And now for April showers and a little touch of real spring. It tastes good after the long old winter.

Congress growled a little but lost but little time in passing the administration reforestation bill which will provide employment for 250,000 people. After all its results that count.

Look over the advertisements in the Daily Democrat each day. Its the easy way to keep posted on what is going on in the leading stores and that gives you a good chance to save money.

Two years ago Knute Rockne, greatest football coach in America met death when a plane in which he was traveling to the Pacific coast collapsed and in his memory the schools at Notre Dame closed today while appropriate services were held.

If your car carries the old green 1932 license plates, you are liable to arrest and while the department does not wish to make things unpleasant for any one, they feel they have been quite lenient. In most states the deadline is January 1st but in Indiana the time has been extended three months and officials must now enforce the law.

Ben Stern, secretary to Senator VanNuys says it will probably be ninety days before any considerable number of federal appointments are made. The President wants the more important legislation out of the way before he starts disappointing members of congress, each of whom will have a list of applications sufficient to fill all the places.

Evidently some of the boys who get a thrill out of destroying property are still at it, notwithstanding the warnings given by officials. Recently some gang broke the street lights in front of the Evangelical church and have thrown missiles through almost every window at the rear of the building. Such uncalled for actions deserve punishment that will make the boys realize there are laws against such wilful trespass.

Indianapolis school teachers have shown a high spirit of loyalty by offering to continue school through the spring term without pay if necessary. They are out of funds there and the authorities are doubtful that they can secure the money with which to pay salaries. Preferring to teach without recompense than to have the children lose the term in school, the teachers have made their generous offer. They ought to be paid as soon as possible and surely will be.

Another outrageous burglary of a Decatur business house should be sufficient warning that greater police protection is necessary. One or two men can scarcely look after the entire city and if they happen to be called to some other section of the city, the entire downtown district is then left to the designs of bandits. Economy is an excellent thing and must of course be practised but we should remember that insufficient police protection is often an expensive bit of saving. While these burglaries seem impossible, similar jobs have been pulled in many cities even larger than this. Any thing that will give greater protection in the future should be provided immediately.

Prohibition breweries, in their fierce competition, owned saloons in order to guarantee output for their products. This custom of the brewery controlling the retail trade was said to be the root of many evils in the days before aridness. The new Indiana liquor control act strikes at this evil. It provides that no manufacturer of alcoholic beverages "shall supply, furnish, give or pay for any furniture, fixtures, furnishings or equipment used in or about any place which shall require a license" for the sale of these beverages. The manufacturer also is prohibited from advancing money to pay for liquor licenses "or to be interested in the conduct or operation of the business of any person, corporation of concern engaged in the sale at retail of any beverages covered by this act."—Indianapolis Star.

The fact that England has had no bank failures in the past five years is given as an argument for chain banking. The same is true of Canada. But both those countries have paid dearly for the insurance against bank failures. They have stunted the growth of their countries, assisted in centralizing all the wealth in the banking centers and otherwise hindered the development of the smaller cities and towns outside the financial centers. On the other hand, the United States plan of independent banks in all cities has caused the uniform growth and development, with wealthy men in nearly every community. Nobody who has traveled in Canada can fail to notice the lack of cities of 15,000 to 100,000 population, the kind that have contributed so largely to the prosperity and growth of the United States. —Newcastle Courier-Times.

Fresh Tea
It is not healthy to drink tea made from water that has stood all night. The tea kettle should be emptied in the morning and fresh water be poured in it before putting it on to boil for the tea.

Children's Teeth
Rusks and crusts of bread should be given to children as soon as they can eat them. It will harden their teeth and make them grow healthily.

Marble
Most stains on marble can be removed by rubbing with a cloth dampened with benzine.
