many will be graced with a fitting tribute before Centennial week arrives.We have a large stock of artistic memorials on hand and many monuments under construction and will be in a position to erect many memorials before August if you will place your order early.We have small markers for children—those little angels that have gone before. Their names should be engraved in stone and the mounds above their remains be made in a shrine for reflection and even thanksgiving for having an angel to meet us when we pass on.UNDREDS of former residents will come back home during the Centennial celebration in August. They will view the progress and growth of Decatur and Adams County and will admire the progressive spirit that is manifest amongst our entire population. They will also visit our cemeteries to pay respect to their loved ones buried there.
The old saying "You can judge a community by its Church Yards and Cemeteries" still holds true and happily for the citizens of Adams County they need not be ashamed of their cemeteries.Visitors will be pleased with the well kept lawns, clean drives and artistic memorials. The caretakers have done their work well.Some graves are unmarked at present but
