to the electric light committee.

No bids were received to supply the ornamental lights on Tenth street. It was mentioned that the manufacturers had had a misunderstanding as to the date on which bids were to have been filed. A suggestion made by Councilman Herman Gillig that the council adjourn in continued session upon call of the mayor was adopted. The extension of time will give the manufacturers and opportunity to bid.

Frank Young made a suggestion that a caution light be installed at the intersection of First and Monroe streets. He said that in his four years of living at the corner he had witnessed many near accidents caused by drivers speeding through the intersection.

The matter of erecting traffic signs in conformity with the state law which sets the speed limit at 30 miles an hour in the residential districts and 20 miles an hour in the business district was also brought up. Both the erection of the caution light and the speed signs were referred to the board of public works and safety in conjunction with the city engineer with power to act.

Fire Chief Robenold reported that the tires on the two city fire trucks might need replacing. He said although they looked good all were six or seven years old and

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks lunk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A more bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

DEMOCRAT FALL CAMPAIGN PLAN

Campaign Plans Outlined At Fourth District Meeting Tuesday

Lieutenant Governor M. Clifford Townsend, Democratic candidate for governor of Indiana, will speak at an Adams-Wellis county combined meeting to be held in Bluffton on October 24, it was announced Tuesday at a luncheon meeting of the fourth district Democratic central committee, held at the Keenan Hotel in Fort Wayne.

Nathan Nelson, Adams county Democratic chairman, and Mrs. Mary Briggs, county vice-chairman, represented the county at the meeting.

Other meetings are scheduled for the county when the Democratic fall campaign opens. U. S. Senator Frederick Van Nuys will headline one Democratic rally in the county. The Roosevelt caravan sound truck, which has been assigned to Indiana, will appear in Adams county on October 26.

The sound truck will be shown in six towns in the county and will carry three speakers, musical programs and campaign literature. The caravan is a snow-white automobile with trailer coach attached and is placed at the disposal of the Indiana Democratic state central committee by the national committee. It is equipped with the latest sound devices for the projection of music and speeches. Talks to be given by members of the crew will be confined to five and ten minutes.

LAGUARDIA TO BACK F. D. R.

New York's Mayor To Support Roosevelt's Candidacy

New York, Sept. 2.—(UP)—Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, who was elected on a fusion ticket of Republicans and Independents, has decided to support President Roosevelt for re-election. It was learned today.

The fiery former Republican congressman signs his name to a call for a conference of progressives which will meet in Chicago Sept. 11 and is expected to approve the candidacy of Mr. Roosevelt.

LaGuardia also is expected to make an active speaking campaign for the Democratic National ticket. Others who will attend the Chicago meeting including Sens. George W. Norris of Nebraska, Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin, Homer Bone of Washington, and Elmer Benson of Minnesota.

From 50 to 60 Democrats, Republicans, farm-laborites and others are expected to attend the conference. Although LaGuardia had the support of the Republican party in the last mayoralty campaign he has been at odds with the leadership for some time. It was understood that he has decided to ally himself with progressive forces in the various parties in the belief these groups will coalesce into a powerful party in the next few years.

Express Disapproval Of Father Coughlin

Vatican City, Sept. 2.—(UP)—Osservatore Romano, the official Vatican newspaper, expressed disapproval today of Father Charles E. Coughlin's outspokenness in his political addresses.

Osservatore denied a report attributed to Bishop Michael J. Gallagher of Detroit, Father Coughlin's superior, saying that the Holy See fully approves the activities of Father Coughlin.

"This does not correspond with the truth and Bishop Gallagher knows only too well what the Holy See told him in this regard," Osservatore said.

What Does Your Family Name Mean

Every family name has a history and a meaning—often a very interesting one. Many surnames are derived from occupations; many are place names; many originated as nicknames—nearly all of them have been changed and revamped during the centuries; English surnames come from many different language sources, and they are bound up with, and intertwined with, the history of the world.

If you are interested in the meanings of your family name and those of your friends, the comprehensive, attractively bound Booklet SURNAMES will interest and inform you and serve as a constant reference source on this subject.

Trade in a Good Town — Decatur

"KING OF HEARTS"

BY EDNA ROBB WEBSTER

CHAPTER XXXI

Lynn almost forgot her former identity, so thoroughly did she revel in her new freedom from torment. She knew that it was only temporary, but the relief was so profound that for a while she luxuriated in it and dismissed all other thoughts. It developed that Bertha was willing to share her own moderately comfortable room with Lynn temporarily, which she accepted—oh, so gratefully.

