

Questions And Answers On Sugar Beet Program

Adams county sugar beet producers have been asking many questions about the sugar beet control program of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration which is being pushed in the county. L. E. Archbold, county agricultural agent, who is assisting in the educational campaign in cooperation with representatives of the AAA, has listed some of the questions most frequently asked together with their answers, as follows:

Q. What is the purpose of the sugar beet production adjustment program?

A. The sugar beet production adjustment program was devised to assure American sugar beet producers of a constant market by holding production to 1,556,000 tons of sugar per year—their share of the American market as fixed by the Jones-Costigan amendment to the Agricultural Adjustment Act.

Q. What brought about the Jones-Costigan act?

A. A surplus of sugar which was produced in Cuba, the Philippines, the Hawaiian Islands, and Porto Rico was being shipped into the United States and was causing ruinously low prices for U. S. producers.

Q. What proportion of our sugar needs do we produce in the United States, not including island possessions?

A. About one fourth—the remainder is produced in the Philippines, the Hawaiian Islands, Cuba, and Porto Rico. However, the importations of this so-called foreign sugar have been increasing rapidly because of the low prices accepted by these producers who have an extremely low standard of living and because duty was paid only on sugar imported from Cuba.

Q. Will the Jones-Costigan act control such shipments of foreign sugar into the United States?

A. Yes. The Jones-Costigan act permits shipments of certain amounts from outside of continental United States, each producing area being given a quota which must not be exceeded.

Q. Is any action being taken to cut sugar production in our island possessions?

A. Yes, by a reduction in production which is expected to reduce the production by one half. Sugar section officials of the AAA are now in the Philippines planning the reduction program.

Q. How does an individual producer know how much sugar he may produce if a certain quota is given to the sugar producers in America?

A. Each factory is given a quota and each farmer producing for that factory gets an acreage quota which he has been growing during the past five years. The beet section of the AAA has also set up a formula for converting tons as sugar to acreage, based on past yields per acre.

Q. What must a producer do to join in the Government plant to control sugar beet production in order to keep the total production on a level with the demand for sugar?

A. He must sign a regular "Sugar Beet Production Adjustment Contract", such as will be offered to farmers in the beet areas at sign-up meetings starting March 23.

Q. Where are these sign-up meetings to be held?

A. County agricultural agents and local sugar beet control association committeemen will announce the time and place of all meetings in the newspapers.

Q. Who will be eligible to sign the contract?

A. Any owner, renter, or anyone exercising such privileges as administrator or agent who grew beets in either 1933 or 1934, may sign the contract.

Q. What information will producers wishing to sign the contract be required to furnish?

A. Producers must furnish information about their beet acreage and tonnage in 1930, 1931, 1932, 1933 and 1934.

Q. What will be the quota given to the Decatur Sugar plant?

A. The Decatur plant will probably get a quota of between 80 and 90 per cent of the average acreage in 1933 and 1934. However, this quota has not yet been set definitely.

Q. On what will the producers' individual quotas be based?

A. Producers may use the average of the past five years; the average of the past four years; the average of the past three years; or the average of the past two years to determine their individual base acreages and they likely will be permitted to plant 80 to 90 per cent of these bases, depending on the quota given to the Decatur plant.

Q. Will a non-signing producer be permitted to raise sugar beets for sale to the Decatur plant?

A. It is unlikely that a non-signing producer will be permitted to grow beets for sale to the Decatur plant because contracting producers will probably take all the acreage available under the quota given to the Decatur plant.

Q. How is a signing producer to be repaid for reducing his production of sugar beets?

A. Each signing producer will receive not less than $1.25 per ton for his actual 1934 production or his estimated 1934 production, which ever is higher, and he will receive 50 cents per ton for his 1935 estimated production, plus a second payment which will bring the total price received for his beets, including the price at the factory, up to parity.

Q. What is meant by estimated production?

A. Estimated production is determined for the 1934 crop by multiplying the 1934 planted acreage by the average production per acre of beets for the past four years, 1930, 1931, and 1932.

Q. What is meant by parity price?

A. Parity prices for sugar beets mean prices which will enable producers to purchase as much merchandise with the income from one ton of beets as they could in the period of 1910 to 1914.

Q. Will the sugar beet production adjustment program be continued after 1935?

A. If the Secretary of Agriculture deems it necessary, the contract will be continued through 1936.
