YANK PITCHER HOLDS SOX TO SINGLE SAFETY

Monte Pearson Nears Hall Of Fame To End Yanks' Losing Streak

New York Yankees' retreat was at an end today and the man who stopped the panicky flight came close to the hall of fame.

Monte Marcellus Pearson, 28-year-old right-handed pitcher, in breaking the Yanks' four-game losing streak—longest since 1935—narrowly missed a non-hit, no-run game. He allowed one single, Larry Rosenthal, White Sox outfielder, was the second man up in the first inning and he singled to right.

After that the White Sox got only two men on bases, both on passes, and one of them was nullified by a double play. In one stretch Pearson set down 16 men in order. He fanned four men.

Pearson was the Yanks' second best pitcher last year, winning 19 games, but this season he promises to be their No. 1 moundman. He has won his first three games. Pearson is a mild sort of fellow. He smokes a pipe almost constantly off the field and looks like a collegian. He reads western stories, his favorite being Zane Grey. Oddly enough, it was one of Pearson's pitching favorites, Ted Lyons, who bowed to him yesterday.

The Yankees 7-0 victory enabled the world champions to move back into the first division, tying with Detroit for third place. Joe DiMaggio hit two homers and Selkirk one for the Yanks.

Pittsburgh increased its National league lead to 2½ games by a 4-1 victory over the Boston Bees. Bill Swift held the Bees to eight scattered hits. The Pirates won the game in the first inning, scoring three runs off Lou Fette.

Clyde Shoun, rookie southpaw, halted the Cubs' three-game losing streak by pitching Chicago to a 4-3 victory over the New York Giants. He kept the Giants nine hits scattered and struck out four. Another Cub player joined the casualty list when shortstop Jurgens came up with a stiff wrist, making six Chicago regulars out of the game. Hal Schumacher lost his third straight start.

Van Mungo set the Cardinals down with four hits as Brooklyn beat St. Louis, 8-2. He fanned six and walked three, scoring his fourth victory. The Cardinal defense again fell apart, with Cutleridge, Bordagaray, Brown and Orgodowski making errors.

The Phillies pounded out a 10-3 victory over Cincinnati while Bucky Walters held the Reds to four hits. Whitney hit a homer and Browne, Johnny Moore and Hershel Martin hit doubles.

The Philadelphia Athletics kept up their torrid pace by winning from Detroit, 9-5. Luther Thomas went the route for the A's allowing only eight hits. The A's knocked out Tommy Bridges, and continued their attack on Clyde Hatter. Chubby Dean drove in four runs with three singles.

Cleveland beat the Boston Red Sox, 6-5, in 11 innings and remained tied with the A's for the lead. Manager Cponin's wild throw let Cleveland score the winning run. The Indians made 17 hits off five Red Sox pitchers.

The St. Louis Browns won from Washington, 6-3, behind the 5-hit pitching of rookie Julio Bonetti, who blanked the Senators until the ninth. Beau Bell made three of the Browns' nine hits.

Yesterday's heroes: Rip Collins, Chicago first baseman, who hit a homer with Frey on base to give the Cubs a 4-3 victory over the Giants, and Monte Pearson, Yankee pitcher, who blanked the White Sox, 7-0, holding them to one hit.

BLUFFTON NINE BEATS JACKETS AGAIN MONDAY

Yellow Jackets Fail To Connect In Pinches, Lose, 8-3

Despite being outthit, the Bluffton Tiger nine humbled a crippled Yellow Jacket team at Worthman Field Monday afternoon, 8-3.

Playing without the services of McConnell, shortstop, who has an infected foot and Brodbeck, first-string catcher, the Jackets garnered seven bingles to six for the Tigers but failed in the pinches.

Schnepp, rookie first baseman, was the outstanding hitter of the game with a perfect record of four singles in as many times up. Gaunt, left fielder, hit two safeties in three official times up. Bleeke rapped out the other single.

Macklin, second baseman, continued his getting-on-base streak, when he was hit twice by Beatty, Bluffton hurler. He was also hit twice in the Huntington game.

Beery did all the hurling for the locals until Jim Highland made his initial appearance on the mound for the locals in the last frame. Beatty was effective for Bluffton.

Today's Sport Parade (By Henry McLemore)

Lexington, Va., May 11—(U.P.)—Kentucky derby memories scratched on an aspirin tablet: the firm belief that Man O' War wouldn't know his son, War Admiral, even if he met him at a Rotary luncheon with his name on his lapel. I also have my doubts that Man O' War cares a whoop that War Admiral won the derby. I say this despite the fact that the Churchill Downs press box on Saturday last was filled with gentlemen who wrote that when War Admiral whipped by the judges stand the winner, Man O' War stopped munching grass at Glen Riddle farm, kicked up his heels, said "Hotcha, My Boy," and hurried off to the corner drug store to brag about his offspring.

