The memory of the day it served the one-time men of war had made.
Many believed such a parade may never be seen again, for the flower of America's youth.

"HELLO, MRS. JONES! I just called to tell you that we have a telephone again. . . . Yes, it is working now and he ordered a telephone this morning when he got his first pay check. . . . I wanted to tell you that we have been a nuisance for the last time in borrowing telephone service from your neighbors. . . . My! It's good to have a telephone of our own!"

crecendo of martial music for feet whose rhythm was not as perfect as it once had been. It was no monotone or olive drab, burnished gun stocks and gleaming rifle barrels, but uniforms of scarlet and cream with silver helmets, or sleek trappings of powder blue.
The scene attracted Chicago's millions and thousands from over the country who came to see dad or husband march again. At dawn the legion was assembling. It would be dusk before the last man marched in salute around the amphitheater dedicated to his fallen comrades.

Great mile areas were blocked off. Chicago's boulevard lakefront, gem of civic possession, belonged to the veterans. Half the city's police force was detailed to handle throngs such as never had assembled here before.
Parade melted into parade as the legionnaires celebrated. A few hours before they had turned the boulevard into a carnival as confetti filled the air like snow and the roar of toy cannons and torpedoes blasted in a barrage of noise. Loop streets were jammed from building to building with a solid mass of cheering, shouting crowds.

Devil's Island Felon Shipment Sets Record

Not only that, but also for the first time she will make a second trip in one year with 200 more bad men. Among the desperadoes in the first shipment was Guy Davin, the young Frenchman convicted of murdering Richard Wall, an American, for $300. The chances of anyone escaping from Devil's Island are said to be 1,000 to 1 against. For if a convict succeeds in eluding his human guards, he still must contend with fever-ridden swamps, venomous snakes and man-eating sharks that infest the surrounding waters.

Rules State Can't Ask Receivership

Indianapolis, Oct. 3.—(U.P.)—The state, through the Insurance Commissioner or the Attorney General, has no right to take a receivership action against an insurance company, Circuit Court Judge Earl R. Cox ruled late yesterday.
He sustained the demurrer of the Indiana Liberty Mutual Insurance Company, Indianapolis, Threshermen's Compensation Insurance Concern, tot the receivership action brought by State Insurance Commissioner Harry McClain, through the Attorney General.
If the state could take such an action it could as well ask appointment of a receiver for any private company, the court said.

Starlets in Camera Debut

Aboard Presidential Special, en route New York, Oct. 3.—(U.P.)—Grave international problems involving the possibility of Cuban intervention occupied the attention of President Roosevelt as he headed eastward today from Chicago.

Although gratified by the nationwide reaction to his American Legion speech that laid down the principle of "no privileges" for the veteran, the chief executive was more eager to hear from the state department the latest developments in the new crisis of the island republic.

While Mr. Roosevelt had had brief telephone communication with Secretary of State Hull he was anxious to reach his desk in New York to obtain complete details of Havana fighting.

The President's schedule called for him to reach New York at 12:30 p. m. EST. He will proceed directly to his East 6th street home where he planned to complete tonight the speech he will deliver tomorrow before the National Catholic Charities in New York.

CLAIM MINERS ARE PROTECTED

non-union miner could be hired.
NRA leaders conceded that the steel companies were within their rights in declining to sign such a contract. The steel concerns feared especially that signature would strengthen the hand of organized labor in its attempt to organize the steel mills.

In this situation, Johnson implored the miners to give up their demands for recognition "in the national interest" and to contribute to "an immediate resumption of work."

Donald Richberg, NRA counsel, explained that even without union contracts the workers in "captive" mines were assured wages at least as high as those fixed in union contracts with other operators in the districts in which the "captive" mines are located.

The miners, now thoroughly unionized, may choose John L. Lewis, president of the union mine workers, or whoever they choose to represent them in negotiations with operators of the "captive" mines. But if any contract or agreement were drawn up, it would not be between the operators and the union as such, but between the operators and the representative of the employees.
