

For a Very Young Modern

Homemaking instincts are fostered in a child from infancy, and lucky is the one who has an attractive nursery. This nursery, in a home which was remodeled under the Modernization Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration, was designed to cater to the child's health and pleasure. Walls which would provide a pleasant background but would not intrude upon the child's consciousness were chosen. A window provided plenty of sunlight and air and was low enough to allow a small child to look out without standing on tip-toe and resting his nose on the sill. Attractive furniture provided storage space for clothes and toys and added to the room's decorative scheme as well.

COURT HOUSE

Case continued

The suit for conversion of assets of Wilfred Burgess against Raymond Elcher was continued to the next term of court by mutual agree-

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Notice is hereby given that the Board of Commissioners of the County of Adams, State of Indiana, will on Tuesday, April 1, 1936, and until 10:00 o'clock A. M. on said day receive sealed bids for the furnishing of one or more complete metal, folding, electric booths and of electric boxes suitable to be used at the various elections.

The booth to comply in all things with the election laws of the state of Indiana.

The bid must be accompanied with a complete detailed specification of the booths and election box proposed to be furnished.

The bid to be for the booth to be delivered at any railroad or express station in Adams county, the same to be designated by the commissioners at the time of acceptance of bid.

Also at the same time will receive bids for the furnishing of the County Infirmary for the three months beginning April 1, 1936.

Requisitions now on file in the office of the Auditor of Adams County.

Also at the same time will receive bids for the furnishing of the County Infirmary for the three months beginning April 1, 1936.

Requisitions now on file in the office of the Auditor of Adams County.

Also at the same time will receive bids for the furnishing of the County Infirmary for the three months beginning April 1, 1936.

Requisitions now on file in the office of the Auditor of Adams County.

Also at the same time will receive bids for the furnishing of the County Infirmary for the three months beginning April 1, 1936.

Requisitions now on file in the office of the Auditor of Adams County.

Also at the same time will receive bids for the furnishing of the County Infirmary for the three months beginning April 1, 1936.

Requisitions now on file in the office of the Auditor of Adams County.

Also at the same time will receive bids for the furnishing of the County Infirmary for the three months beginning April 1, 1936.

Requisitions now on file in the office of the Auditor of Adams County.

Also at the same time will receive bids for the furnishing of the County Infirmary for the three months beginning April 1, 1936.

Requisitions now on file in the office of the Auditor of Adams County.

Also at the same time will receive bids for the furnishing of the County Infirmary for the three months beginning April 1, 1936.

Requisitions now on file in the office of the Auditor of Adams County.

Also at the same time will receive bids for the furnishing of the County Infirmary for the three months beginning April 1, 1936.

Requisitions now on file in the office of the Auditor of Adams County.

COURT HOUSE

Case continued

The suit for conversion of assets of Wilfred Burgess against Raymond Elcher was continued to the next term of court by mutual agree-

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Notice is hereby given that the Board of Commissioners of the County of Adams, State of Indiana, will on Tuesday, April 1, 1936, and until 10:00 o'clock A. M. on said day receive sealed bids for the furnishing of one or more complete metal, folding, electric booths and of electric boxes suitable to be used at the various elections.

The booth to comply in all things with the election laws of the state of Indiana.

The bid must be accompanied with a complete detailed specification of the booths and election box proposed to be furnished.

The bid to be for the booth to be delivered at any railroad or express station in Adams county, the same to be designated by the commissioners at the time of acceptance of bid.

Also at the same time will receive bids for the furnishing of the County Infirmary for the three months beginning April 1, 1936.

Requisitions now on file in the office of the Auditor of Adams County.

Also at the same time will receive bids for the furnishing of the County Infirmary for the three months beginning April 1, 1936.

Requisitions now on file in the office of the Auditor of Adams County.

Also at the same time will receive bids for the furnishing of the County Infirmary for the three months beginning April 1, 1936.

Requisitions now on file in the office of the Auditor of Adams County.

Also at the same time will receive bids for the furnishing of the County Infirmary for the three months beginning April 1, 1936.

Requisitions now on file in the office of the Auditor of Adams County.

Also at the same time will receive bids for the furnishing of the County Infirmary for the three months beginning April 1, 1936.

Requisitions now on file in the office of the Auditor of Adams County.

Also at the same time will receive bids for the furnishing of the County Infirmary for the three months beginning April 1, 1936.