Just how Man O' War learned of the victory is a bit obscure, despite one fellow's explanation that the old horse is a personal friend of Clem McCarthy's and listened in on the broadcast of the race. My argument is that anybody who would eat grass and like it is too stupid to keep up with the racing news.

The wry faces of the boys and girls as they consumed mint juleps, they didn't like... mint juleps, like olives and long underwear, are an acquired taste, and it takes a while to develop a passion for the long drinks with the parsley garnishment... but the first thing that people do on reaching Louisville is yell loudly for a julep... even though a lemonade would be more to their liking.

How many of the 75,000 persons who packed the Downs last Saturday really saw the running of the derby... my guess would be that fully 10,000 never saw a single horse take a single step... and of these, 5,000 never knew when the field went to the post... the explanation is that there is room for only so many, and those silly periscopes the hawkers relinquish for a dollar bill are valuable in theory only... I tried to peek over a man's head with one and all I saw was the reflection of my own cat-green eyes.

It's worth a trip to Louisville to get an invitation to Sam Friedman's barbecue on the Sunday after the derby... he throws it for the governor, and roasts all the livestock within a radius of thirty miles... among those who yanked spare ribs apart last Sunday were Joe E. Brown and Richard Bennett... Mr. Brown won the trencherman's prize by swallowing an entire suckling pig in one bite... plus a double helping of burgoo, which is a stew that takes a week to prepare and a minute to eat... it was from this stew that the derby winner of a few years ago, Burgoon King, got his name... it has everything in it but the frontispiece of the magazine charts, and Brother Friedman

MIES PLANS TO PUT BASEBALL TEAM IN FIELD

Decatur To Be Represented In Semi-Pro Field This Summer

That Decatur would again have a baseball team in the semi-pro field this year, was assured today by Molly Mies, local hurler and manager of last year's aggregation.

Mr. Mies called for local talent to report at Worthman Field Wednesday evening at 4:30 o'clock for preliminary tryouts. All local players interested in semi-pro ball are asked to report at that time.

Several veterans of last year's team held a light workout at the field Monday night.

Mr. Mies, in announcing Decatur would again be represented with a semi-pro club, stated that he was interested in affording an opportunity to all local men to try out.

Several well known players in semi-pro ball are expected to be called here for the team this year, he stated. Mr. Mies plans to go to Cleveland later in the week to contact several semi-pro stars there, who are being sought for the local nine.

The local nine expects to open the season at Worthman Field in two or three weeks, with several outstanding teams already booked. The complete schedule is expected to be released soon.

might become a precedent for others. Departure of even a single conservative justice probably would retire the Roosevelt court bill to the darkest corner of the most obscure senate pigeon hole.

Associate Justice Brandeis is 80, the oldest member of the court. Early in this session congress enacted retirement legislation permitting justices to retire on full pay, $20,000 annually.

The United Press learned today of a campaign to hold the court bill in senate committee pending court adjournment. Interested legislators said that strategy would avoid embarrassment for all concerned if the court problem ultimately is to be solved by resignations instead of legislation.

The capital heard weeks ago that two or three justices had discussed retirement with their intimates.

One or more were represented as feeling that enactment of a guaranteed retirement-pay law would permit them to leave the bench. But these discussions were prior to Feb. 5 when Mr. Roosevelt started congress, the court, and the country with his plan to add six justices to the bench to supplant or assist the half dozen members who are 70 or more years of age.

After that message reached congress, the capital heard that the justices—at least some of them—were angry and would sit right where they were. Revival of resignation talk is judged to mean that there is hope among legislators that determination to fight it out from the bench is weakening among some of the justices.

Three associate justices were identified last winter with resignation rumors. They were Associate Justices Willis Van Devanter, James Clark McReynolds, and George Sutherland, all of the anti-new deal or conservative court bloc and all over 70 years of age.

Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, who has divided votes about even for the new deal, and Associate Justice Pierce Butler, a conservative, also are in the 70-year limit succession service.

Brandeis' retirement appointment of a like-minded justice would not alter the problems brought before the Roosevelt administration. The opinion was expressed that it might be less difficult for Roosevelt to leave the bench.

It appeared reasonably certain that any resignation would be a conservative justice with a would just about end the expansion of the court.
