

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS, BUSINESS CARDS, AND NOTICES

FOR SALE

FOR SALE—500 bu. of good corn, 200 bu. of oats and a lot of buzz wood, mostly oak. Julius Haugk, phone 666. 45a3tx

FOR SALE—International Correspondence school course. Can be exchanged for any desired course. Reasonable price. Write box "AB" % Democrat. 44-31x

FOR SALE—Used Fordson tractor; 2 tractor plows; 2 cultipackers; rotary hoe; 2 Wayne air compressors, like new; 10 electric motors 1-4 hp. to 5 hp. See the new Fordson tractor. Craigville Garage. gFeb. 12, 15, 20, 22, 27 M.2x

FOR SALE—8-16 International Tractor in good condition; 3 yr. old gelding, some barley good for seed. John Struse, Route 5, 3-4 mi. north of Washington School House 873-E. 46-31x

Just received a shipment of spring hats, prices reasonable. Maude A. Merriman, 222 S. 4th St. 46-2t

FOR SALE—Several good used washing machines, spare finger rolls and other repairs, at very low prices. Ferd Klenk, Route 8 or phone 710-E. 46-31x

FOR SALE—Nice young beef quarters. Herman Bosse, R. R. 5, 4 miles south, 3 miles west of Decatur, or 1 mile south and 1 mile west of Washington church. 45-31x

FOR SALE—Gray feed baby buggy nursery chair, 50 ft white peacock fence, 2 stoves, like new. 512 Short St. 45-31x

FOR SALE—New quality furniture at bargain prices. 2 pc. living room suites, $35; 2 pc. bedroom suites, $35; 3 pc. dining room suites $25; 9x12 Axminster rugs, $25; 9x12 felt base rugs, $4.95; kitchen cabinets, $22.50; Kalamazoo ranges, factory prices; bed springs, $6; mattresses, $6; watch our windows for bargains. Sprague Furniture Co., phone 199. 44-5

WANTED

WANTED—Ladies to know that Mrs. Laura Stahlhut of the Laura Beauty Shop, Fort Wayne, will be at the Becker Beauty Shop giving permanents. For further information call Mrs. Becker, phone 1280. 45-3t

BELGIAN KING LAID TO REST THIS MORNING

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE)
Lieutenant general to which rank he was promoted after the king's death.

With him were his brother Prince Charles; handsome, dark Crown Prince Humbert of Italy, wearing the uniform of an infantry general—he commands the 5th Italian brigade—and the familiar figure of the Prince of Wales, in the red coated uniform of the Welsh guards of which he is colonel, with his black bearskin hat; tall King Boris of Bulgaria; King Christian of Denmark, Prince Sukhodov of Siam, Crown Prince Gustav Adolf of Sweden, Crown Prince Olaf of Norway, Prince Paul of Yugoslavia, Prince Henry of Holland, Prince Felix of Luxembourg and Prince Nicholas of Roumania.

President Albert Lebrun of France, Premier Gaston Doumergue, Marshal Philippe Pétain, French war minister and Ignace Paderewski, pianist and first premier of the Polish republic, followed.

Minister Von Kellar of Germany was conspicuous in the group of ambassadors and ministers accredited to the Belgian court.

It took more than an hour for the procession to pass.

At the cathedral, the solemn high requiem mass was celebrated, with its aweing cadences.

The sudden tinkle of a silver bell started the band of the British grenadier guards, sent for the funeral, into the Belgian national anthem. The service ended, the congregation filed out slowly and the procession started along the four-mile route to the king's tomb at Laeken.

Royalties and officials went by automobile.

At Notre Dame church at Kaeken, there occurred the last public tribute to the king. At the door, the king and princes and others specially invited filed past the king's coffin, still on the gun carriage, to pay final honor. The gun caisson wheeled about, the caisson was lifted out and carried into the church.

There, with only relatives and intimate friends of the dead king present, the cardinal gave last absolution.

Non-commissioned officers, war veterans, took the coffin and lowered it into the royal vault in the crypt, to lie beside two former kings, the Leopold I who founded the little kingdom, and the Leopold II, Albert's predecessor, who created its empire abroad.

