

SOCIETY

Paris Styles

By MARY KNIGHT,
UP Staff Correspondent

Paris.—(U.P.)—This is the time of year that smart society goes for its winter sports. Winter sports clothes must combine beauty, warmth and line yet not impede movement and be waterproof. That combined demand is met best by neat skilling trousers which are conceived of in waterproof woolen jersey, that proved itself to be waterproof more than name, is used for the light, full trousers that are the correct cut for skiing. In fact, however, they are worn with lace garters. A successful ski ensemble has a pair of blue trousers topped by a pair of soft rose colored jersey, which in a cravat that kno's on side and shows above the gray cardigan that is worn over it. So fitting, with a yoke that does extend over the shoulders, but comes down the front to outline the brown leather cylinders that serve for fastenings, this ski knitted jacket has a cap in same tone, with a little visor pulls well down over the eyes complete it.

Romance of Modern Cinderella To Wind Up in Divorce Court

Ideal Love Story of Orphan Who Became Heiress and Married Her Poor Prince Charming to Have Unhappy Ending.

Mr. and Mrs. Eligio Del Guercio

America's modern Cinderella, and the humble son of immigrant parents who married a few days after she inherited $5,000,000 from her foster mother, will not enjoy the happy ending to their romance that was experienced by the original Prince Charming and his beauty of the fables. Mrs. Fredrica Fry Del Guercio, the Cinderella of the story, recently filed suit for divorce from Eligio Del Guercio, the Prince Charming. Mrs. Del Guercio, you recall, is the former orphan girl who was adopted by the wealthy Mrs. Georgia Timken Fry, of Greenwich, Conn., reared in the lap of luxury and left $5,000,000 on the death of her foster mother in 1921. Fredrica married Eligio, a $25-a-week law clerk, a few days after she received her inheritance, in April, 1931. The wedding attracted much attention, for the lavishness with which everything was done. The bride gave the groom an $18,000 imported automobile for a wedding present, and in all the marriage celebration is said to have cost $300,000. Now Eligio is parted from Fredrica and is looking for a job. But he denies the charge of "terrible cruelty" and is determined to fight for custody of their 9-month-old child.

LEGISLATURE HEARS LESLIE

"The state of Indiana is out of debt. Indiana faces the economic difficulties growing out of the prolonged depression with a clean slate and with a balance of $17,762,227 in the treasury.

"With continued careful management, sound and constructive principles and the persistent enforcement of economy in government, Indiana will weather the storm and work out her own salvation."

Leslie praised the $1.50 tax limit law passed by the special legislative session last summer and said good features of the law should be preserved.

"The Indiana system under which taxpayers in local taxing units may exercise the right of appeal to the state tax board to prevent unwise extravagance or wasteful mismanagement of the tax money, has worked well," he said.

Governor Leslie said the state's highway construction policy of pay-as-we-go has operated to the satisfaction of all.

He pointed to the immense expansion of the highway system but advised that it was best to curtail road construction radically, for a time at least.

ROOSEVELT AND LEADERS MEET

at least a start will be made upon his "new deal" program before he enters the White House, was ready to outline a comprehensive program of legislation that he would like to see enacted within the next 60 days, friends were convinced.

He wants above all, it was said, speedy action on a farm relief measure, and it possible, on some sort of a beer bill. He will impress upon the leaders the necessity of applying the axe to federal appropriations "all the way down the line."

Mr. Roosevelt looks to Garner and Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas to supply him with approximate figures on the treasury deficit so that he can gauge the extent of his suggestions on budget balancing, emphasizing the inadvisability of accomplishing it through additional federal taxation.

The presence of Wooden, head of the American Car and Foundry company, at the Roosevelt home gave rise to the belief that remedial transportation legislation also will be one of the matters brought up for discussion.

It was recalled that Mr. Roosevelt believed there should be a check on unrestricted bus operation and also for those trucks engaged in interstate commerce.

Attack Relief Bill

Washington, Jan. 5.—(U.P.)—The controversial domestic allotment plan of farm relief, sponsored by President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt, was launched in the house today on a flood of bitter partisan oratory.

The measure, designed to add $1,000,000,000 (B) a year to farm income, was bitterly attacked in opening debate by Republican speakers who labeled it "hastily prepared and ill-considered."

Rep. Purnell, Rep. Ind., one of his party's farm leaders, said he was "bitterly opposed" to the bill. He declared it "would completely destroy American agriculture."

He insisted his opposition was not based on hostility toward Mr. Roosevelt.

Chairman Poy of the rules committee, a prominent Democratic leader, took up the defense of his party's farm program.

While admitting the bill "is a drastic measure," he maintained "it will do the job as far as the cotton, wheat and tobacco farmer is concerned."

Hunting Is Cheaper

Indianapolis, Jan. 5.—(U.P.)—

Fishing, hunting and trapping for Indiana residents is cheaper than in any other state in the country, a survey by the state conservation department revealed, according to an announcement today by Director Richard Lieber.

Not only the fishing, hunting and trapping license all combined under a single charge of $1 in Indiana Lieber pointed out but exservice men are granted those privileges with out cost.

Florida was found to receive the greatest amount from sportsmen, receiving $8 annually for a hunting license and $3.25 a year for a fish-trapping license.

The Tobacco Crop may be Short this Year but that can't affect Chesterfield—why?

Production of tobaccos usable for cigarettes or "roll your own."
U. S. crop (average, 5 years, 1927-31)	1,091,265,750 lbs.
U. S. crop (Govt. estimate, 1932)	751,601,000 lbs.
Estimated shortage, 1932 crop	339,664,750 lbs.

The manufacturer of good cigarettes does not depend on any one year's crop. He knows that to keep up the quality of his brand, he has to carry on hand at all times a large stock of the right kinds of tobacco from several years' crops.

The domestic tobaccos are kept in large hogheads, each containing about 1000 pounds, and are allowed to age for two full years—in other words, nature's method of curing the tobaccos. Something like ageing wine.

Liggett & Myers has about four and a half miles of warehouses used for storing leaf tobacco, to make sure that its products are uniform and are as good as can be made.

To do this requires a great deal of money—for example, there is invested in the domestic and Turkish tobaccos for Chesterfield Cigarettes over $75,000,000.

Smokers can be assured, regardless of the crop conditions, that Chesterfield will be absolutely uniform—the same yesterday, today, at all times. The cigarette that's milder—the cigarette that tastes better!