Bertha was Titian-haired with very blue-white skin which beauty had its advantages in the display of certain graces. The spring greens and yellows were ravishing on her, and Mr. Weims had a peculiar ability for effect which Mr. Lowry certainly never had possessed. He was pleasant, if exacting, and Lynn enjoyed the change in employers. She had not known they really could be human, in her brief experience as a working girl.

She had learned another valuable lesson in this difficult period, also. For she realized that she must be more congenial with those about her, force a camaraderie with the girls who worked and lived around her. If there ever came a day when she did not need them—well and good; but while she was one of them, she recognized that there were certain advantages in being friendly with as many persons as possible.

Just suppose, for example, she had not been pleasant to Millie, and had missed this opportunity which had fallen to her with surprising result! Meanwhile, Jackson Thorpe had been doing an impersonation of the immortal Gabriel, and he was poignantly reminded of the parallel in his case many times during those harrowing weeks. Just to think that he had been the one who had remarked that no such thing could happen in this modern day! It did seem incredible—but it was true, nevertheless. He had returned to Mrs. Kim's after that discouraging visit to the night club, and found that lady somewhat perturbed over Lynn's whereabouts, herself. She even was ready to solicit the strange young man's aid in locating her.

Jack became frantic. For one thing, his trail of Lynn indicated that she was in deep trouble, particularly supposing her to have been the ex-hostess of the night club. She needed help and protection. He never had dreamed, when he saw her in New Orleans, that she was so pathetically alone and destitute. He employed a private detective and spent dreary days awaiting results. There were none.

Returning to Dunning's, he had discovered Suzanne, who apparently had seen Lynn last. She it was who verified that it had been Lynn who worked at the Roman Chariot, and was surprised to hear that she was no longer there. She located Jed, who also was surprised over Lynn's disappearance, and became more concerned for her than he had realized before. But none of them had any word from Lynn, and no hint as to her whereabouts.

Jack instituted a thorough search among the missing persons list and, with shuddering fear, even the recent suicides. But nothing led to Lynn.

He appealed again to Doti, but she had no word after that first letter from her cousin, which had followed her return north. And even shallow little Doti read between the lines of Jack's despair over not finding Lynn. She realized with a sharp stab of fear, why it was he had gone seeking her cousin. Jack was interested in Lynn—after knowing her for one week—as he never had been in her in all the years of their association. But Doti was anxious about Lynn's whereabouts, also.

At his father's insistence, Jack went to New York for a week, to investigate the eastern offices. But his mind was still in the western city, and he returned there at the first opportunity.

Finally, a vague clue—discovered jubilantly by the detective, through a friend—spurred Jack to Milwaukee. Had the distance justified it by another fifty miles, he would have taken a plane. But he drove Ollie's car with all respect for its characteristic northern speed.

Lynn had no sooner resolved to be more friendly with her companions, than they turned upon her with ugly renunciation. The girls at Weims' openly resented her small overtures and contrived in every way to compromise and humiliate her. In the confusion of her new surroundings and the increased activity involved by the arrival of new stock for the fashion show, these opportunities were frequent. No matter what went wrong on the floor or in the dressing rooms and stock rooms, the other models invariably managed that Lynn was at fault.

At first, she was bewildered and hurt by these incidents, which appeared to be accidental, but their repetition became suspicious. She was sure that Helen purposely mocked the wrong frock and left her own for Lynn, and then explained to Weims that the new girl had made the error. It was Helen who had dressed first, and left the wrong one for Lynn. But Lynn closed her lips firmly, swallowed hard and said nothing; except to make a hasty apology to Mr. Weims. In the stress of these particularly busy days, he only gave her an impatient glance and passed on to the next responsibility.

A torn gown was traced to Lynn's clumsy efforts—she whose movements were as rhythmic as the rites of a mystic ceremony, in everything she did. One day, Odette blamed her tardy appearance on the display floor upon Lynn's dawdling in the dressing room which they shared. It was then Lynn noticed that similar faults were traced erroneously to two other extra models, but not as frequently as she was involved.

She spoke about it to Bertha that night.

"Sure," Bertha agreed soberly, "they're trying to get you all in bad with Weims, so he won't decide to keep you on and bounce them, when