MARKET REPORTS

DAILY REPORT OF LOCAL AND FOREIGN MARKETS

BERNE MARKET

Corrected Feb. 22
No commission and no yardage
Veals received Tuesday Wednesday Friday and Saturday

160 to 210 lbs.	$4.25
210 to 250 lbs.	$4.25
250 to 300 lbs.	$4.15
300 to 350 lbs.	$4.00
140 to 160 lbs.	$4.00
130 to 140 lbs.	$3.00
100 to 120 lbs.	$2.25
Roughs	$3.00
Stags	$1.75
Vealers	$6.75
Lambs	$9.25

Decatur Produce Company

Egg Market
No. 1 dozen	15c
No. 2 dozen	14c
No. 3 dozen	12c

EAST BUFFALO LIVESTOCK

East Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 22—

Live-Livestock:
Hogs, receipts, 1,400; holdovers, 1,000; weights above 200 lbs. active to packers, strong to 10 higher; lighter weights slow, steady to 5c lower; bulk desirable 160 to 230 lbs., $4.90 to $5; 240 to 280 lbs., $4.75 to $5; 120 to 150 lbs., $4 to $4.50; plain pigs and unfinished lights, $3.25 to $4.25.
Cattle, receipts, 175; mostly cows; steady; cutter grades, $2.40 to $3.25.
Calves, receipts, 75; vealers slow, steady to $7.50 down.
Sheep, receipts, 100; lambs steady to weak; good to near choice woolskins, $10; choice quoted, $10.25.

Fort Wayne Livestock
Fort Wayne, Ind., Feb. 22—(UP) Livestock: Hogs steady; 160-200 lbs. $4.50; 200-250 lbs. $4.40; 250-300 lbs. $4.30; 300-350 lbs. $4.10; 150-160 lbs. $4.10; 140-150 lbs. $3.85; 120-140 lbs. $3.60; 120-130 lbs. $3.10. Roughs $3.50; Stags $2.
Calves $7.50; Western lambs $9.25 native lambs $9.

LOCAL GRAIN MARKET

Corrected Feb. 22

No. 1 New Wheat, 60 lbs or	79c
Better	79c
No. 2 New Wheat 58 lbs.	78c
Old Oats	32c
New Oats	30c
First Class Yellow Corn	54c
Mixed corn 5c less
Soy Beans	50c-60c

Army Aviator Is Killed In Crash

Denison, Tex., Feb. 22—(UP)—U. S. Army Lieut. Fred Patrick was killed here today when his monoplane crashed while he was flying at a low altitude.

Patrick was not flying on official business, but was en route here to join his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Patrick, in celebration of his father's birthday.

Ge the Habit — Trade at Home

NOTICE OF ADMINISTRATOR'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE TO PAY DEBTS

The undersigned administrator of the estate of John P. Shoemaker, deceased, being Cause No. 2361 pending in the Adams County Circuit Court, Decatur, Indiana, by order of the Judge of said court, hereby gives notice that he will on Wednesday the 21st day of March, 1934, beginning at the hour of 10 o'clock A. M., at the East door of the court house in the city of Decatur, Indiana, and continuing from day to day thereafter until sold, offer for sale at public sale, for not less than 2-3 of the full appraised value (see the following described real estate in Adams County, Indiana, to-wit:

1st tract—The Southeast quarter of the Southeast quarter of Section 26, Township 25 North of Range 13 East, containing 40 acres more or less—Appraised at $4500.00

2nd tract—The West half of the Southeast quarter of section 26 in township 25 north of range 13 East, containing 20 acres—Appraised at $2400.00

Terms of sale—1-3 cash in hand 1-3 in six months, and 1-3 in twelve months, the deferred payments to be evidenced by the notes of the purchaser bearing six per cent interest from date and secured by a mortgage on the real estate sold. Said real estate will be offered first in parcels then as a whole and same will be sold in either event to the highest bidder either in parcels or as a whole. Said real estate will be sold free of liens except the taxes assessed in the year of 1934 due and payable in the year 1935.

Clifton Shoemaker, Administrator
Haynes & Jenkins, Attorneys
Feb. 22, M 1-8-15

Guaranteed RADIO SERVICE

We repair any make of radio, promptly and at a very reasonable cost. Tubes tested free. Phone 244.

Decatur Elec. Shop

N. A. BIXLER

OPTOMETRIST

Eyes Examined, Glasses Fitted

HOURLY:

8:30 to 11:30 12:30 to 5:00

Saturdays, 8:00 p. m.

