Ethel Barrymore To Open Season In Fort Wayne

Frank A. Biemer, manager of the Shrine Theatre in Fort Wayne announces the opening of the regular theatrical season on Wednesday night, October 16th, when Ethel Barrymore will be seen in her outstanding comedy hit, "The Constant Wife," the play in which Miss Barrymore appeared for one whole year at the Maxine Elliott Theatre, New York, and for six months at the Harris Theatre in Chicago.

"The Constant Wife" is one of Maughan's wittiest and most charming comedies and Miss Barrymore's role is one that has been a great favorite with sophisticated theatregoers. She chose this play from her wide repertoire as one that would please not only the more experienced generation of theatre-goers but would attract the younger folk who seldom see a legitimate play.

Referring to Miss Barrymore in "The Constant Wife" during the New York engagement Walter Winchell said, "There isn't a more fascinating entertainment anywhere in town. There are countless laugh-provoking moments."

The following scale of prices for this engagement will prevail: Main floor, $2.20; balcony, $1.65, $1.10 and 55 cents. Mail orders will be accepted now.

Johnston, Ralph Roe, Glen Johnson, Harold Heller, Harold Martin, Ervin Miller, Curtis Hill, Winson Rawley and the honored guest, Mrs. Alspach.

The Frivility Club will meet with Mrs. Bernard Braun Wednesday evening at seven-thirty o'clock.

Mrs. Lavina Roop of Blue Creek township entertained a number of guests with a chicken dinner and supper Sunday. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Peterson, Mrs. Hila Murray and John Everett of Decatur and Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Roop and daughter, Helen, of Blue Creek township.

BEHIND the SCENES in HOLLYWOOD

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD—Hollywood's hottest romance of the moment is between Ann Shirley, the R-K-O star, and Mickey Marcelino, crooner of love songs for Ted Fio Rik's band. Telephone tolls for his Broadway to Hollywood wooing are something tremendous, and the pegmen out here wear gloves to handle his letters. In Chicago recently the band had a few days layoff and the astonished Fio received word his star singer was flying to the coast to plead his case in person. The trip was cheap only after Ted made a dash to the airport and practically pulled Marcelino off the plane.

Half a tip is better than none, so you want to own a water color card by Margaret Lindsay, and if it happens to be in New York in November, take a look at the Independent Artists exhibition. The Warner star will have several works on exhibition. Unfortunately, they can't be signed. Try California comes though.

The colony is giggling over John, a former chef for the Russian Imperial Court. They gave him a job over at 20th Century-Fox the other day in "The Man Who Broke the Bank at Monte Carlo." Avedee was to play a chef in the film, but when they told him an actor was to be the lead chef, he blew up.

"That man can't even make a salad," he yelled and walked off the set.

How did Helen Flint get Eric Henderson to play a scene right after Director Clarence Brown had failed?

You Asked Me and I'm Telling You! Raymond Vance, Rochester: Yes, there has been some demand for the picture of "All Quiet on the Western Front." Recently, Carl Laemmle, who has received a dozen letters exploring the gathering war clouds and urging him to send the picture around the country again. It was released a couple of years ago, however, and Universal has no present plans for a third showing. "Journey's End" was made by Tiffany.

I have a letter from Jean Muir about her Theater Workshop. Jean is president, George Walcott is vice president, and the sponsors include Constance Collier, Marion Gehring, Rouben Mamoulian, Lynn Riggs, Agnes De Mille, Paul Muni and James Cagney. The organization is non-profit-making and charges only the necessary tuition to break even. The first public presentation of a play will come in about five months.

Arline Judge and her brother, John, flew east to see the Baer-Louis fight and to settle up her uncle's estate in Bridgeport, Conn. Arline came into some money, but she'll give it all to her mother, who's out here on a visit.

HOLLYWOOD TICKER-TAPE—
Joe Penner has asked Helen Kane to go on his next season's radio broadcast, and, if they come to terms, his duck and her hoop-a-doo will be discarded. The once plump Helen has lost plenty of pounds—enough to wear an evening gown the other evening—and she is looking for a house with swimming pool, badminton court, etc. The Spencer Tracy kids are so happy, for he's building them a pony race track and a miniature polo field. Grace Moore's husband, Valentin Patera, clicked on that radio broadcast the other day and will play in more of her programs. Since Clark Gable was almost mobbed, the Glendens are on hand to protect stars from preview audiences. Eddie Robinson got out from the "Barbary Coast" showing minus only a piece of his necktie. Katherine Alexander (Mrs. William A. Brady) will open a toy shop on the coast this winter. And, in case you're interested, Ian Kiepura pronounces it "Yon K-ye poorri."

DID YOU KNOW—
That Joan Bennett's first job in pictures was that of an extra in Corinne Griffith's "Divine Lady"?

"Self-Help" Button-Down-Front

Easy-to-Make Dress for Schoolgirls

BY ELLEN WORTH

Don't you think this is a cunning dress for little school-age daughter? It won't catch on her nose or muss her hair up (so it needs no combing) getting it on and off. She doesn't need any aid from mother, either, to slip into it.

One of the new looking wine-red ground cotton prints made the original. The collar and cuffs are white pique.

Another delightful suggestion is wool jersey in pottery rust with white linen collar and cuffs made detachable, so is to be readily removed for laundering.
