

TEMPTS TO SETTLE AUTO STRIKE HALT

Slater and Lewis Call
From Conference
To Other Business

Decatur, Mich., Mar. 31.—(U.P.)—The 24-day strike of the Detroit plants of the Chrysler corporation were temporarily halted today.

Mr. P. Chrysler, head of the corporation, was in New York, having called there by "urgent business" in the same city where John C. O. head who was for a conference to confer with the operators on a new contract for miners in the Appalachian region.

Frank Murphy said there was "the remotest possibility" Chrysler and Lewis might be sitting in at the meetings in New York. The governor had the assurance of both that they would return here later than Saturday. Both tried to try to back Friday.

Legitimate, reliable sources said the chief stumbling block to settlement was the "board of directors" of the United Automobile workers of America.

It was this group, it was said, that repeatedly "turned thumbs" on proposals to compromise the demand for sole collective bargaining rights in all Chrysler plants.

Members of the strategy board said that the sit-downs evacuated the plants last Friday only on the express condition that there would be no return to this demand. Chrysler has refused to grant any concession to recognize the U. A. W. as bargaining agency in its own members.

Equity Sale Announced Today

The Berne Equity Exchange this morning purchased Berne Hay and company, according to the received here. The Equity, under the management of Victor Hay, will continue to operate, was organized in 1901.

BOY PRICE TO HEAD SOCIETY

Selected President Of Purdue Agricultural Alumni
Society

Boy Price was elected president of the Adams county Purdue agricultural alumni society at a meeting held in the Rice hotel, Tuesday evening.

Other officers elected were Lawrence Beckmeyer, vice-president; E. Archbold, secretary-treasurer; and Walter J. Krick and Leland H. H. directors.

At the meeting it was agreed that the organization should sponsor a 4-H tomato club this year. Beckmeyer has volunteered his services as a leader of the club. Each member present agreed to bring at least two members into the 4-H club.

A series of four meetings for the year was decided upon. The first will be held when the tomato club is organized and the 4-H club members will be the guests. The second will be in the form of a tour of the tomato projects. The third will be a fall meeting at the Purdue university short course will be invited to a banquet and encouraged to attend the course. The fourth will be a welcome party for the members who have returned from the course.

It was also decided to encourage high school graduates and others to take part in some of the larger crop or animal husbandry projects in order that they might earn sufficient money to pay their living and tuition costs at the short course.

LIST PROGRAM FOR BANQUET

Banquet For Dairymen
Of County Will Be Held Friday

The complete program for the organized dairy extension banquet sponsored by the Cloverleaf Creameries and McMillen Feed companies has been completed. This banquet will be held at the Catholic high school Friday evening at 6:15. Joe Seabold of Bluffton will lead the group singing. E. T. Wallace, extension dairyman of Purdue, will discuss breeding program for dairy cows. Frank E. Franz of the McMillen company will discuss dairy feeds and feeding.

The Cloverleaf Creameries have secured the services of John Taylor of the Indiana state health department to discuss quality marketing of dairy products and also have secured Prof. H. W. Gregory, head of the dairy department of Purdue to tell of the progress that Purdue has been making on a dairy marketing program.

The executive committee of the organized extension dairymen has prepared a resolution which they will present at this meeting, which will be held at the Catholic church, with the Rev. Joseph J. Seimet officiating. The parents, a brother, Donivan and the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Braun, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Martz, survive.

Winchester Street Is Being Repaired

Workmen are busy repairing South Winchester street, south of the Nickel Plate tracks to the corporate limits. The chuck holes are being filled with a heated asphalt and other breaks in the top surface are being repaired. Ralph Roop, civil works commissioner, stated that permanent resurfacing of the street could not be made, because of the cost. It would be necessary to dig up a stretch of road and fill it with stone and put in a drain.

NRA SUBSTITUTE BILLS PLANNED FOR CONGRESS

Federal And State Laws
Sought For Minimum
Wages

Washington, March 31.—(U.P.)—Federal officials today launched a double-edged drive to restore the minimum wage features of NRA state legislation and preparation of a new bill with a nation-wide scope.

President Roosevelt emphasized that state laws are inadequate to deal with the problem of paying subsistence salaries despite the provisions for children and men years precedent in upholding the Washington state minimum wage law for women.

Secretary of labor Frances Perkins declared that in the light of the court's decision "State legislatures are free to pass statutes recognizing the necessity for subsistence wages."

While Mr. Roosevelt declined to comment upon the court's five-to-four decision in the Washington case, he made clear that his opinion on the need for national legislation on wages and hours remained unchanged.