To Hunt Fossils

Harve, Mont. —(UP)—Exploration of Missouri River Valley lands in the area of the Fort Peck Dam for fossil remains probably will be undertaken this summer, according to Darwin Harbight, U. S. E. C. Harbight, who is working out of Liberal, Kan. —(UP)—A new method to catch geese in large numbers has been devised here. One farmer dumped a cask of mash on his field. The geese alighted and ate the mash, becoming so drunk that they fell. The farmer then picked up as many as he needed and left the others, which flew away as the intoxicant wore off.

Kanzen Trapped Geese

"TAKE THIS WOMAN"

By Allene Corliss

COPYRIGHT BY ALLENE CORLISS • DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

Stanley Paige, beautiful, young society girl, is left penniless when her lawyer speculates with her money and loses. Stanley, however, cares little for the money, feeling that she has everything in the love of fascinating Drew Armitage. But when Drew breaks their engagement saying it would be impossible to marry on his income, she is heartbroken. Rather than accept aid from her wealthy friends, Stanley rents a cheap furnished room and disappears from her exclusive circle to try and make her own way. Her friends agree that a better way would have been to marry a handsome Perry Devereast, but Stanley cannot forget Drew. One day, she meets John Harmon Northrup, struggling young author. A strong friendship ensues and they become very necessary to one another. John Harmon is in love with Stanley but refrains from telling her because of Drew. Stanley meets Marcia Wingate, one of her old set. Marcia tells Stanley she will arrange a dinner party and get in touch with her, but Stanley does not believe that Marcia will call her.

"The men are stupid and the air is poisonous. Let's get out of here, Nigel. I only came because I thought Drew might be here. He's in town again, for a week or two."

"I thought perhaps that was the reason. Still interested in the unattainable Drew?"

"I've never been able to catch the trick of his profile. It's his profile that's so wonderful, you know, Nigel. He's no better than lots of handsome men—caught at any other angle."

"I don't know whether you're serious or not," observed Nigel in his light impersonal voice, "but anyhow it's an answer. Where are we going?"

"Oh, I don't care—down to your place, if you want to."

"By all means. I bought some etchings the other day, Dennis, they're rather good." He touched her arm caressively.

They went out together. It was just six o'clock. A slow dusk was settling over Park Avenue. It touched with tranquil fingers the high, aristocratic fronts of the apartment houses, gave them less of arrogance, more of beauty. Somewhere Marcia's beige car was threading its way insolently through the traffic—somewhere Stanley was clinging to a subway strap. On the bottom step of Mrs. Foley's boarding-house John Harmon was waiting, as usual, his hands in his pockets, his eyes on the corner.

He saw her when she was still a block away. There was never any mistaking the swing of her slim, lithe body, the angle of her close little hat. Even at a distance there was something distinctive about her, something different. He sprang to his feet, crushing back all the sweet, wild emotions that surged over him at the sight of her. Since that day on the beach he had denied their existence, had forced himself into a matter-of-factness he was a long way from feeling. He had not forgotten—but he had gone on as if he had. That was the secret of it, to go on exactly as though there was nothing in the world but friendship and mutual understanding, ignoring this other thing which was so impossible and so compelling and so terrifyingly real.

He met her halfway down the street, his coat collar turned up, his hands still plunged in his pockets. "We're celebrating tonight," he told her joyfully, tucking her arm through his. "Gay Set bought 'Who Kissed Linda,' and it'll come out in the April Review. We're three hundred dollars ahead in actual cash and one million in high spirits. Where do we eat?"

"What you need," observed Stanley severely, frowning at his apparent effort not actually to shiver, "is a new overcoat."

"Well, I'm a darned sight nearer one than I was yesterday," he told her with a grin. "I'd been trying to sell 'Linda' for so long I'd lost all faith in her. She seemed a flimsy little thing and who cared who kissed her anyway? But Norris over at Gay Set seemed to have quite charming after all. Tomorrow I shall buy an overcoat—in the meantime we're going to celebrate."

"Let's go over to your place and get dinner ourselves—have you any wood for a fire?"

"Three bags full!"

"Fine! What shall it be? A steak or some of those marvelous sausages—"

"But aren't you too tired to mess around?" His eyes belied the concern in his voice. He hoped awfully that she wouldn't be.

"I'd love it. We'll get an apple pie and some pickles and some cheese—"

"And I'll make the coffee—I've discovered a new kind—wait till you smell it!"

They made their purchases and walked the block and a half through the crisp October dusk, loaded with parcels.

John Harmon pushed open his door, which he never locked, and dumping his armful of bundles onto the table lighted a fire already laid in the black marble fireplace.

