County Grand Jury Meets With Secrecy In Dillinger Probe

Point, Ind., Mar. 21.—(U.P.)—The Lake county grand jury was believed under investigation today by a Lake county jury in connection with the case of John Dillinger, notorious gangster.

The jury met in utmost secrecy and its activities in utmost secrecy. The grand jury was believed to have called numerous witnesses who have knowledge of the operating schedule and of the whereabouts of the jail.

Lillian Holley made her appearance before the jury yesterday and was understood to have been questioned further regarding the case of Ernest Blunk, suspended for a year for her office, and abetting the escape.

Witnesses yesterday included William Schroeder, president of the county council; Henry G. Dillinger's cellmate, Mrs. Virginia Thorburn and Lorraine Uphouse, stenographer in the office of Atty. Philip Lutz, Jr.

Schroeder carried with him in grand jury room a sheaf of papers believed to have information on the sheriff's pay.

roll at the jail. Jehlik, who refused to accompany Dillinger in the break, was believed to have been questioned regarding reports that a gun had been smuggled to the outlaws two days before the escape.

The two stenographers were reported to have read to the jury a stenographic account of questioning of Blunk by Edward Barce, deputy attorney general, at Indianapolis last week.

OBJECTIONS OVERRULED BY JUDGE SLICK

The same company was the only bidder on the unmortgaged assets of the property under the control of the receiver in the State of Michigan.

Holders of Mortgage
It was shown in evidence before the federal court that the Lake Shore Sugar Company, held all mortgage bonds totaling approximately $620,000 on the properties and that the same company owned over $600,000 of claims against the receivership and had spent about $90,000 to conserve the plants, making their total cost in excess of $1,300,000. Both federal judges ordered the transfer of the properties to the mortgagors or bidders for the unmortgaged assets.

Dark Cloud Arising
There is only one dark cloud arising to mar the picture of a successful and continued operation of the local sugar factory, officers of the company declare.

This cloud, which may be of such cyclonic nature as to wipe out or destroy the beet sugar interests in several states, is the proposed amendments to the Agricultural Adjustment Act which proposes to reduce sugar production in this country and consequently reduces the acreage in territories of local factories.

The measure now before congress, proposes to reduce the sugar tonnage to 1,450,000 tons, a decrease of about 300,000 tons compared with 1933 production of sugar beet plants in the United States.

In the allocation of this reduction, local sugar company officials do not know how it will affect the situation here. If the percentage of reduction is based on a two or three-year average, the local company possibly could not operate, since it has operated but one year in the past three.

The quotas of importation of sugar from Cuba, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands, have been increased under the proposed act, nearly 300,000 tons being added to the Cuban quota. Since the bill has been in committee, it is reported that the committee to which the bill has been referred will recommend an increase of only 100,000 tons for American beet sugar plants. However, this figure would still be more than 200,000 short of the quota necessary to enable the farmers to grow sufficient beets in each area to assure the reasonable

To Unite Financial Families

John Mortimer Schiff

The betrothal of Miss Edith B. Baker, New York society beauty, to John Mortimer Schiff, sportsman and financier, is of interest not only to society but to the financial and philanthropic worlds. For the Baker and Schiff families long have held prominent places in the industrial life of America. The bride-to-be is a granddaughter of the late George F. Baker, who as head of the First National Bank, was reputed to be worth $500,000,000 at the time of his death in 1931. She will one day be the richest young woman in the world. The future bridegroom is the only son of Mortimer L. Schiff, partner in Kuhn, Loeb & Co. financial house. The young man inherited the bulk of his father's $100,000,000 fortune, when the latter died in 1931. Educated at Yale and Oxford, Schiff followed in his father's business footsteps. He is also a sportsman of note, being deeply interested in hunting and horse racing.

operation of processing plants. The beet sugar growers in the United States are asking that they be permitted to grow sufficient beets to assure the operation of their processing plants to capacity, and thus give the farmers a local market for an essential farm crop.

