INDIANS LEAVE SUMMER TEPEES

Ponca City, Okla.—(UP)—Their fall religious festivals and thanksgiving dances concluded Indian tribes of this state are moving from their summer lodges and tepees to frame houses furnished them by the government.

Unwillingly moved to Oklahoma during the last century, the Indians have adapted themselves to the extremes of this climate. They build light summer tepees and brush shelters for use during the warm months.

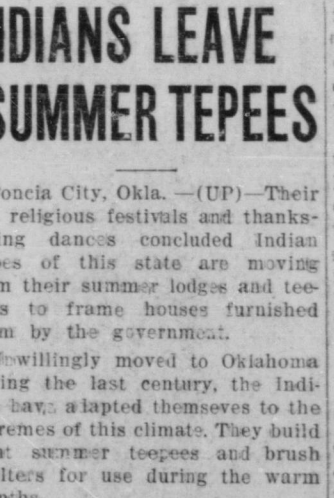

One of the interesting customs of the northern Oklahoma Indians, which has survived the inroads of white culture, is the annual spring pilgrimage to the foothills and river banks, where tribesmen cut edge poles for the summer abodes. Before the sap begins to run, spring wagons, horse caravans and an occasional automobile can be seen dragging long saplings to the reservation homes.

When the lodge-poles arrive at the building site, the whole family helps to peel the bark. They are then cut to proper length, about 14 feet. They are stood up as a tripod, against which the others are leaned in a circle. They are lashed together, and the cover hoisted and fastened.

Royal Autographs Refused

Boston.—(UP)—Neither King George of England nor the Prince of Wales ever gives his signature to autograph hunters. George Bilecy Beak, British consul-general at Boston, made this plain in a public statement inspired by numberless applications for autographs addressed to members of British royalty in connection with a fountain pen contest.

Victims of Hit-Run Killer

Young William Konkel of Flanders, L. I., is shown being nursed by his mother after he had been injured by a hit-and-run driver while playing in a toy auto with his brother, Joseph, (inset) who was killed. The driver of the death car picked up the mangled body of Joseph and sped away, later tossing the corpse into the woods near Riverhead, where it was found by searchers. Police and State Troopers are conducting a determined hunt for the heartless killer.

STILL "MAYOR" AFTER 12 YEARS

Astoria, Ore.—(UP)—Once a Roman, always a Roman; once a mayor, always a mayor.

So reasons Francis Clay Harley, former mayor of Astoria, who still clings to the title, although it has been more than a dozen years since last he set foot in this city.

City officials are occasionally reminded of Harley, especially around the first of each month. They have come to expect the usual flood of bills for sundry wants from all over the country, addressed to the "Hon. Francis C. Harley, Mayor of Astoria."

OBITUARY

Elizabeth Miller Sellemeyer, daughter of Adams and Mary Miller, was born in Preble township, Adams county, Indiana, August 14, 1855. She departed this life Monday night Oct. 24, 1932. She was religiously schooled in the catechism of the Reformed church at Magley, Indiana, and by him was confirmed there May 28, 1871.

On May 7, 1876, she was married to Frederick Sellemeyer, with whom she shared the joys and anxieties of rural life for fourteen years. In 1890, or, forty-two years ago, on account of Mrs. Sellemeyer's ill health, the Sellemeyer family moved to Decatur, where they have resided ever since.

Mrs. Sellemeyer was the mother of five children, all of whom are living, except the eldest daughter, Emma, who died in infancy. Those living are: Mrs. Bertha Heuer, Mrs. O. L. Vance, Miss Della Sellemeyer and Albert Sellemeyer. Mrs. Sellemeyer had four grand children, two of whom, Geraldine Vance and Katharine Sellemeyer, died in infancy. Those living are Lee Anna Vance and Suzanne Sellemeyer.

Mrs. Sellemeyer leaves to take sad note of her timely departure, one sister and three living brothers. These are: Mrs. Wm. Beineke, Martin Miller, John Miller and Charles Miller, all residing in Decatur except John Miller who lives in Van Wert, Ohio.

Mrs. Sellemeyer was a member of the Zion Reformed church of Decatur and while her health, at times, prevented her from enjoying much of the church activities, of her it must be said, "She was a faithful and consistent Christian."

She was a member of the Ladies Aid Society, Woman's Missionary Society, Woman's Club and the Pythian Sisters. Her association with these activities was the source of constant joy.

Five years ago, Mrs. Sellemeyer and her husband enjoyed a unique pleasure and distinction that comes to but few matrimonial unions, when their immediate relatives and their own children united in celebrating their golden wedding.

Mrs. Sellemeyer's philosophy of life may be summed up in two terms—cheerful service and rugged faith. Her cheerful service extended to all with whom she came in contact and her rugged faith is expressed in these lines translated from the German, which were almost daily upon her lips:

"I fall asleep in Jesus' wounds, There pardon for my sins abound; Yea, Jesus blood and righteousness My jewels are my glorious dress. Wherein before my God I stand, When I shall reach the Heavenly land.

With peace and joy I now depart, God's child I am with all my heart; I thank thee, death, thou leadeat me To that life where I would be. So cleansed by Christ I fear no death. Lord Jesus, strengthen Thou my Faith!

THE HEAVY HAND

STILL "MAYOR" AFTER 12 YEARS

Astoria, Ore.—(UP)—Once a Roman, always a Roman; once a mayor, always a mayor.

So reasons Francis Clay Harley, former mayor of Astoria, who still clings to the title, although it has been more than a dozen years since last he set foot in this city.

City officials are occasionally reminded of Harley, especially around the first of each month. They have come to expect the usual flood of bills for sundry wants from all over the country, addressed to the "Hon. Francis C. Harley, Mayor of Astoria."

Recently, J. C. Ten Brook, present mayor, received an urgent request from a Washington, D. C., hotel for $200—contracted by the irrepressible Harley during a brief visit.

More recently, however, Astorians were surprised to find in out of state newspapers a number of pictures of the jovial and picturesque ex-official in characteristic poses, appropriately captioned, "The Famous Mayor of Astoria, Ore."

Although press dispatches failed to mention the fact, Harley was very much in the picture at the recent national political conventions. The picture he presented was himself as chairman of the National Liberal Alliance Movement. A Chicago photographer sent his bill for this service, but received a reply that the esteemed Mr. Harley was no longer connected with this city's administration.

Ancient U. S. Warships Located in Bay

Midland, Ont.—(UP)—The Tigress, an American war vessel that was sunk in Penetanguishene bay by the British naval forces during the War of 1812, was located recently by Captain Robert Carson of Midland.

Captain Carson said the Tigress was found alongside her sister ship, the Scorpion.

The two vessels were sunk during an attack on the British naval base at Penetanguishene after an American victory at Put-in-Bay during which the British warship Chippewa was captured.

Captain Carson reported that although the Tigress was split both fore and after, it was capable of being raised and preserved as an historical relic.