It was learned that plans for NRA substitute laws are now being facilitated by two groups, both in direct contact with the White House.

Major George L. Berry's industrial progress council is completing drafts of a fair trade practices bill which also would include provision for federal establishment and supervision of minimum wages and maximum hours.

Miss Perkins and labor department attorneys virtually have completed a tentative measure which would create a maximum work week of 40 hours and establish a series of "industry councils" to set up minimum wage scales.

Although the President said he had not yet seen Miss Perkins bill it was learned that the secretary has informally discussed its provisions with him.

Miss Perkins urged states to build up their own minimum wage laws. President Roosevelt emphasized at his press conference that he did not believe in minimum wage laws for women alone but indicated he desired broad statutes including provisions to children and men workers. He said he was calling upon attorney General Homer S. Cummings to report to him on the legal status of state laws which had become inoperative following the court's decision in the children's hospital case.

NO AGREEMENT IS REACHED IN COAL DISPUTE

Suspension Of Work
Threatened In Soft
Coal Mining

New York, Mar. 31.—(U.P.)—United mine workers officials and representatives of soft coal operators resumed negotiations for a new Appalachian wage-hour contract today with the necessity of reaching an agreement of some sort before midnight if a suspension of work is to be averted.

Indications were that the union and mine owners still were far apart in their proposals and counter-proposals. Both sides denied a report that the miners had withdrawn all of their demands except that for a 15 per cent increase in pay.

Charles O'Neill, spokesman for the operators, said the miners had not withdrawn any demands and added, "that's what we're waiting for."

Phillip M. Ray, vice president of U. M. W., said the report was "without foundation."

Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, called informally on the negotiators and said he intended to stay with the conference "until an agreement is reached." He said he would remain in New York "several days if necessary."

McGrady added that, "I expect I'll be needed" before a contract is signed. He said both the president and secretary of labor Frances Perkins were "keeping an eye" on the negotiations.

The labor mediator drew a distinction between a strike and a suspension of work. If no contract is signed, he said, the resultant stoppage of work could not be called a strike. Technically, at least, the suspension would be an amicable one.

An alternative "to suspension would be an agreement to continue the present contract in effect until a new one is signed."

PURDUE GRADS TALK TO CLUB

Purdue Agricultural Graduates Speak To Lions Club

Graduates of the Purdue university winter agricultural short course were the chief speakers at the regular meeting of the Decatur Lions club Tuesday evening in the Rice hotel.

M. J. Buschen, assistant agricultural superintendent of the Farmers and Manufacturers Beet Sugar association, also spoke.

Roy Price, county chairman of the Purdue agricultural alumni association, introduced L. E. Archbold, county agent, who in turn introduced the speakers.

First on the program was Richard Moses, who has just returned from the Purdue short course. He told briefly of the work he had done during the course and gave an outline of the general agricultural course.

Then Mr. Moses spoke on the 4-H club work in the county. In which he has been an active member. He stated that the 4-H program has been important in building character in the boys. "The small percentage of the time actually spent in 4-H club work is one of the most important influences for the good in the farm boys and girls," he said. He briefly sketched a year's work in 4-H club work, stating that it required more work than is imagined by the outsider.

Decatur Youth Is Fined, Sentenced

Richard Baier, 21-year old Decatur lad, who confessed to the theft of 90 pounds of insulated wire owned by the city, was fined $1 and costs and sentenced to 60 days in the county jail, when he appeared before Mayor Arthur R. Holt-house in city court Tuesday afternoon.

The court intimated that part of the sentence would be suspended if Baier showed that he could obtain regular employment and if the prospective employer would assure the court that he would give Baier steady employment.

Hubert Baier, brother of the sentenced lad has been released from jail, pending definite information on his implication in the theft. The minor, also connected with the theft, is in the charge of juvenile authorities.

JOE ROBINSON GIVES SUPPORT TO COURT PLAN

Senate Leader Replies To Attacks By Court
Backers

Washington, March 31.—(U.P.)—Sen. Sherman Minton, D., Ind., said in the senate today that Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes "led with his chin" when he got into "the political fight" over President Roosevelt's supreme court enlargement plan.

"His letter was part fact, part fiction, and part Dicta," Minton said. "And it is not surprising that the chief justice in Monday's decision reversing the court on minimum wages should resort to an explanation that fails to explain."

Minton said that "the great and distinguished chief justice was once a candidate for president and he has never got over the ways he had when running for president."

Washington, Mar. 31.—(U.P.)—Advocates and opponents of judicial reorganization clashed with renewed intensity today over whether President Roosevelt seeks to increase the powers of the executive at the expense of congress and the supreme court.

