(UP)—When Parliament in London Madame Fleurbaey of the French embassy at the Court of St. James, wore a costume in her favorite blue satin called "Dance of the Night." It was of the brown satin evening gown with the criss-cross which had the high decollete in the back and small diamond buttons. There is no decided trend to the dress, but it fits snugly. With it Mademoiselle wore a long mink gown from Worth's "Argentan" has been a great view. It is made of a black pebbly crepe and a straight, form-fitting silhouette. It has a square decollete with gold and silver rings beginning of the shoulder and a bolero effect in the having a triangular cut-out very alluring. A jade green coat, hip length, should be worn with this gown—a new lengthening wraps incidentally—only rimming is a shaped silver fox around the bottom of the Pocahontas will be held in the Red Men's Friday night at seven-thirty. Every member is urged to attend as business of import-ance will be discussed.

Is Electrocutted

Indianapolis, Jan. 19 — (UP) — Harry T. Miller, 47, a merchant policeman, was electrocuted early today when he leaned against a radiator in a smoke filled building. All plumbing in the building had been charged by a wire carrying 2,300 volts. The wire had been blown down during a windstorm, setting the building on fire. Miller was born in Mansfield, O., and has several brothers and sisters living there. His father lives at Columbus Ohio.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., — Tongues have wagged, chatter-writers have gone on endlessly, but yesterday, for the first time, Marlene Dietrich discussed Hollywood's favorite topic of conversation — why she wears pants.

"I found the star talking to Maurice Chevalier at the Paramount Studio. She took me to her dressing room and freely gave this interview.

First, a picture of her: She wore a man's gray suit but no vest, a striped shirt and a broad black, four-in-hand tie, upon her golden hair was a jaunty black beret. Her eyebrows were finely penciled yellow arches, her gray-blue eyes, amused eyes, looked out of a pale face, her lips were vivid red.

"She told me: 'I wear trousers for three reasons: First, they are comfortable; second, because I think I look better in them than I do in dresses; third, because it takes too much time, money and trouble to be a well-dressed woman. You can wear a gown only once or twice. Before you turn around it is out of style.'

Definitely the German star lit a cigarette, strode nervously around the room. Once she stopped to lean back against a table, her hands outstretched clasping its edge. Again, she paused at the door to look out towards the building where Josef Von Sternberg once had his office. But mostly she paced, her neatly shod feet (short silk socks showing above them, taking long strides.

"Whoever started that story about Joe not liking me to wear trousers—he told me to do it!" she exclaimed. "I used to wear them around the beach. We'd want to see a picture. I wouldn't want to dress. 'Go as you are,' he'd say. And that was what started it."

I asked her if she isn't afraid that the masculine attire will lessen her glamor for the public.

"If my pictures are good, that is all that matters," she replied. "And don't I always wear frills, feathers and trailing things in them?"

What about women in general, I asked her.

"Only those women who look well in men's clothes should wear them," she said. "I have masculine shoulders."

Cops Held as Kidnapers

Here are the two New York policemen who are held for alleged implication in a $100,000 kidnaping plot. They are Patrolman John Nevins (left) and Patrolman Arthur Graef, shown after they had been indicted as the kidnapers of Ernest S. Smith, New Jersey rum ring agent, who is shown in inset as he tried to dodge the camera on leaving court. Smith is charged that the two policemen and three other men abducted him from the Federal Court Building, New York, in December. They held him for two weeks, he says, demanding $100,000 ransom. He was released when they despaired of making him pay.

neys with Judge J. C. Niles concerning right of defense counsel to press cross-examination on certain phases of her story.

Mrs. Judd soon lost her composure as she described how she and her two friends quarreled over the affections of the play-boy lumberman. She said they threatened to expose her romance with Halloran to her husband, Dr. William C. Judd, and that she in turn threatened to expose them.

"He is responsible for the deaths of three girls and I have only three weeks to live for the deaths of two," she suddenly cried to one question. "You want to hang me for something Jack Halloran did." She apparently meant the deaths of the two women and herself.

Narrating how she had gone to her two friends' home, Mrs. Judd said the quarrel started almost immediately.

Cloture Rule Fails

Washington, Jan. 19—(UP)—The filibuster harassed senate failed to stifle "Kingfish" Long and his cohorts today when the cloture rule to limit debate failed of passage. The vote was 58 to 30.

Inability of the Democratic leadership to obtain the two-thirds support of the senate necessary for passage of the gag rule left the filibusterers temporarily, at least triumphant.

Will Use Granite

Washington, Jan. 19—The Treasury today decided to use granite instead of limestone for construction of the New York City Court House when it awarded the contract of $5,996,000 for its construction to Stewart and Co., New York City.

The company has 720 calendar days for the work. The decision of the treasury to use granite followed hearings held at the treasury yesterday when two congressional delegations, one representing Indiana and the other granite producing states argued the merits of their materials before secretary of Treasury Mills.

The low limestone bidder was $453,000 below the bid for granite.

VanNuys Speaks

Peru, Ind., Jan. 19—(UP)—Pledging himself to follow in the footsteps of Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson, Frederick Van Nuys U. S. Senator elect, addressed Miami county democrats here last night. Among those present was Mrs. A. P. Flynn, Logansport, vice chairman of the Indiana Democratic committee.

ANTISEPTIC by VICKS

at HALF the usual price of other quality antiseptics

Born in a depression year... and priced accordingly... a 75¢ value for only 35¢

TODAY the makers of Vicks Vaporub present a new antiseptic... Vicks Vioratone Antiseptic. No extravagant claims are made for it. It is simply the best oral antiseptic Vicks Chemists could produce. And they were aided by the scientific experts of our 16 allied organizations... in America, in England, and in Germany.

They examined the whole field of oral antiseptics. Some they found were too weak... a few were far too strong for regular use in the mouth... most were very good... but all were much too expensive... especially for 1933.

Effective... and Safe
So they produced a balanced antiseptic... mild enough to be used daily without risk to delicate membranes

...strong enough to do everything an oral antiseptic can and should do. You can use it in your customary way.

And Vicks Antiseptic has this additional unique advantage... Born in a depression year, it is priced accordingly. Large 10-oz. bottle... a usual 75¢ value... only 35¢.
