DECATUR A. C.'S TROUGH OHIO TEAM, 45-17

Defiance Fails To Provide Any Opposition To Local Quintet

Failing miserably to live up to advance notices, the independent team from Defiance, Ohio, was soundly trounced by the Decatur A. C.'s at D. H. S. gym Thursday night, 45 to 17. Decatur led at the half, 14 to 4.

The visiting outfit failed to show little basketball skill. The first quarter started slow, with the two teams tied at 2-2. The A. C.'s got started in the second quarter and had a ten-point lead when the half ended.

The A. C.'s scored just about as they pleased during the last half and could have defeated Defiance by a much larger margin. Every member of the team saw action for at least half of the game.

Bill Gass was high point man of the game with five field goals and a free throw for 11 points. He was closely followed by Tiny Horton, who connected four times from the field and twice from the free throw line for 10 points. Steele tallied eight points and Engle seven.

All the Defiance scoring was done by the four forwards the visitors used. Moore was the leader with three field goals, all scored during the second half. Flory registered two field goals and a foul toss.

Win Preliminary
The Decatur girls team scored a fairly easy victory over the Willshire girls in the preliminary game.

FRANKIE JARR TO MEET HOOK

Return Match Will Be Held At Shrine Auditorium Monday Night

That return match between Frankie Jarr, the champion, and Henry Hook, former title holder, which fight fans of Indiana have been waiting for, has been definitely closed at last.

The two will meet for the state bantamweight championship on Monday night, January 30, at the Shrine auditorium in Fort Wayne. The bout will be prompted by George Biemer.

Jarr will be defending the title which he won from Hook late last summer.

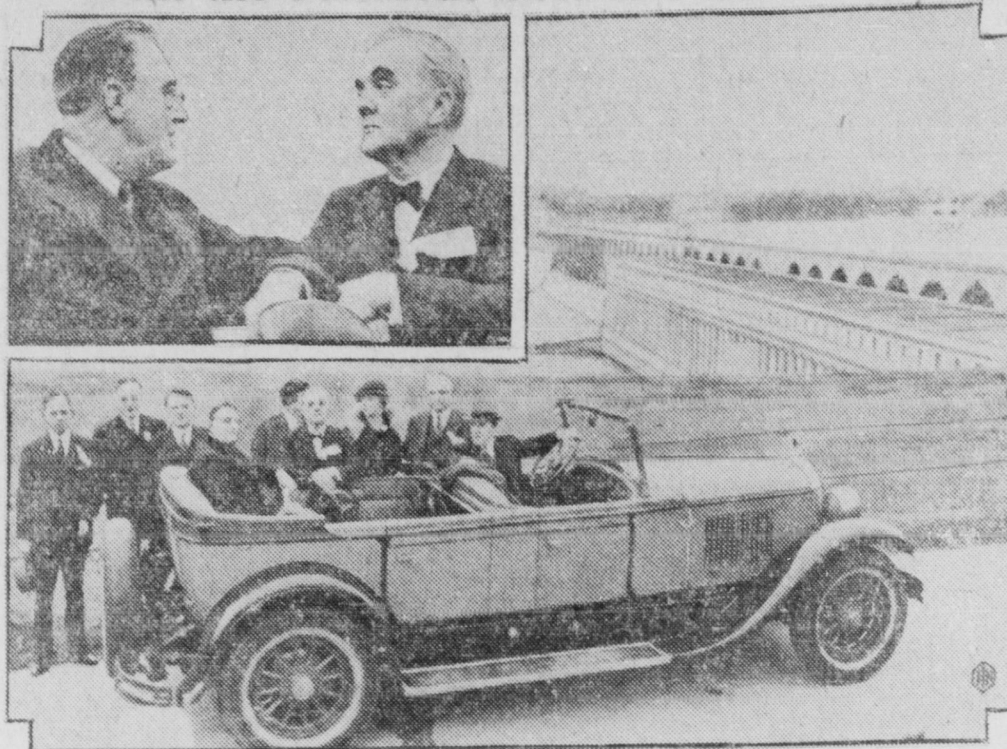

Hook and his supporters were never satisfied with that bout. Jarr won the verdict by a fair enough margin but Hook had several reasons for not making a better fight of it. In the first place he went into the bout with a bad knee. And then along about the middle of the bout he claimed to have been struck low by Jarr. Hook came back to Fort Wayne later to meet Ernie Maurer in an indoor bout at the G. E. club. Hook looked great against Maurer, a fighter of recognized ability and although the official verdict was a draw, the majority were of the opinion that Hook had it over the Michigan champion. On the strength of that fight, there are many who are venturing the opinion that Hook will regain the title when he meets Jarr, even though they concede that Frankie has plenty of class.

Four other bouts will support the Jarr-Hook title match.

Prices have been arranged to make it possible for every fan in this section to witness this championship battle. Ringside $1.50, one thousand seats at $1.20, and general admission 44c. A special price have been arranged for the lady fans, 54c, giving them the best reserved seats. All prices include State and Federal tax.

Our Washington Bureau has compiled and is ready to send you its new bulletin, written in simple and understandable language, giving directions for making out your income tax return.