Farmers in the local beet sugar territories of Indiana, Ohio and Michigan are greatly concerned as to the outcome of the proposed amendment to the A.A.A. allotment bill.

Want to Operate
T. E. Snyder, vice-president and general manager of the Central Sugar Company, still has hope that congress will amend the Agricultural Bill and not reduce the American sugar tonnage under the normal capacity of each plant. Last year the mill ran 68 days, which is a very short run. "With our new yards we can handle more than 120,000 tons of beets, assuring more than a 100 day's run. If our plant comes under the reduction order it will mean a serious loss for the entire area. We should have more production of beet sugar rather than have the acreage reduced," officials stated.

At the Decatur plant alone more than $400,000 has already been paid to growers for the 1933 beet crop. Assurance has been given that an additional payment will be made sometime before July 1, depending on the sales of the remaining stock of sugar, pulp and molasses processed at the local plant. Under the terms of the new 50-50 contract the grower receives 1/2 of the net proceeds from the sale of the products manufactured by the company, and is, therefore, deeply interested in the affect of the proposed act on the industry. Up to this writing the growers have received advances of $5.50 per ton on the crop harvested last fall.

The operation of the plant last year also meant the expenditure of more than $100,000 in improving and rebuilding the yards and reovating the plant. Sufficient acreage has been signed up to insure the Decatur plant of a normal run. Many farmers would like to grow beets this year who have not been able to secure contracts and it is hoped that action by congress will not make it necessary for the company to return any of the contracts already signed by the growers.

Mr. Snyder and members of the local company are enthusiastic over local conditions and the interest farmers and sugar users have displayed over the operation of the factory. "The cooperation shown here is wonderful and we are doing everything in our power to assure capacity operation of the mill next fall," Mr. Snyder said.

The beet sugar industry in America has been referred to as a hot-house industry, not adaptable to this country. Criticism of this attitude, in view of the hundreds of thousands of dollars paid to beet growers, mill and field workers is voiced by owners of beet sugar plants and growers generally.

The Local Company
Officers of the local company, in addition to Mr. Snyder are D. W. McMillen, president; H. A. Maddox, treasurer; H. W. McMillen, secretary; H. C. Osken, plant superintendent; J. Ward Calland, agricultural and general field manager; John Neering, assistant superintendent and T. C. Smith, chief chemist.

Most of the officers and department heads reside in Decatur.

Voice Disapproval
Recently the Decatur Chamber of Commerce adopted a resolution and sent messages to United States Senators Frederick Van Nuys and Arthur R. Robinson and to Congressman James I. Farley, urging them to cooperate in the move to prevent the passage of any legislation which might injure the beet sugar industry by cutting acreage below the normal capacity of plants.

Sugar beet plants operate in 22 states and in most of these states senators and congressmen are opposing the passage of the beet acreage reduction bill, citing the injury it would cause owners and the loss to beet growers, employees and to communities that thrived last year due to the operation of the plants.

Well Financed
The Central Sugar Company has sufficient finances to continue the successful operation and expansion of the local factory. "When we decided to come here we did not ask anything except good-will and co-operation on the part of the citizens and growers and we have been given that," Mr. Snyder said. "All we need now is to have someone stop the passage of the beet sugar reduction measure so that we may continue to provide the sugar beet growers of this area with an opportunity to continue growing an important non-surplus crop, of which we produce but one-fourth of the amount we consume."

Seven Killed In Tenement Blaze

New York, Mar. 21.—(U.P.)—A series of fatal tenement fires that started less than two months ago almost coincident with the city's drive against slum apartments continued today when seven persons, including three children, were burned to death in a spectacular blaze that wrecked an "old law" structure.

The deaths raised the toll of the six recent tragic fires to 28, with more than 40 injured.

Some authorities are inclined to suspect some of the fires may have been the work of a pyromaniac moved by the widespread publicity given the city's plans to eliminate "firetraps."

The fire swept through the three upper stories of the five-story building with great rapidity and only the extraordinary efforts of firemen kept the death toll down. About 100 tenants fled to the street in night clothes.