Requisitions now on file in the office of the Auditor of Adams County.

Also at the same time will receive bids for the furnishing of the County Infirmary for the three months beginning April 1, 1936.

Requisitions now on file in the office of the Auditor of Adams County.

Also at the same time will receive bids for the furnishing of the County Infirmary for the three months beginning April 1, 1936.

Requisitions now on file in the office of the Auditor of Adams County.

Also at the same time will receive bids for the furnishing of the County Infirmary for the three months beginning April 1, 1936.

Requisitions now on file in the office of the Auditor of Adams County.

Test Your Knowledge

Can you answer seven of these ten questions? Turn to page Four for the answers.

1. What is the botanical term for the inner, harder wood of a tree, the heartwood?
2. How many degrees are in a right angle?
3. In England, what is a Peer?
4. What is cullet?
5. What does U. S. S. before the name of a ship mean?
6. Who was Philip of Macedonia?
7. What is a pechard?
8. In which states are the highest and lowest points in continental U. S.?
9. Who is the author of "Coronado's Children"?
10. What disease is due to the presence of the bacillus leprae?

Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Frisinger and Miss Barbara Burk are spending the week-end in Indianapolis.

NOTICE TO BRIDGE CONTRACTORS

Notice is hereby given that sealed proposals for the construction of certain bridges described as follows, will be received by the Chairman of the State Highway Commission at his office in the State House Annex, Indianapolis, until 10:00 A. M. Central Standard Time, on the 7th day of April, 1936, when all proposals will be publicly opened and read.

The following project is to be constructed in accordance with the Federal Highway Acts, Special provisions relative to "SELECTION OF LABOR, "WAGES, HOURS OF EMPLOYMENT, AND METHODS OF PERFORMING WORK" are contained in each proposal and shall govern on this work.

The attention of bidders is directed to the special provisions covering subcontracting or assigning the contract and to the use of domestic materials. The minimum wage paid to all skilled labor, labor, intermediate grade and common labor, shall be as indicated for the county in which the work is to be performed.

ADAMS COUNTY. Structure on State Road 224—P. A. Project 319 C (1935)—Structure 224-0-1546, 1640' C. Arch over Hollenhouse ditch, 1.5 M. W. of Decatur; Structure on State Road 27—Structure 27-K-1952, 836' R. C. Box over Wm. Smith ditch, 0.1 M. N. St. Rd. 124. Minimum wage: 19c, 23c, 35c.

Proposals must be made upon standard forms of the State Highway Commission, Indiana, or copies may be examined at the office of the State Highway Commission, State House Annex, Indianapolis, or at the office of the Chairman, State Highway Commission of Indiana.

Immediately prior to this letting, each bidder shall submit an EXPERIENCE RECORD AND FINANCIAL STATEMENT prepared on the State Highway Commission standard form, which will be furnished free upon request. Experience Records and Financial Statements should be filled with the Commission will not be acceptable for this letting.

Each bidder, with his proposal, shall file a corporate surety bond payable to the State of Indiana, in the sum of one and one-half (1 1/2) times the amount of his proposal, and such bond shall be only in the form prescribed by law, and shall be executed on the form bound in the proposal. The right is reserved to reject any or all bids or to award on any combination of bids that is most advantageous to the State of Indiana.

STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSION OF INDIANA, James D. Adams, Chairman, March 26-27.

Real Estate Transfers

Jennie A. Smith et al to Byron Wittrede, part of the north half of the northeast quarter in Monroe township, for $1.

Fruit Growers—Bigger and better fruit crops result when Kleenup Dormant Oil Spray is used. Bring your containers.—H. Knapp & Son.

Markets At A Glance

Stocks: fractions to 3 points lower in light trading. Bonds: irregularly lower; U. S. governments lower.

Curb stocks: decline in moderate trading.

Chicago stocks: generally lower. Call money: 3/4 of 1%.

Foreign exchange: French francs near lower gold point.

Cotton: 4 to 11 points higher. Grains: wheat off 1/4 to 3/4; corn 1/4 to 3/4 higher; oats and rye lower.

Chicago livestock: hogs steady to weak; cattle irregular; sheep steady to strong.

Rubber: steady and quiet.

Oats Thrive at Matanuska

Palmer, Alaska.—(U.P.)—Oats weighing 42.6 pounds per bushel were produced last season by colonists in the Matanuska valley.