With a checked apron, which they kept for these occasions, tied over her office dress, Stanley began efficiently opening the packages. They had decided finally on sausages, and in a few minutes they were sizzling fragrantly in a pan, while coffee bubbled gently over a second gas burner.

"Some day when I'm very rich I shall buy a percolator," announced John Harmon, as the amber liquid bubbled over and put out the gas flame.

"That," said Stanley quickly, "would spoil everything."

"Being very rich?"

"Of course not, stupid—making coffee in a percolator!"

"So middle-class, you mean?"

grinned John Harmon, pushing his typewriter onto the floor and setting the table with a miscellaneous collection of dishes, bought as necessity demanded at the ten-cent store.

"Exactly," agreed Stanley.

The room was quiet for a space. The fire burned briskly on the hearth, the sausages sputtered in their pan. Stanley, standing over them with a fork in one hand, a pickle in the other, said suddenly:

"You know, this room has lots of possibilities—it just cries to be fixed up."

"It certainly cries for paint!" agreed John Harmon feelingly.

"Soft ivory paint, a dull green floor, chintz curtains at the windows, a couple of big wing chairs, some pewter candlesticks with tall blue candles, an old maple desk, a big divan with lots of cushions, some flowers in blue bowls, a few pictures on the wall, a singing kettie on the hearth—"

"That's not a room you're describing," interrupted John Harmon huskily, "that's a home. And knew he shouldn't have said it."

"Yes, I know," Stanley answered quietly and turned a sausage expertly. She had learned a lot about cooking—and other things—from John Harmon.

"By the way, I've lost my job," she told him later, when they had finished eating and were having their cigarettes and coffee. Stanley had the one and only comfortable chair and John Harmon sat on the floor in front of her, his long legs sprawled out to the leaping fire.

"The other girl is back again," she explained briefly.

"I hate to think of your looking for a job. I wish things were different. I don't look at her, I looked into the fire."

"How different, John Harmon?"

"Oh, just different," John Harmon shrugged and laughed a bit awkwardly. "What are you going to do about it—the job, I mean?"

"I don't know, exactly. I'd thought of part-time governess—teaching French and music, I suppose."

"But you'd hate that sort of thing!"

"Of course, but I'm not keen about office work for that matter, and the other would pay better."

"Don't you ever want to go back?" John Harmon was lighting a cigarette. There was a blur of smoke before his eyes. "To where you came from?"

"No."

"But you'd get away from all this."

Stanley interrupted him with a short little laugh. "Don't talk like Valerie," she told him, "and don't be so sure I want to get away from all this. I certainly don't, not on the terms I'd have to go back on."

"You mean?"

"Marriage or charity—both equally impossible."

"Yes, of course."

"So if you don't mind too much, I'm going to stay right here."

(To Be Continued)

Copyright, 1932, by Allene Corliss
Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Test Your Knowledge

Can you answer seven of these test questions? Turn to page Four for the answers.

1. In what novel by George Du Maurier does the character Sven-gali appear?
2. What proportion of the Senators are elected every two years?
3. What are the members of Church of the Brethren popularly called?
4. Name the Secretary of the Navy.
5. In what country is Coahuila a State?
6. What famous novel was written by Harriet Beecher Stowe?
7. In which State is the Suwannee River?
8. What European country owns Congo Free State?
9. Of which American Colony was Lord Dunmore the English Governor?
10. Where is the Ubangi River?

NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNERS IN THE MATTER OF OPENING, RUSSELL AND BOLLMAN STREETS IN THE CITY OF DECATUR, INDIANA

Notice is hereby given that the Common Council in and for the City of Decatur, Indiana did on the 20th day of February, 1934 pass a declaratory resolution for the opening, changing and widening of Russell and Bollman Streets in said city as follows, to-wit:

Description of Russell Street
Commencing at the northwest corner of outlet number 82 in J. D. Nuttman's Southern Addition to the town (new city) of Decatur, Indiana as the same is designated on the recorded plat of said addition; thence south along the west line of said outlet; thence east on the south line of said outlet sixteen and one-half (16½) feet; thence north parallel with the west line of said outlet to the north line of said outlet; thence west on the north line of said outlet sixteen and one-half (16½) feet to the place of beginning containing a strip of land sixteen and one-half (16½) feet wide off of the south side of outlet 82; all as shown by a plat of such proposed opening now on file in the office of the City Clerk of said City.

