrit about as Homeric Greek differs from Attic Greek.

Merely Catherine's Husband

Catherine the Great of Russia married the Grand Duke Peter, afterward known as Peter III. He was the nephew of Empress Elizabeth, and was her recognized heir. Inasmuch as Peter was subnormal in physique and in mind and his wife despised him, he does not play so important a role in Russian history as does Catherine.

Training Ship Visits Sweden

GOTHENBURG, Sweden (U.P.)—The American training vessel "Nantucket" has made a call here on its annual cruise. There were 118 cadets on board. From Norfolk, Va., the 1,200 ton vessel had made the Azores, 2,400 miles in 31 days. From here it cleared for Hull, and after visiting Gibraltar, the ship would touch Madeira on the way home.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sick and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't set at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your liver aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Remember, 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

College Diploma or Marriage Certificate???

Survey Finds the Craving for a Cap and Gown Often Writes Finis to Girl's Chances of Donning Bridal Veil.

CAREER OR BRIDAL VEIL.

New York.—Girls, you can't have a husband and a career at the same time. You must take your choice between a college diploma or a marriage certificate—a cap and gown or the wreath of orange blossoms—a kitchen or a classroom—a typewriter or an egg-beater—babies or books, but you can't have the whole shooting match.

A survey recently made by the Institute of Women's Professional Relations, and issued at Teachers' College, Columbia University, cites impressive figures to show that girl's who go through college have less chance of acquiring a husband than girls who stay home, attend to their knitting and wait for Prince Charming to come along.

A perusal of the imposing document leads to the conclusion that the more erudition a girl accumulates the less chance she has of ever treading up an aisle to the stately strains of Lohengrin. True she may gain in earning power. But, as the songwriters say, what is life without love? And what does it benefit a maiden if she gains the whole world and lose the power to make the male of the species go off his food and write atrocious poetry?

To the layman who knows very little about psychology and such things, high flown phrases like "independent ego" and "complicated cosmos" are so much Greek. But the most unlettered of the stronger (sex) will agree that the bride who can bake a good pie is far more desirable than the one with the alphabet after her name who makes known her expertness in ologies and isms.

Never yet was there a hungry man who could reconcile himself to dissertations on ecology or ancient literature on returning home from work. No, sir! He'll vote every time for the girl who can line him with steak, even though she believes Einstein to be an authority on uncles and aunts.

Then again, the average man likes to air his knowledge. Imagine the embarrassment of the bridegroom unable to tell his bride something she didn't already know. Not only that, but think of the terrible blow to his vanity as the more educated half of the family constantly adjectives him to "stop reading those trashy detective stories and read something that will improve your alleged mind."

Yes, girls, the average man likes a clever woman, but she must not be too clever. That means she must be just a few shades less clever than hubby, if the family is going to live harmoniously. Of course a really clever woman would never let friend husband see that her mentality and erudition were several jumps ahead of his. But when did woman ever pass up an opportunity to score over the male?

Getting back to the survey, we are told that older women who are college graduates stand a better chance of taking the stroll on the bridal path than the younger graduate. This may be accounted for by the fact that as we grow older, we lose a lot of that independence of spirit that marked our youth.

Or it may be that the years teach something that is not contained in the weighty tomes of colleges and universities—that old age without a companion is a paradise compared to the inferno imagined by the immortal Dante.

Even when college women do marry, they don't seem to be very much in favor with old Doctor Stark. According to figures contained in the survey, out of 6,665 highly educated women studied there were only 4,143 children in the entire group. That makes approximately six-tenths of a child per matriculated, or 1.1 child per married woman. Mothers outside the college group averaged 3.35 children.

So there you are, girls, think it over and don't say you weren't warned.

Swarming Bees Caused Fright

Utica, N. Y.—(U.P.)—A swarm of bees that invaded the porch of a home caused so much fright that police, the Department of Public Works and, finally, a bee expert were called. The expert advised that if the bees were left undisturbed, they would leave of their own accord.

Swedish General Honored

Stockholm, Swed.—(U.P.)—Czechoslovakia paid honor recently to Johan Baner, Swedish general in the army of King Gustavus Adolphus, who died three hundred years ago. A monument was unveiled at Schmiedberg, in the presence of thousands of people.

Beach May Aid Jobless

Dartmouth, Mass.—(U.P.)—Colonel Edward H. R. Green, son of the late Hetty Green and administrator of her wealth, has offered to open the excellent beach on his Round Hill estate to the public for a 10-cent fee, the money to go to the City of New Bedford for unemployment relief.

Harvester Catches Fawns

Chico, Cal.—(U.P.)—J. P. De Bock, owner of a ranch near here, picked up a novel crop in his harvester when two deer fawns, estimated to be between six and eight weeks old, became tangled in the machinery. Both were slightly injured by blades of the harvester. After treatment, De Bock took the youngsters home and will raise them as pets.

CONFESSES TO KILLING GIRL

Farm Hand Admits Striking School Teacher on Head With Hatchet

Crawfordsville, Ind., Aug. 30.—(U.P.)—Confession of the hatchet slaying of Miss Lila Jones, 33, Richmond school teacher, was made, authorities said today, by Morris Green, 22-year-old farm hand employed by the victim's parents.

Dying of wounds apparently inflicted by a hatchet, Miss Jones was found in the yard of her parents' farm home near here. Four deep gashes had been struck in the head.

According to the confession Green was said to have given authorities, the attack occurred while they were the only persons at the home. Green told authorities, they reported, that he became angry after he and Miss Jones had argued, and that he struck her with the hatchet.

Green was arrested shortly after the slaying after he had summoned physicians. He told them he found her unconscious in the yard. Miss Jones attended City college and Indiana Teachers' college at Terre Haute. She had expected to teach at Richmond this week to attend teachers' institute there.