And if you do not know about all the amounts that may be deducted from your gross income before calculating the tax, you will cheat yourself. Our new bulletin tells all this. It explains what can and what cannot be deducted, and how to calculate the tax and the surtax. If you must pay one. Ignorance of the law is no excuse. Fill out the coupon and send for this bulletin.

Once during the war Ford was forced to curtail operations to conform to wartime fuel regulations and often during the period necessary fuel was difficult to obtain.

Approximately 6,000 men are striking at the Briggs plant where their demands for higher wages were met with refusal by officials who maintained that it was impossible for them to pay higher wages and compete in the present low price market. Company officials insisted that 90 per cent of the strikers are ready to return. Strike leaders maintained that they still had the backing of the majority of the former workers and would hold out indefinitely.

SPEED—and more speed! That's the watchword of the modern era. Speedboats, racing cars and airplanes attaining the greatest speed in history on sea, land and in the air.

The fastest speed ever reached by human beings is of course the airplane record set last year in the National Air Races at Cleveland by Major James Doolittle of the United States. His time, supplanting the record held by the French Army flyer Bonnet, was 473.8 kilometers an hour—approximately FIVE MILES A MINUTE!

Last year also saw new speed marks set up on land and sea, when Sir Malcolm Campbell attained the amazing speed of 253.96 miles per hour in his racing car at Daytona Beach, Fla., and when Gar Wood, the gaunt silver-haired speedboat king, made 124.86 miles per hour in his boat Miss America X.

The new year will barely have gotten under way when one of these new speed marks will suffer a fresh assault. Sometime next month at Daytona Sir Malcolm Campbell, the smiling English daredevil whose hobby is the most dangerous sport in the world—breaking auto speed records—will take another crack at the mark which he hung up last year in his Blue Bird racing car.

The genial Sir Malcolm says that his rebuilt Blue Bird car will have 1,400 more horsepower than in 1932, and he predicts that this time he will exceed 275 miles per hour on the racing strip at the Florida beach. His ultimate goal is 300 miles an hour—airplane speed!

For three of the years since 1927 Campbell has held the auto speed record. In 1928 he broke Major Segrave's mark of 203 miles per hour, and later in the same year he saw his new mark smashed by Ray Keech, Philadelphia speed demon. In 1929 Major Segrave recaptured the title of speed king by breaking Keech's mark, and in 1931 Campbell shattered Segrave's record.

Since that time Sir Malcolm has reigned supreme, breaking his own record when he attained that astounding 253 m.p.h. last year. Incidentally Keech and Segrave were both killed during speed attempts. As regards this ever present shadow of death which hovers over each attempt at speed racing, Major Campbell merely smiles and shrugs his shoulders. His attitude is that of the fatalist, and he remains unworried by the menacing figure of the grim reaper.

W HILE blond Craig Wood, the sensational Jersey pro, has been burning up the California courses, the tournament season in Florida has also produced a brilliant young golf star in Johnny Revolta, the 21-year-old Michigan kid who won the Miami Open and finished second to Denny Shute in the rich Miami Biltmore tourney.

Both Wood and Revolta flashed into stardom almost overnight, when their remarkable shooting in recent winter tourneys completely overshadowed the play of such links giants as Sarazen, Dutra, Hagen, Diegel, Burke and others.

Wood is a tall, good-looking fellow, with light curly hair and the build of a heavyweight boxer. Revolta is also a tall chap, but there the physical resemblance between them ends. Michigan Johnny is gaunt and rawboned, and a shaggy mop of raven black hair tops his determined, square-jawed countenance. His face always wears a serious expression, and down at Miami they were calling him "Dead Pan Johnny" because he hardly ever smiles.

Revolta's story reads like a romance. Although he won the Michigan Open in 1930 and 1931 and captured the pro title of the state in 1931, still his golf fame remained merely local. He was unknown to the general golf public until he went to Florida this winter. Johnny hadn't intended to take the Florida trip this season, but an enthusiastic friend finally persuaded him to try his luck in the big winter tourneys at Miami.

When the black-thatched Michigan lad arrived in Miami he was cash to pay for his entry fee in the Miami-Biltmore Open, but everything finally turned out O. K. He met a caddy there who staked him to his entry money, then he proceeded to shoot spectacular golf during the tourney, winding up the second money in the rich tournament means the tidy sum of $1,250, you must have felt.

A few weeks later Johnny added considerably to his fame—also his bankroll—by shooting a phenomenal 278 for 72 holes to earn the top spot in the Miami Open, finishing four strokes ahead of Denny Shute, his nearest rival.

Smart linksmen who have seen the Michigan Meteor play say that he is no flash in the pan. As a shrewd judge of golfers as Walter Hagen has tabbed Revolta as the greatest golfing prospect to come into prominence since the sensational rise of Horton Smith several winters ago.

According to Hagen, Revolta has all the qualities that go to make up a great golfer. He has all the shots—plus a great golfing temperament. He is cool and deliberate on the links, and his nerves seem to be made of steel. He isn't the worrying type and he plays each shot as it comes. The severe tension of big time tournament golf doesn't seem to bother Revolta in the least. With a temperament like that, Leo Diegel would be unbeatable!

Meanwhile, the folks out at Menominee, Mich., where Johnny comes from, are rooting for Revolta to win the National Open title next June, and if he plays as well at Chicago as he did in Florida, he may do that very thing.
