Paris Styles

By Mary Knight
Press Staff Correspondent (UP)—For sports and the Channel jerseys particular interest. There is a range of tweed jerseys in mixtures of black and white and white, dark blue and and gray and white in a variously speckled designs that are considered for a 1933 smartness.
There still is another range of jerseys with a tiny woven design like a bee, and one with dark shapes outlined in white and a dark background. These jerseys are so soft that they "creep" previous objectionable entirely eliminated, and they commiss cleanings, coming each one looking better than they were brand new.
As for fabrics are concerned, choice of the Chanel 1933 color of materials is a new one which is scheduled to replace the for the summer. It is so you can't imagine it until you see it and natural thread linen and shell pearl and ink designs in green, blue or brown. The silk the fabric gives it a delightful unexpected sheen.

Exploits of "Three Musketeers" Recalled by Death of Army Ace

Lieutenant I. A. Woodring, Recently Killed in Air Crash at Dayton, Was Last of Army's Famous Trio of Death-Defying Stunt Pilots.

Left to Right
Lt. William
L. Corneliuss,
Col. Charles
A. Lindbergh and
Lt. I. A. Woodring

With the death of Lieutenant Irvin A. Woodring, famous Army stunt pilot, at Dayton, Ohio, the curtain was rung down on the career of the last survivor of the famous "Three Musketeers of Aviation," an aggregation of fliers that had thrilled flying fans throughout the nation. The trio was originally composed of Lieut. Woodring, Lieutenant W. L.
Cornelius and Lieutenant J. J. Williams. At various air meets all over the country the trio was wont to thrill spectators with the series of aerial acrobatics they staged in the clouds. Seemingly all three bore charmed lives. Tragedy first reared its head among the gallant company when Lieut. Williams was killed in 1928. He crashed from the midst of an inverted formation at the National Air Meet in Los Angeles. On that occasion, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh took Williams' place in the "Musketeers" in order that the show could go on. Just one month after the death of Williams, Lieut. Cornelius, the second member of the trio, was killed when his plane collided with one flown by Roger V. Williams.
The latter parachuted to earth. After death had left him the sole survivor of the daring trio, Woodring continued the hazardous business alone. His duty was that of testing experimental planes. Once when his plane crashed from 1,500 feet during a "dog fight," Woodring took to his "chute" and became a member of the Caterpillar Club. In 1930, he was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for his feat in flying documents of the Japanese ratification of the London Naval Treaty from Vancouver, B. C., to Newark, N. J., in record time, although Lieutenant William Caldwell, who carried duplicate documents on the trip, crashed to death in a blizzard over Wyoming.

McNUTT TALKS TO RETAILERS

"Where and how?" asked Mc-Nutt.
He got no answer.
McNutt reiterated to the committee that he does not favor the sales tax principle. But, he pointed out, what better revenue means is available for budget balancing.
He reminded newspaper men at a press conference later that at present no probability exists for a double sales tax—state and federal—for it is not in the national program.

Asked what sentiment on a sales tax he found throughout the state, besides from business men and newspapers, he smiled and said:
"I find it largely favorable."

The committee calling on Mc-Nutt included:
Fred Wiedman, president of the South Bend Merchants' Association; J. Irving Latz, A. J. Seibold, W. F. Hornberger and L. B. Hallenstein, Fort Wayne; W. C. McBride, Auburn; Isaac Silverstein, Terre Haute; Alex Hirsch, Bloomington; W. W. Welsh, Peru; J. A. Watkins, Muncie; King Leeson, Elwood; and Ray De Prez, Shelbyville.

Latz made the principal address at the retailers' meeting, outlining objections to a sales tax. It will jeopardize retail business in Indiana already endangered, he said, and will be more serious to merchants in cities and towns near the state boundaries. Mail order business also will be encouraged, he added.

Henry Prinz, prominent New Albany business man, has been indicted by the federal grand jury on charges of income tax evasion, it was learned today.
Prinz, who surrendered and was released under $10,000 is charged with filing false income tax reports for 1929 and evading payment of $24,897 in federal taxes.

Antiseptic Costs Are Cut In Half by Vick Chemists

To all users of a mouth-wash or gargle—for halitosis (impure breath), oral hygiene, and other antiseptic uses—the makers of Vicks VapoRub now bring real economy. Vicks Chemists have introduced Vicks Vortone Antiseptic at actually less than half the price of other quality antiseptics.

Born in a depression year, Vicks Antiseptic is priced accordingly. The regular size is a large 10-ounce bottle—a usual 75c value —for only 35c. This new Vicks product can be tested, however, at even smaller cost. Decatur druggists have a limited supply of a special trial size—a 25c value—priced at only 10c, while the sup-