H. J. Leckner, superintendent of the Matanuska experiment station, announced. Most of the oats grown in the United States do not exceed 36 pounds per bushel, Leckner said.

She turned on him a face of white distress. "Seward, look! Have you seen this? The most abominable thing! It's about your father—"

He took the open newspaper and read a headline that sent the blood to his face. He walked back to his parked car and got into it after her, and spread the paper on the wheel so they could read together about the suit brought by Arline Martin against Jasper H. Ingram.

For two hundred thousand dollars. "She came into the office one day—I saw her—"

Cathleen breathed tensely into his ear. "Pretty, but—"

Arline Martin charged that Ingram had promised to make a star of her, producing her on Broadway. Believing his interest in her to be artistic and impersonal, she had received him in her apartment to discuss the details of the production.

Almost at once he had shown his true colors, had made frenzied love to her and overcome her resistance to his advances. She could call a witness who had seen her in his arms.

"I was the witness," Seward said grimly. "That much is true. But she wasn't struggling, any to notice—"

There followed a spirited account given to an interviewing reporter, of the scene in Miss Martin's flat. "I was powerless in his arms. His eyes gleamed madly. He was like a wild beast in his feral hunger, taking—taking all that I had, when I thought that he had come to give—"

"Of all the damned liars!" Seward choked. "My father may be no Sir Galahad, but he's no wild beast either—and I think it's surely rotten if this kind of thing can be printed about a man. And just imagine the effect on my mother, on top of—"

He checked himself. "I want two hundred thousand, does she! I hope he sees her starve before he gives her a cent! Sorry, Cathleen, I—"

"You'd be a poor sport if you couldn't swear about a matter like this! I feel like swearing myself. Anybody can see it's all lies, because your father's a rich man and she thinks to get money out of him! It can't hurt him surely, for who'd believe a word a woman would say, that would shame herself in print like this, for money?"

Seward crumpled the newspaper and threw it on the floor of the car. "Has father gone out to lunch, do you know?" he asked. "Do you mind waiting while I run up and talk to him about this?"

"Of course, you must go! And tell him not to feel too bad, for nobody that knows him will believe a word of this!"

Seward got out of the car and went slowly into the office building. For the moment his blossoming romance was shouldered into the background. He was suffused with bitter memories of his own acquaintance with Arline; of his brief infatuation for her. And he was suffering remorse for the insult he had hurled at his father because of her. How he wished he had not held that resentment against his father ever since; that he had responded to one or two tentative advances from him towards a friendlier footing.

"He ought to have knocked me down," Seward thought, turning hot at the recollection of some of the things he had said that day in the office.

But it was not altogether that Ingram was being basely attacked that caused Seward to swing to him in renewed loyalty. Some of the warmth with which he was turning to his father was due to the fact that his mother had failed him.

The "immediate business" which the Marques d'Alhué had professed to Marian he had to perform in the service of the Infanta took him to a speakeasy in the vicinity of Washington Square. There he sought a newspaper man with whom he had struck up an acquaintance. The man, who conducted a gossip col-

Chicago livestock: hogs steady to weak; cattle irregular; sheep steady to strong.

Rubber: steady and quiet.

Oats Thrive at Matanuska

Palmer, Alaska.—(U.P.)—Oats weighing 42.6 pounds per bushel were produced last season by colonists in the Matanuska valley.

H. J. Leckner, superintendent of the Matanuska experiment station, announced. Most of the oats grown in the United States do not exceed 36 pounds per bushel, Leckner said.

She turned on him a face of white distress. "Seward, look! Have you seen this? The most abominable thing! It's about your father—"

He took the open newspaper and read a headline that sent the blood to his face. He walked back to his parked car and got into it after her, and spread the paper on the wheel so they could read together about the suit brought by Arline Martin against Jasper H. Ingram.

For two hundred thousand dollars. "She came into the office one day—I saw her—"

Cathleen breathed tensely into his ear. "Pretty, but—"

Arline Martin charged that Ingram had promised to make a star of her, producing her on Broadway. Believing his interest in her to be artistic and impersonal, she had received him in her apartment to discuss the details of the production.

Almost at once he had shown his true colors, had made frenzied love to her and overcome her resistance to his advances. She could call a witness who had seen her in his arms.

