So after dinner I put on my new green suit and cap and my gray suede shoes and told the family I was going to the library with Dicky. Well, I was and did; but we didn't stay long.

"Dicky," I said, "I want you to utter, didn't want to go to the library."

I returned the book to the library in the hotel, and I made a date with Dicky to study at the public library. All during dinner I was preoccupied. I wondered if I should tell my father and let him handle it. Then I decided against that. Why should I miss the fun? I was the discoverer!
