There is a day of sunny rest
For every dark and troubled night
And grief may bide and evening guest
But joy shall come with morning light.

For God hath marked each sorrowing day
And numbered every secret tear
And Heaven's long age of bliss shall pay
For all His children suffer here.

NEVER FOR MONEY by JAMES ASWELL

SYNOPSIS

Belinda Terrell loved Johnny Parkes dearly, but he was wealthy and she no longer was rich so she felt that if she married him now it would be for his money. She returned Johnny's ring but he told her it didn't make a bit of difference what her decision was. She was his from the beginning and he was "amused" by her even raising a question about their marriage. "I'll show him," says Belinda. "And when you've shown him what? You'll marry him," Foggy, her companion and former governess, tells her. Belinda stuns Foggy by saying that she has a job as a dinner companion with the J. G. Fuhrman Service. "Why shouldn't I cash in on the only thing I know?" Next morning, Belinda tries to slip out of the house because she owes Mrs. O'Hara, the housekeeper, two weeks' rent. To her astonishment, Mrs. O'Hara greets her cordially and hands her a receipt for a month's rent in advance. So Johnny had had the insulting brass—Belinda's first appointment as dinner companion is with an "Ignacious Wert" who turns out to be Johnny. Belinda is vexed but she goes through with it. Johnny's confident attitude annoyed Belinda. She always had to watch him closely to discover how much of the nonsense he talked was sincere and how much was fun.
