Village Owns Greeley's Starry

Newfield, Me. — (UP)—One of the prized relics of this village is a pair of stays worn by Horace Greeley as a baby. Until 1885 they were owned by a woman at Monroe Mills and prior to that, by Mrs. A. H. Spaulding, of Nottingham, N. H., who had laced them around Baby Horace many times.

Maury had here a masked smile of reminiscence.

But what a weird, amusing creature! And what luck, to have fallen in with her—if for nothing else, because he would otherwise have been handicapped by such ignorance of American slang that he could hardly hope to make himself understood on landing, much less get the sense of what was said to him!

Impossible to take her seriously, of course. He meant, as a woman. Making every allowance for the fact that any man with Feno in mind must inevitably see most other women out of drawing, the Boyce was none the less a curious, handsome as you please, but outrageous altogether. . . . But even more impossible to dispute her arguments, which dovedated so nicely with his unconfessed convictions. Hadn't he been from the first a helpless skeptic in respect of his father's pretensions, at heart persuaded that the spirit of the old Lone Wolf still walked in Michael Langle, like a ghost persevering to pursue his awful occasions in a tenement all made over and modernized, refurbished and refurnished, especially to discourage him?

And now this woman turned up with her allegations that chimed so truly with the counsels of experience:

"Don't take my word for it, Morris; wait till we get ashore and I fix it for you to listen in on the Underground and hear what it was saying."

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN

If his full allotment of litters are farrowed in 1934, but the number of pigs saved and raised for market from such litters is below the pig production allotment under the contract, the producer will not be permitted to farrow additional litters to fulfill his pig allotment, according to word received by County Agent Archbold from Dr. A. G. Black, chief of the corn-hog section of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Paragraph 2 of the contract specifically states that the producer must reduce his hog litters in 1934, as well as number of hogs produced for market, by not less than 25 per cent," Dr. Black said. "After farrowing, the producer's pigs, of course, might be stolen; they might die from disease or the producer might lose them for any number of reasons, all of which are among the usual hazards of farming. If we were to make exceptions in all of these cases and allow producers to farrow litters in addition to the number they are allowed under the terms of the contract, there likely would be no adequate net reduction in hog production and little advantage would result from the corn-hog

Farm Bureau Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bieberich and Miss Alvina Bieberich of Fort Wayne visited Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kirchner and family.

It should be kept in mind, however, that the producer who signs the corn-hog contract gets his hog reduction payments even though he should lose all of his hogs through disease in 1934." Dr. Blac pointed out. Heretofore, of course, if his hogs died, the producer received no compensation for such loss. Now, by signing a corn-hog contract, he may have two sources of income: the proceeds from the sale of his hogs and the reduction payments. While we cannot assure a producer that his hogs will live until marketed, we can assure him that he will receive his reduction payments so long as he complies with the terms of the contract.

Richard Abbott of Peterson spent Friday evening visiting Darrell Shadley.

Mrs. Charles Miller, Mrs. Charles Brodbeck and Mrs. Albert Mutchler called on Mrs. John Kirchner and daughters Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Smith visited Mr. and Mrs. Ora Newhard and family Sunday.

Dallas Elzey spent the week-end at Celina, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Schlickman visited Mr. and Mrs. Harry Frau-