"I was the witness," Seward said grimly. "That much is true. But she wasn't struggling, any to notice—"

There followed a spirited account given to an interviewing reporter, of the scene in Miss Martin's flat. "I was powerless in his arms. His eyes gleamed madly. He was like a wild beast in his feral hunger, taking—taking all that I had, when I thought that he had come to give—"

"Of all the damned liars!" Seward choked. "My father may be no Sir Galahad, but he's no wild beast either—and I think it's surely rotten if this kind of thing can be printed about a man. And just imagine the effect on my mother, on top of—"

He checked himself. "I want two hundred thousand, does she! I hope he sees her starve before he gives her a cent! Sorry, Cathleen, I—"

"You'd be a poor sport if you couldn't swear about a matter like this! I feel like swearing myself. Anybody can see it's all lies, because your father's a rich man and she thinks to get money out of him! It can't hurt him surely, for who'd believe a word a woman would say, that would shame herself in print like this, for money?"

Seward crumpled the newspaper and threw it on the floor of the car. "Has father gone out to lunch, do you know?" he asked. "Do you mind waiting while I run up and talk to him about this?"

"Of course, you must go! And tell him not to feel too bad, for nobody that knows him will believe a word of this!"

Seward got out of the car and went slowly into the office building. For the moment his blossoming romance was shouldered into the background. He was suffused with bitter memories of his own acquaintance with Arline; of his brief infatuation for her. And he was suffering remorse for the insult he had hurled at his father because of her. How he wished he had not held that resentment against his father ever since; that he had responded to one or two tentative advances from him towards a friendlier footing.

"He ought to have knocked me down," Seward thought, turning hot at the recollection of some of the things he had said that day in the office.

But it was not altogether that Ingram was being basely attacked that caused Seward to swing to him in renewed loyalty. Some of the warmth with which he was turning to his father was due to the fact that his mother had failed him.

The "immediate business" which the Marques d'Alhué had professed to Marian he had to perform in the service of the Infanta took him to a speakeasy in the vicinity of Washington Square. There he sought a newspaper man with whom he had struck up an acquaintance. The man, who conducted a gossip colum knew a little about everything and everybody in New York.

FLASH!

1929 Pontiac Coach, extra clean. 1929 Ford Coupe, good tires, motor A-1.

Best Bargain in Town. SAVE AT P. A. KUHN CHEV. CO. Decatur.

"When a woman divorces a man in this country," the Marques pronounced to his friend, "say that he is a rich man, but also, as you call it, a piker, a tightwad and a cheap skate! Is there any way that he can avoid the payment of alimony? He has put himself clearly in the wrong. There is evidence of unfaithful conduct. But I think that this man would creep out of paying if he could."

"He can do one of three things," said the press man. "He can pay what the court has ordered him to, or he can go to jail, or he can duck out, fly the coop, take to the open trail. It's not very hard to disappear successfully. But if this bird is as rich as you say, he couldn't afford to walk out on his business and he'd rather pay than join the Alimony Club. But I didn't know there was anybody left that was rich, these days."

"His name is Homer Alspaugh. He is associated with the great millionaire, Jasper H. Ingram. You relieve my mind for me," said the Marques.

"Alspaugh—Alspaugh," murmured the press man. "Didn't Ingram let that fellow go? Sure! Why, he's making the rounds of the papers trying to sell an inside story about Ingram's operations. We gave him the air. I shouldn't say he was rich. He may have made a good thing out of his connection with Ingram, but he's out of a job now unless he's found another one!"

D'Alhué sighed heavily and changed the subject.

After a while he went back to Marian's hotel and spent several hours in love-making.

"I don't give a damn about the pearls—" Marian murmured languorously when he was taking his leave of her to see the Infanta and her party off. "You make me so happy, darling. I didn't know it was possible to be so happy. Good night, sweetheart—"

"Goodbye," he whispered, kissing her passionately and regretfully. "Goodbye until tomorrow," she corrected. "About eleven, say. You know I like my breakfast about ten."

Marian's breakfast was brought to her the following morning, and with it a morning paper. Over her coffee and grape-fruit she read that the Infanta Josefa sailed for Cannes on the Conte Grande, and listed among her entourage was none other than the Marques d'Alhué. She smiled with amused superiority at the inaccuracy of reporters. They never get anything right.