The only lot, lots and parcel of lands affected by the opening of Russell Street as above described will be outlet 82 in J. D. Nuttman's Southern Addition to the town (new city) of Decatur, Indiana as the same is designated on the recorded plat of said addition; thence south along the west line of said outlet; thence east on the south line of said outlet sixteen and one-half (16½) feet to the place of beginning containing a strip of land twenty-five (25) feet wide off of the south side of outlet 82; all as shown by a plat of such proposed opening now on file in the office of the City Clerk of said City.

The property which may be injuriously or beneficially affected in said City of Decatur, Indiana, by the opening of said Russell Street in said City as above described, is known and described above as grounds herein proposed to be condemned and appropriated therefor.

The only lot, lots and parcel of lands affected by the opening of Bollman Street will be outlet 82 in J. D. Nuttman's Southern Addition to the town (new city) of Decatur, Indiana.

Further notice is given that the said Common Council in and for said City will meet on the 12th day of March, 1934 at 7:00 o'clock P. M. at their Council Room in said City to receive and hear remonstrance which may have been filed or presented by persons interested or affected by such proceeding.

Witness my hand and seal this 20th day of February, 1934.

Alice Christen, City Clerk.
Feb. 22 M-1

"But you'd hate that sort of thing!"

"Of course, but I'm not keen about office work for that matter, and the other would pay better."

"Don't you ever want to go back?" John Harmon was lighting a cigarette. There was a blur of smoke before his eyes. "To where you came from?"

"No."

"But you'd get away from all this."

Stanley interrupted him with a short little laugh. "Don't talk like Valerie," she told him, "and don't be so sure I want to get away from all this. I certainly don't, not on the terms I'd have to go back on."

"You mean?"

"Marriage or charity—both equally impossible."

"Yes, of course."

"So if you don't mind too much, I'm going to stay right here."

(To Be Continued)

Copyright, 1932, by Allene Corliss
Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

As Postmaster Brown Testified

Interesting studies of Postmaster General Walter F. Brown as testified before the Senate airmail investigating committee. At right, Brown is sworn as a witness and at left, the Candid Camera records various changes of expression as the former Cabinet member denies collusion in awarding airmail contracts.

Early Thoughts on Bouquets

A little discussion of the best means of producing beautiful effects with flower bouquets will not prove amiss at this time of the year when everyone is thinking of the garden they are to produce in the next few months.

Artistic expression, such as flower arrangement, is difficult to define, but fortunately there are certain general principles which, if followed, will produce delightful displays.

A reproduction of the conditions under which the flower grew is the aim to cope with. This cannot be done literally, of course, but by proper lighting flowers can be displayed in a color representation very similar to that of the garden. For instance, a bouquet of flowers in a dark corner of the room will not show up to advantage merely because of the unnatural lighting, or lack of it. They lose the lustre that made them so attractive in the garden. On the other hand, the same bouquet on the dining room table will show up admirably, principally because the adequate lighting from the top sets them off as

Spring is the best time to make applications of commercial food. Those of a soluble type get down to the fast growing roots immediately before the rains have a chance to wash it away.

It is a mistaken notion that only those flowers that are bloomed should be picked for bouquet. Try to have both blooming flowers and buds in your arrangement; it is more natural.

Too many flowers and too many colors cause most of the failures. A few carefully selected for a many of color will do much better, and although it is possible to make attractive bouquets of flowers of all colors when colors are well balanced, simplicity of arrangement will prove most satisfactory in the small home bouquet.

It is a mistaken notion that only those flowers that are bloomed should be picked for bouquet. Try to have both blooming flowers and buds in your arrangement; it is more natural.

Spring is the best time to make applications of commercial food. Those of a soluble type get down to the fast growing roots immediately before the rains have a chance to wash it away.

It is a mistaken notion that only those flowers that are bloomed should be picked for bouquet. Try to have both blooming flowers and buds in your arrangement; it is more natural.

Too many flowers and too many colors cause most of the failures. A few carefully selected for a many of color will do much better, and although it is possible to make attractive bouquets of flowers of all colors when colors are well balanced, simplicity of arrangement will prove most satisfactory in the small home bouquet.

It is a mistaken notion that only those flowers that are bloomed should be picked for bouquet. Try to have both blooming flowers and buds in your arrangement; it is more natural.

Spring is the best time to make applications of commercial food. Those of a soluble type get down to the fast growing roots immediately before the rains have a chance to wash it away.</