THE MESSAGE TO JOHN THE BAPTIST

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR MARCH 4, 1934
Matthew 11:2-12:50.

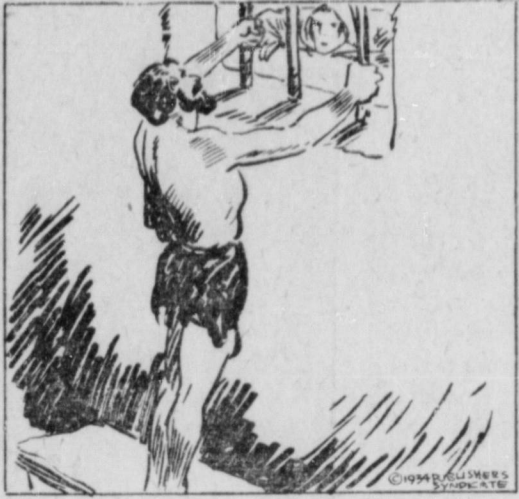

By HARLOWE R. HOYT
WALTER SCOTT

When John the Baptist set out upon his career of preaching he devoted his attention to two things—announcement of the coming of the Messiah and the denunciation of the sins common to his generation. At this time, Herod Antipas was tetrarch of Galilee and Peraea. He had taken action to put aside his wife and was living with Herodias, the wife of his brother Phillip.

John the Baptist could not turn the tides of his wrath upon the common folk and overlook such a violation of the laws of God and man as was committed by this ruler. So he proceeded to denounce the tetrarch of his teachings. Naturally enough, this resulted in his arrest. He was taken to the gloomy prison of Machaerus and confined in an underground dungeon.

It was while John the Baptist was confined in this dungeon that word came to him of the preaching of Jesus. John had baptized Jesus to be sure but due to his confinement he had not heard of the great work which was being accomplished. John had preached the coming of the Messiah and had recognized Jesus as such. Yet he sent messengers to question him as to his status.

"Art thou he that cometh or look we for another?" John the Baptist inquired. To this question, Jesus replied to the messengers: "Go and tell John the things which ye hear and see." For Christ at this time was in the second year of his ministry. He had established his headquarters in Capernaum, and he was performing miracles, healing the sick, and emphasizing his message to all.

The "New Deal" Relief And Recovery Organizations

A year ago the country turned its eyes anxiously to Washington. Black clouds overhung the economic horizon. Depositors were frantically withdrawing funds from banks where banks were still open; twelve to thirteen million workers were unemployed; lengthening bread lines shuffled their weary way day after day; indexes of industrial and economic life were dropping; farmers, wage-earners, and business men were desperate. A year has passed. But the picture is changed. From despair and doubt the people of the United States—realizing the still tremendous problems to be faced—have regained courage and are looking at the future with confidence and hope. At Washington a tremendous and complex set of administrative machinery has been put into operation. It takes all the letters of the alphabet to form the initials of the names of these boards, councils, administrations, commissions and bureaus. Would you like to have an outline of their organization, powers, duties, financing and operations?

Our Washington Bureau has a new bulletin ready for you, alphabetically arranged, telling in brief and understandable language what each one is, what it does, and how it does it. Fill out the coupon below and send for it.

BEHIND THE SCENES in HOLLYWOOD

HARRISON CARROLL
HOLLYWOOD
—Film stars and other visitors to Palm Springs may soon be listening to pressure sales-talks by Charles Carroll and Ralph Bellamy.

It could happen only in Hollywood.
Ray Walker, making "Loud Speaker" for an independent company, needed a flower for his button-hole. The prop-man rushed out, picked the first one he saw.

Everything went well until mid-afternoon, when the flower suddenly closed up. The prop-man rushed out once more but was dismayed to find that all the other flowers on the bush had closed up.
They were "four o'clocks."

What to do? Close-ups had established the flower and no other kind could be used.
In desperation, the prop-man picked loose the petals, painted them with collodion and propped them open with wires.

And don't snort. It really happened.
Movie-makers have collected curious data about pre-view audiences. For instance, if they want to give a Fox picture an all-around test, they take it up for advance showings at San Jose and Oakland. It has been repeatedly established that the audience at San Jose is an adult one, while that at Oakland is composed largely of youth.

If reactions are favorable at both towns, the company gets behind the picture.
Little Janet Snowden, the oil heiress whom unfeeling New York courts so far have refused to give an annulment of her foreign marriage, has given up the idea of a screen career until she learns to walk across the stage and to master diction. She is going to school to Samuel Kayser, well known coach, who also is preparing Paulette Goddard for the talking screen.

A friend of Winfield Sheehan, Janet has been promised a screen test as soon as she completes her course. Meanwhile the gossips are guessing their heads off as to whether she'll marry Agent William Gill.

DID YOU KNOW—
That Marie Dressler, who now can make them smile or cry, was laughed off the stage at 14—and not because she was funny?

The Perfect Gift For an Invalid

An invalid, or one of those lucky friends who has time for breakfast in bed, will find endless use for this dainty bit of femininity. For those who need to be practical, it can be made (and so easily) of soft cashmere woolsens and flannel in charming pastels. But for those who just frankly want to look pretty, laces are the most alluring.

After you've made one to give away, you'll surely want to make one for yourself. As soon as you start, it's practically finished—that easy! Size 16 requires 1 1/4 yard 36-inch all-over lace.

Pattern No. 5422 is designed for sizes 16 and 20 years, 34, 38, 42 bust.