At eleven she began to turn her eyes to the door, expecting to see her lover slip in.

At half-past eleven she was uneasy; at twelve she was angry; at one she was suspicious.

She called up the shipping office and made sharp inquiries. The answer was positive. He had sailed. And though she screamed that it couldn't be true, she knew it was.

When Marian replaced the receiver she sat staring straight before her and biting the back of one finger. She couldn't reach Ignacio, to tell him what she thought of him. He had betrayed her. She had to think of herself now. She had to decide what she must do next.

She took stock of herself. Yes, she was still pretty. But she was thirty years old. What could she do? It was too late to start training for a business career. And she thought, even of having to get up each morning and go to an office or shop, horrified her.

And where, now that the Marques had deserted her, would she find another admirer?

Homer! Poor Homer! He wasn't such a bad egg. He meant security. And he was blindly adoring. A woman needed a husband as a background and as a protection. That left her free to flirt without becoming too greatly involved. She should have known that d'Alhué was a trifle—like all foreigners. American men were the only real men, after all.

Her hand rested on the telephone for a moment before she lifted the receiver and gave her home number. She would forgive Homer. She would give him another chance.

(To Be Continued)

Copyright, 1935, by King Feature Syndicate, Inc.

MARKET REPORTS

DAILY REPORT OF LOCAL AND FOREIGN MARKETS

Brady's Market for Decatur, Berne, Craigville, Hoagland and Willshire. Close at 12 Noon.

Corrected March 27.

No commission and no yardage. Veals received Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday.

100 to 120 lbs. $9.50
120 to 140 lbs. 9.70
140 to 160 lbs. 10.20
160 to 230 lbs. 10.60
230 to 270 lbs. 10.10
270 to 300 lbs. 9.90
300 to 350 lbs. 9.70
Roughs 8.75
Stags 6.75
Vealers 10.00
Ewe and wether lambs 8.50
Buck lambs 8.50
Yearling lambs 4.75

INDIANAPOLIS LIVESTOCK

Indianapolis, Ind., Mar. 27.—(U.P.)—Livestock:

Hogs, 5,000; holdovers, 267; mostly steady; stocks 5 to 10c higher; 160-225 lbs., $10.70-$10.80; few yearly, $10.80-$10.90; 225-260 lbs., $10.45-$10.60; 260-300 lbs., $10.05-$10.30; 300-400 lbs., $9.50-$9.90; 130-160 lbs., $10-$10.50; 100-130 lbs., $9.25-$9.75; packing sows, $8.75-$9.40.

Cattle, 500; calves, 70; steers and heifers, firm; cows strong to 25c higher; bulk steers, $7.25-$8.35; few choice heifers upwards, $8.50; beef cows, $5.50-$6.50; low cutters and cutters, $3.75-$4.50; vealers fully 50c higher; good to choice, $10.50-$11.

Sheep, 600; fat lambs mostly steady; top and bulk of better grade fed westerns, $10.25.

FORT WAYNE LIVESTOCK

Fort Wayne, Ind., Mar. 27.—(U.P.)—Livestock:

Hogs, 5c lower; 160-180 lbs., $10.85; 180-200 lbs., $10.75; 200-225 lbs., $10.65; 225-250 lbs., $10.55; 250-275 lbs., $10.35; 275-300 lbs., $10.30; 300-350 lbs., $10.05; 140-160 lbs., $10.25; 120-140 lbs., $10; 100-120 lbs., $9.75.

Roughs, $9; stags, $7.25. Calves, $10; lambs, $9.75.

CLEVELAND PRODUCE

Cleveland, O., Mar. 27.—(U.P.)—Produce:

Butter, unsettled; extras, 34 1/2c; standards, 34 1/2c.

Eggs, unsettled; extra firsts, 19c; current receipts, 18c.

Live poultry, firm; heavy hens, 5 1/2 lbs., and up, 24c; ducks, spring, 5 lbs., and up, 24c; ducks, small, 20c.

Potatoes, (100-lb. bags), Ohio, $1.50-$1.75; poorer, $1.40; Maine, $2-$2.25; 15-lb. bags, 35c; Idaho, $2.15-$2.25; Michigan, $1.60-$1.65; Wisconsin, $1.65-$1.75; Florida new No. 1, $2.50-$2.75 crate; No. 2, $2.50-$2.60.

CHICAGO GRAIN CLOSE