WAR VETERANS JOIN IN RIOTS ON GOVERNMENT

declaration as Daladier prepared to go to the chamber.

It called on all republicans to unite in defense of "one of the rare regimes of liberty which still exist in the world."

One of the shortest such declarations in recent years, and most vigorous, it plunged directly into the Stavisky affair, pleading for "complete light with courage and energy."

It challenged critics of recent administrative changes with the statement:

"The government already has begun its task. Constituted eight days ago, it asks that it be judged by one of its first acts."

Daladier pledged his government to establish a Stavisky investigation committee on which all parties would be represented. But, he added, while the investigation was going on parliament must continue work and vote on urgent legislation.

One law, he said, must be to protect investors against repetition of such a collapse as that of Stavisky's bank.

Seek Machine Gun Used By Dillinger

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 6.—(UP)—Search for the machine gun used to have been used and abandoned by the Dillinger gangsters in the East Chicago bank robbery was begun by state police today.

Prosecutor Robert G. Estell of Lake county, who will press the murder charges against John Dillinger for slaying of patrolman Patrick O'Malley, East Chicago wrote to Al Peeney, State safety department Chief, regarding the machine gun.

He was under the impression that it had been brought to Indianapolis by state police. Peeney said the weapon was not here and ordered state police to search for it at East Chicago.

Honorary Degree

The doctor of philosophy degree is usually conferred after three years of resident study beyond the bachelor's degree. An essential requirement, in addition to the completion of graduate courses, is the preparation of a thesis which demonstrates the ability to produce an original piece of work in the field in which the student is specializing. The degree is not conferred as an honorary degree in this country at the present time.

Check List for Small Vegetable Garden

Maximum profits from the home garden are reaped when all work is done by the owner. The size of the most profitable garden will therefore depend upon the amount of leisure the owner has, and his inclination to do gardening work.

Unless the product of the home garden is needed for food which could not be purchased, it is not wise to plant a larger space than will be well tended. Two hours on each of three days a week devoted to this leisurely, pleasant and healthful physical recreation will take good care of a garden 30 by 40 feet or thereabouts; and from this space can be harvested vegetables sufficient for the average family, except for potatoes and sweet corn.

In deciding what shall be grown, these crops may be considered as necessary in most sections of our country:

Beans	Parsnips
Lima Beans	Parsley
Beets	Peppers
Carrots	Onion sets
Cabbage	Peas
Chard	Radishes
Cucumbers	Swiss chard
Lettuce	Tomatoes

Eliminate, of course, those you do not like, and remember that it is better to grow small amounts of many things than to devote your entire area to relatively few vegetables which will likely be overproduced, and give you a monotonous diet.

One of the great advantages of the home garden is the opportunity it gives to grow annual vegetables which you might not otherwise try. To replace items eliminated from the above list, or to add to it if you have the space, here are some suggestions:

Brussels' sprouts for fall crop; celery, broccoli, especially the green sprouting, Chinese cabbage for fall salads; savory cabbage, a great delicacy; chicory or endive for fall green salads; collards, corn salad, egg plant, celeriac, cress, kale, kohlrabi, leek, melons, mustard greens, pumpkin, okra, oyster plant, spinach, squash, both the winter kind and the summer varieties which are so delicious in the baby stage, especially the vegetable marrow; and turnips and rutabagas, which are especially successful in sections which have an early spring and late fall.

A ramble through your seed catalogue will produce other suggestions which should be considered in making up your seed order. Some new vegetable or variety added to your list will give you more pleasure than the staples, and it will be something to serve your friends when they come to dine.