Senate Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson replied to opposition blows delivered by Sen. Carter Glass, D., Va., Sen. William E. Borah, R., Ida., and Associate Justice James C. McReynolds. In a radio speech he denounced "ignorance or misrepresentation" behind charges that the court bill hides dictatorial motives.

Prof. Edwin Borchard of Yale Law school, opposing the bill before the senate judiciary committee, warned that congress must be "cautious and vigilant" because the "executive has grown so powerful."

"The supreme court is the only factor for stability we have in this country," Borchard said. "Let us not in fitful impatience weaken a bulwark that has become a symbol for protection of the individual and of minorities."

He suggested that congress could achieve its objectives by defining due process of law and interstate commerce, by proposing an amendment to the constitution to make the amending process easier, and by naming a committee to select amendments designed to preserve the balance between state and federal rights.

Borchard's views were injected into a controversy which over the week-end had become intensely personal and which Robinson stirred further by his counter-attacks on two other senate veterans—Glass and Borah. Glass lashed the court plan Monday night in a speech that Robinson said was "destroyed" by its bitterness.

BUD TOWNSEND IS PRESIDENT

Townsend Is Elected
President Of Junior
C. Of C.

Bud Townsend, employee of the Cloverleaf Creameries, Inc., was named president of the Decatur Junior Chamber of Commerce for 1937, at a meeting of the organization held in the city hall Tuesday night.

Mr. Townsend replaces Deane Dorwin, social science instructor in the Decatur high school. He is serving the last of a three year term as director and was one of the founders of the organization. Mr. Dorwin has two more years to serve as a director.

Eileen Burk, secretary at the Central Sugar company, was named vice-president; Herman Knapke, a bookkeeper in the utility department of the city of Decatur, was chosen treasurer. Tom Allwein, employee of the Central Soya company, was elected treasurer. The latter three are not directors.

To effect the election of officers by the entire membership, rather than by the board of directors alone, an amendment was passed to the constitution, permitting this to be done. Other minor revisions in the constitution were made at the meeting.

The new president announced a one-week membership drive, to close with a meeting of the entire organization at the city hall next Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock.

At the next meeting the dates for regular meetings of the organization will be selected. A new plan of organization, which will permit all members to participate actively in the functions of the club, was approved at the meeting Tuesday night. Plans for the activities during the spring will be made at the next meeting.

Insurgent Cause In Spain Appears To Be Crack- ing Under Strain; Re- volt In Morocco Feared

FRENCH WARNING
By Louis F. Keemle
(United Press Cable Editor)

The insurgent cause in Spain seemed to be cracking today under military reverses and internal revolt.

Foreign intervention, which the insurgents counted on for victory, turned out to be a boomerang which threatens their defeat. Nationalist officers who entered the revolt from patriotic motives, seeking to remold the republic to their own political ideas, welcomed intervention.

Now many of them are disillusioned. They feel they are being used as tools to make Spain a vassal state of Fascist Italy and Nazi Germany. The reported arrogance of some officers among their allies had been a blow to their fierce Spanish pride.

That, coupled with the Guadalajara and Pozoblanco defeats, has resulted in serious dissension.

It seems fairly well established that a plot to revolt against the rightist cause has been started in Morocco, where, ironically, the civil war broke out. It was planned to spread it all through Spain, including such vital centers as Burgos, Seville, Salamanca, Valladolid, Malaga, and Algeiras.

Insurgent leaders are trying desperately to stamp it out, with Gen. Francisco Franco, the high commander, going personally to Morocco. More than 200, including 150 officers, were reported to have been shot.

The military situation meanwhile seemed desperate. The important rebel army operating in the Pozoblanco sector south of Madrid was in full retreat toward Cordoba, hard pressed by four loyalist columns. They were in danger of being trapped in the mountain passes by an encircling movement and annihilated.

It seemed likely that unless Mussolini disregards the non-intervention agreement and throws in heavy reinforcements from Italy, the entire insurgent movement may soon be in a bad way.

Mussolini was in a quandary. It would be a serious loss of face to have undertaken to help the insurgents win and then fail. On the other hand, Italy is pledged not to send more troops and there is Britain and France to reckon with.

Perhaps some formula may be found under which Mussolini can pull out gracefully. After a cabinet meeting in Paris today, an official communique was issued which said cryptically:

"The counsels of moderation given to certain powers regarding their Spanish attitude appears to be bearing fruit."

There was meanwhile in Rome a fresh surge of bitterness against England because of new criticisms of Italy, especially in the London Times. Tension in British-Italian (CONTINUED ON PAGE FIVE)
